Voting heavy to very heavy across U.S.

By The Associated Press

Initial reports indicated heavy to very heavy voter turnout across much of the nation today as voting began in a presidential election that some experts had said might draw a record light vote.

Long lines were reported at polls as they opened in Massachusetts, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Texas and at least a dozen other states. Sunny skies and crisp autumn temperatures were the rule across most of the country.

"I've never seen anything like it," said a voting official in Waltham, Mass., a Boston suburb where voters were lined up before the 8 a.m. opening of polling places.

At Precinct 264 in Dallas, Tex., an area of apartment complexes, there were 250 persons in line when the polls opened at 7 a.m.

Unusually heavy voting was reported in Alabama. Police cars had to be sent to polling places at schools in Birmingham because the voter traffic was so heavy children were having trouble getting to class.

The voter turnout in New York City was "astonishingly heavy," the Board of Elections reported. A Democratic survey of upstate New York and subruban areas indicated early balloting was heavier than in 1972.

The traditional political wisdom is that a heavy voter turnout would favor Democrat Jimmy Carter in his race against President Ford, since there are more registered Democrats than Republicans.

Election analysts had predicted that only slightly more than half the 150 million Americans of voting age would go to the polls today. In 1972, the turnout was 55 per cent.

Early turnout in Michigan was reported heavy to very heavy throughout the state. In Grand Rapids, Mich, where President Ford cast his ballot, voting was reported four times as heavy as in 1972.

The morning turnout in Albany, Ga., indicated record voting, officials said. At 7 a.m. there were long lines at every polling place, they said. Mrs. R. O. Buitman, supervisor at one of the polling places, said, "this is the heaviest turnout I have seen" in 20 years.

Forty-to 45-minute lines were reported at polling places in Richmond, Va. Uniformly heavy voting was reported in a half dozen cities in Maine. Long lines were reported in various parts of Tennessee.

Early reports from Pennsylvania indicated heavy voting throughout the state. In one precinct in State College, Pa., 71 people voted in the first 50 minutes.

Democrat Jimmy Carter cast his ballot in a cinder-block building near the railroad tracks in Plains, Ga. Republican Gerald Ford voted in an elementary school in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Carter's 98-week campaign came to an end in Plains, his rural home town. "I feel a sense of satisfaction," he said. "I did the best I could."

Ford, home in Grand Rapids, was asked if he felt lucky "Sure do," the President replied. "Don't you think we have good reason?"

Carter's running-mate, Walter F. Mondale, also voted early, in Afton, Minn., his home town. He joked that he was "undecided," but then assured reporters he had voted for "Jimmy Carter and his running-mate."

The fourth man in the celebrated quarter, GOP vice-presidential candidate Bob Dole, planned to vote later in the day in his home town, Russell, Kan. At a rally Monday evening in Independence, Mo., he sat in former President Harry S. Truman's chair in the local courthouse "for luck."

Ford and Carter ended their campaigns Monday night with rallies in Michigan, barely 100 miles apart.

High court rejects L.A. plea on porno store rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has rejected attempts by Los Angeles county and city authorities to knock down a state court ruling preventing them from closing down book stores and theaters that sell and exhibit pornographic material.

The high court rejected without comment Monday arguments by Los Angeles Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp that a ruling by the California Supreme Court would force local authorities to take a piecemeal approach to obscenity.

The state court had ruled that injunctions could be issued against sale of materials found obscene but not against the premises themselves.

City and county officials had sought the power to close such establishments for one year and to have moveable property removed and sold.

In Van de Kamp vs. Projection Room Theater, the district attorney argued that the ruling ties the hands of local authorities by forcing them to go to court over each complaint of an obscene magazine or film.

Court upholds work schedule change over religious views

WASHINGTON AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that employers must change an employe's work schedule if he requests the change for religious reasons.

The court, in a 4-4 decision, said the Parker Seal Co. was guilty of religious discrimination when it fired Paul Cummins because he refused to work on Saturdays.

Cummins was a supervisor in the company's Berea, Ky., rubber seal plant.

The dispute between Cummins and his employer attracted the attention of Seventh-day Adventist and Jewish organizations, who urged the Supreme Court to uphold the federal law prohibiting an employer to discharge or discriminate against an employe because of his religion, including "all aspects of religious observance and practice."

In a 2-1 decision last year, the 6th Circuit Court ruled that "grumbling" by other employes "must yield to the single employe's right to practice his religion."

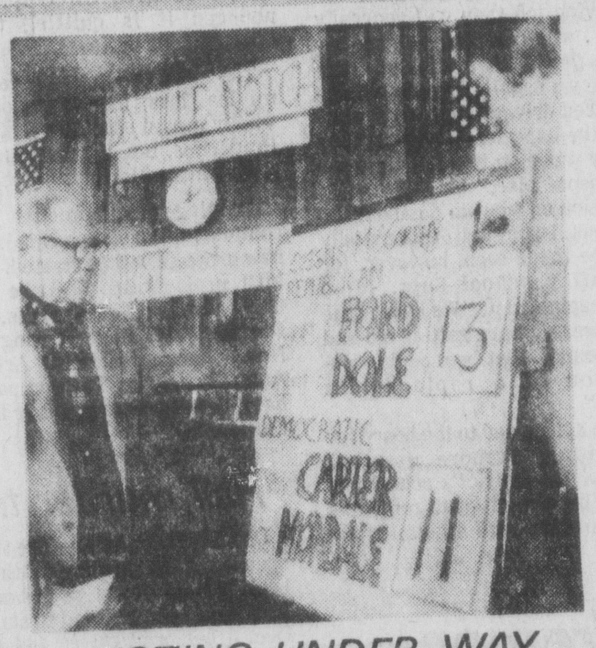
BOOTHS FOR HANDICAPPED

Max Pyle of Pomona, a wheelchair patient, votes in one of the over-sized booths which Tuesday were generously sprinkled throughout the valley to accommodate the handicapped. Eighty-five of the specially designed booths were placed at polling places in the east end of Los Angeles County. They are wider than normal voting booths and have adjustable shelves allowing individuals to vote while sitting or while standing on crutches. Thirty-two of the special booths are installed at Pomona polling places today.



VOTING UNDER WAY

Four local cities may lose dogcatcher service in June

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Four cities in the valley may find themselves without any dogcatchers next June.

The Humane Society of Pomona Valley which has served Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas for more than a quarter century, says it may have to abandon the animal control part of its services next year because it is operating at a deficit.

A letter outlining the deficit was directed to the La Verne City Council Monday night, but Bruce Richards, executive director of the animal shelter, says all four cities have been notified.

He said that although the animal control portion of the work may be abandoned, the shelter will continue its welfare program to animals, including preservation of wild life, reclamation of pets, and protection of dogs and cats and other animal life.

"We are still operating under a contract that was drawn up 26 years ago," he claimed. "If the cities want to continue animal control we're going to have to brush the dust off the contract and do some basic revisions."

Richards said the society has been operating in the red for the past three years "and things are getting worse."

Richards said the society has had to lay off several employes to stay near the budget, but now "there is nowhere to go.

"We can't get enough money from the license fees," he maintained. "To be self-sufficient, we would have to raise the fees from the present $4 to $20, and that's too much."

He said in Pomona alone, the number of dogs has gone from the original 6,000 to 18,000. Right now, the society is processing 22,000 dog licenses throughout the valley. Richard says the animal shelter also handles 11,000 cats for which dog owners have to pay since there are no license fees charged for cats.

"Recently the city of Walnut wanted to join the valley humane society," he said. "We had to turn them down. We simply couldn't handle any more."

Richards said the decision to get out of the dog catching business was not final, but a strong possibility.

"It all depends on what the cities want to do about it," he declared. "We must have some dialog about the future."

He said the humane society will no longer make presentations before city councils, nor will it continue to present financial statements to get approval to raise its license fees.

"What we hope is that we can have an over-all meeting with representatives of all the cities, all at one time," the executive director said. "We need to rewrite our contracts entirely."

City Manager George Caswell said Richards notified him that he would be unable to meet with the council because of conflicts in his schedule. The council tabled action on the matter until Richards could appear.

Ambulance stolen while paramedics giving aid

By TONY AULT

Police are searching for two men who stole an ambulance parked in front of a store at 621 W. Sunkist St., Ontario, early this morning while paramedics were giving medical aid to someone in the building.

Police said ambulance attendant Kenneth A. Croteall of B and B Ambulance Service came out of the store to discover the ambulance missing at about 12:17 a.m.

Rescue victim was transported to Ontario Community Hospital by Ontario fire department paramedics called to assist.

About 40 minutes later, the ambulance was found parked in the intersection of Cypress Avenue and Park Street, Ontario, with its doors open. Croteall told officers that a scoop stretcher and a flat stretcher with a total value of $180 were missing from the ambulance.

Witnesses at the store told officers that just after the paramedics left the ambulance two men in a dark green or blue 1966 sedan drove up behind it. One of the men left the car and entered the ambulance and drove off with it.

The ambulance was followed by the man driving the other car. The men were both described as Latins with long, bushy hair.

Judge to sample drug before ruling on case

BOSTON (AP) — A district court judge says he won't rule on a cocaine possession case until he's sampled the illegal drug for himself and determined its effects.

"It was a mind-boggling, precedent-setting action," a defense attorney said after Roxbury District Court Judge Elwood McKenney made the announcement in court Monday.

McKenney, presiding over a case challenging the constitutionality of Massachusetts' anti-cocaine laws, says he wants to determine if the drug is as harmful as the statutes imply.

"My wanting to do this is similar to a judge visiting the scene of a crime or viewing a movie to determine if it is obscene," the judge said.

REPORT LOCAL TURNOUT AS 'VERY BRISK'

Voters got up with the sun this morning to go to the polls.

Spot checks before 10 a.m. brought reports of brisk activity throughout the valley, beginning promptly at 7 a.m.

A number of election workers reported a much heavier early morning turnout than they had experienced in the June primary. They predicted that if the voting remained steady throughout the day there would indeed be the 80 per cent turnout forecast by registrars of voters in both Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Election workers were hopeful many voters would mark ballots during the day and not wait until the evening hours to crowd polling places and have to stand in line.

Polls will remain open until 8 p.m. to accommodate workers.

In Philadelphia

Water supply under guard after threat

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Officials kept Philadelphia's water system under tight security today after an extortionist apparently failed to carry out a threat to dump 1,000 gallons of heating oil into the water unless he got $1 million.

Hillel Levinson, city managing director, emphasized that there was no cause for alarm. He said the worst effect of that much oil would be some cases of nausea, and that the biggest problem would be cleaning it up.

"We hope it's a hoax, but it's too early to tell," Water Commissioner Carmen Guarino said shortly before a midnight deadline for the money set by the extortionist in a tape-recorded message. Early today, Guarino said no attempt to contaminate the water had been detected.

"We have people stationed at all our facilities and others riding around in their cars," Charles Vickerman, deputy water commissioner, said. "And the police have been alerted to watch for anything suspicious."

A man's voice on the tape cassette, which was found in a city hall conference room about 9 a.m., had ordered the city to drop $1 million from a helicopter over a site that would be marked by flashing lights along the Delaware River.

Officials in the nation's fourth largest city said they followed the instructions but spotted no flashing lights. They refused to say whether they brought money on the flight.

Levinson told a news conference that fire hydrants would be opened periodically to test for contamination. He said residents had been urged to examine their water carefully before drinking it.

Philadelphia's water system includes three main reservoirs, three treatment plants, 10 pumping stations and 3,200 miles of water lines.

Nearly one-tenth of ones investigated

Problems appear in 23 hospital deaths

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Serious questions are being raised about the circumstances of nearly one-tenth of state mental hospital patient deaths investigated so far, state health officials say.

The investigation followed reports last month of possible patient abuse in deaths at Camarillo State Hospital. The Ventura County district attorney is studying at least six of those deaths for possible prosecution.

So far, state investigators have checked 273 deaths at state hospitals in the last three years and found 23 in which "there appears to be a gross problem, either legal or administrative," deputy Health Director Ray Procunier said Monday.

The investigation has covered seven of the 10 mental hospitals, excluding Camarillo while the district attorney has the case and two other hospitals, Porterville and Stockton, until more staff is available.

The investigators were assigned last month by state Health Director Jerome Lackner to visit the hospitals and study all of the approximately 1,000 deaths there in the last three years.

Other findings included a possible drug ring at one hospital, which Procunier refused to name, and continued reports of threats against employes at Metropolitan State Hospital near Los Angeles, he said.

At Metropolitan, where one employe earlier told of having "KKK" scratched on his car, a state investigator received an anonymous note "telling him to get out of there," Procunier said.

Procunier said 146 of the 273 deaths studied so far appeared to need no further checking, 104 required some followup such as completion of an autopsy but didn't appear out of the ordinary, and the other 23 raised serious questions.

Without naming the hospitals involved, Procunier said the 23 deaths included cases in which:

—A medical officer on duty didn't show up until seven hours after being summoned.

—A portion of a patient's record had been penciled out.

—A patient's chart indicated that medicine had been administered several hours after the patient was dead.

They also included a number of cases in which there was no record of an illness before the patient's death, Procunier said.

He said each case would be studied closely, with interviews of each employe. He added cases would be referred, if necessary, to the hospital administrator for procedure or staff changes, or to prosecutors.

In the case of the chart that indicated medication after the time of death, "Whoever's initials are on that chart is going to be listening to somebody," Procunier said.

Strong action will be taken in the case of the medical officer if his absence contributed to the death, Procunier said.

He said the drug ring wasn't involved in the death of a patient, but surfaced during the investigation. He said the case had been turned over to law enforcement.

Claremont board retains its sample ballot policy

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Correspondent

Following a lengthy discussion at its Monday night meeting the Claremont school board voted 3-1 to retain its present policy regarding school board candidates' sample ballot election statements.

The present system requires statements which accompany sample ballots be limited to 200 words and that candidates bear the cost of their preparation. The board could have approved an increase in the length of the statements to 400 words and voted to have the school district pick up the cost.

Board member Robert Stafford expressed his concern that costs for the statements were becoming too high and forcing the poorer person out of a candidacy. Stafford said the cost for statement preparation the last time he ran was $443 compared to only $114 the election prior to that.

"And you hear so many people say, 'He must not be interested because he didn't even submit a sample ballot statement,'" said Stafford. Stafford, who cast the dissenting vote, said he would like to see the district pick up all or part of the election statement costs.

Several suggestions were offered throughout the discussion including a split of the costs on a percentage basis between the district and candidate or the possibility of the district picking up any costs in excess of a given amount; say, $100 or $200.

Stafford told fellow board members that research has shown that where the district picks up such costs more persons from low income areas run for office.

Board President Arthur Steffen, however, questioned the need of the district to pick up the cost noting that it could become a considerable expense if several candidates decided to run. Steffen also said that "the present system hasn't stopped anyone from running yet."

The board was advised by staff that the registrar of voters required a decision on the matter by Nov. 18 and that if the board wished to it could vote to maintain the present policy and later amend its decision.

The board also discussed the problem of Condit School students facing traffic hazards crossing Base Line Road on their way to school. A petition had been presented at the board's last meeting requesting that school hours at Condit be adjusted allowing students to cross at a time when fewer cars were on the street. Supt. Richard Kirkendall reported to the board that the Claremont Police Department will provide a traffic count on Nov. 12 (a regular workday but school holiday) and another on a regular school day. The superintendent also said the staff would conduct a survey of Condit parents to see how they felt on the subject. He said the staff would prepare a recommendation for the next board meeting.

Korean man charged with murder at APC

A young Korean man has been charged formally with murder in the slaying Oct. 7 of David Kim Brunk in Azusa Pacific College's music room.

The suspect is Ki Duc Kim, 24, who is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Nov. 8 in Citrus Municipal Court in West Covina. Kim was arraigned Friday in the same court and he was ordered held in lieu of $500,000 bail.

Brunk, of Ontario, was stabbed to death after an altercation that day. Sheriff's investigators said the stabbing followed an argument over a young woman.

Both young men were natives of Korea. Brunk lived with adoptive parents in Ontario.

It was not determined how long the suspect, who was arrested late last week, has been in this country.

CONDOR DIES

Despite life-saving efforts and amputation of a badly shattered wing, this rare California condor shot down in September has died. Tehachapi, one of about 45 survivors of the condor species that lives only in the Southern California coastal mountains, had regained consciousness and shown signs of recovery after its wing was amputated last week. But officials at the Los Angeles zoo said the bird began breathing erratically and died.

Chaffey postpones purchase of buses

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Trustees of the Chaffey Union School District have decided to postpone the purchase of new school buses until a study is done to determine whether or not the district should contract out busing services.

The decision to wait on the purchase came after board member John Schnepp voiced an objection to accepting bids for five new school buses until the district looked into alternative methods of providing school transportation.

"A little over a year ago I asked for a cost analysis on our buses," said Schnepp. "To this date I have not seen one.

"I find it hard to vote for the purchase of five new buses when I have not received information necessary to arrive at such a decision," he declared.

"I would like to know what it costs us to operate our own buses and what it would cost us to contract for bus service," said Schnepp.

Board President G. A. Chalfant agreed that the idea of contracting for bus service should be looked into. "I think it is an obligation of this board to look at alternative methods of financing," he said.

Board member Martha Chapman raised a related point of why it was so difficult for the district to keep qualified bus drivers from leaving their jobs.

"I understand we are having trouble keeping drivers in this district," she told the board, "and I'm beginning to wonder why?"

Assistant Supt. Robert Spencer explained why. "Most of our bus drivers only work part time," he said. "As soon as they can find a full-time driving job they will generally do it . . . who can blame them.

"Since the jobs we offer are only part time we usually have to hire inexperienced drivers. As soon as they acquire the experience with us they generally move on to a full-time job with someone else," he said.

A decision on what to do about the school bus issue will undoubtedly have to be made soon, however, for as Chaffey school Supt. Mike Dirksen explained it, "We have some school buses that are getting old and it is essential that we begin consideration of a replacement schedule."

Dirksen apologized to the board for not providing a more detailed analysis of the district's school bus situation, but promised to return as soon as possible with a detailed accounting.

Upland police, firemen accept salary increase

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Upland police officers and firefighters have accepted a five per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1.

The salaries are for persons represented by the Upland Police Officers' Association and the Upland Firefighters' Association.

City Manager Lee Travers told Upland City Council members Monday that both groups were told that the city would look at its financial status at the end of the year.

"But we made no commitment as to another salary increase at that time," Travers said.

Miscellaneous employes were meeting Monday night in a conferring session to see if they would accept a percentage increase in salaries rather than the flat dollar amount they previously asked for.

The council voted to purchase 14½ acres of land on 11th Street for use as a city park at a cost of $225,000.

The land has been held by the Upland School District as the site for a future junior high school. However, the district now feels that it will not need a junior high school in that location and has offered the land to the city.

In a special meeting, the Upland Recreation Committee recommended that the city purchase the land for use as a soccer and football field.

Travers reported that there is $306,000 in the park funds but that $110,000 has been budgeted for specific items at Pioneer Park, Hawkins Field, Euclid Avenue and Greenbelt Park.

"This means we have $196,000 for the purchase of the 11th Street property," Travers said. "The additional $29,000 would come from the projected bedroom tax on homes being constructed in the city."

Heart disease caused deaths of three

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county coroner has concluded that heart disease rather than influenza vaccines caused the deaths of three elderly persons over the weekend.

Two of the three had received swine flu vaccine and the other had been administered Hong Kong B vaccine, Dr. Thomas Noguchi said Monday.

All three died Saturday within 48 hours of receiving the innoculations. However, Noguchi said all three had extensive heart disease which had been the cause of death.

Dr. Wallace Frasher, president of the Greater Los Angeles branch of the Heart Association, said there is no evidence that the swine flu vaccine causes death and that heart patients should get the shots according to their doctors' advice.

"The patient with heart disease is clearly at increased risk of getting the flu if he or she is not protected," Frasher said. "Therefore, under guidance of their own physician, it is advisable for such high risk persons to get their shot."

Strike ends

MILPITAS (AP) — Rank-and-file ratification of a new contract has ended a 47-day strike by 2,700 United Auto Workers at the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant at Milpitas, Ford's largest on the West Coast.

The Local 560 vote Monday was 1,190 to 386 to return to work. Maintenance workers went back to work hours later, and the full work force was expected to be back by Wednesday.

Although a nationwide UAW strike against Ford ended two weeks ago with workers getting a 37.5-cent hourly wage increase and another 13 days off a year, the Milpitas plant workers stayed out over local working condition issues.

Marijuana bust

SAN SIMEON (AP) — Many more arrests are expected in connection with a major Southern California marijuana smuggling operation, according to authorities who have arrested 16 men and confiscated about five tons of "Thai-stick" marijuana.

The marijauna, a potent type believed to be worth more than $30 million, was seized minutes after it was allegedly smuggled ashore Monday from a fishing boat in a cove near Hearst Castle, authorities said.

The 79-foot fishing boat, the Dong Phat, sped from the cove after apparently receiving a radio warning, authorites said, and a Coast Guard cutter went after the vessel, finally overtaking it after a four-hour chase.

McCulloch quits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Citing rising construction and financing costs and increasing government regulation, McCulloch Oil Corp. has announced it is quitting the land development business.

The move will probably cause a $59 million loss for McCulloch Oil's wholly owned subsidiary, McCulloch Properties, Inc, the company said in a statement Monday.

Existing developments will be completed, the company said, but no new projects will be started. Current MPI projects are at Lake Havasu City and Fountain Hills, Ariz., Pueblo West, Colo., Spring Creek, Nev., Holiday Island, Ark., and Amarillo, Texas. The company also has a development at Silver Lakes in California.

Hall murder trial

PASADENA (AP) — The two men accused of the shooting death of Burbank private detective Robert Duke Hall have been ordered to stand trial Dec. 6 but prosecutors and defense attorneys say they probably will be tried separately, thus further delaying proceedings.

Superior Court Judge Mary Goode Rogan set the trial date Monday because one of the defendants, Jack Ginsburgs, has refused to waive his right to a speedy trial.

Continental strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spokesman for striking Continental Airlines pilots predicts his group will resume talks with the company this week in an effort to end a 10-day-long bargaining stalemate.

Gary Thomas, head of the council of pilots that holds the power to ratify contracts, said Monday that he hopes such preliminary talks this week will get official negotiations started again.

Pilots said they received a telegram from the company telling them officials will negotiate if a mediator determines the pilots have reduced their demands substantially.

Absentee ballots could decide it

Associated Press Writer

A big upsurge in absentee balloting in some states and cities could tip the balance of today's presidential election if the race is close.

Many of the absentee votes will not be counted for as long as a week after the election.

And one state, Washington, allows county election officials 15 days to count absentee ballots. An estimated 200,000 ballots were mailed out to residents of that state.

Two huge blocks of absentee votes -- California's estimated 700,000, compared with 400,000 in 1972, and the returns on 300,000 to 500,000 mailed out by New York State -- are due to be counted on election night. So are those of many less populous states.

But in Washington, D.C., the "boxes and boxes" of returned absentee ballots will not be counted until a week after the election.

In an election eve Associated Press survey, many states were unable to provide estimates of absentee ballot totals because ballots are returned to county officials. Nor could they say how the returns compared with previous presidential elections.

But Massachusetts reported a "huge number" of absentee ballot requests this year, and in Maine there were so many that the supply of 82,822 special ballots ran out and regular ballots had to be sent to absentee voters.

In a few places, there were reports of a drop in absentee balloting. Election officials in Chicago said absentee voting was running slightly behind 1972, with 20,436 ballots mailed out. Minnesota officials estimated a drop of several thousand because fewer residents are in the military than four years ago.

But in New York City, where about 30,000 ballots were mailed out, an election official commented, "I've never seen bags coming in this way, bags and bags."

Methods of handling the absentee ballots vary from state to state and even from county to county.

In South Dakota, the absentee votes are counted at the county level after votes cast at the polls are tallied.

In Vermont, where 26,670 ballots were mailed out, those returned will be counted by town clerks as soon as the polls close.

In some states -- including Florida with an estimated 150,000 absentee ballots and Rhode Island with 17,500 -- they are not counted until the following day.

Nebraska will begin counting its estimated 8,000 to 10,000 absentee ballots this morning, and Missouri also plans to count most of its expected 100,000 absentee votes prior to counting regular ballots.

In Wyoming, county commissioners can set up a counting board to count absentee ballots after the election. It's usually done "promptly," says an official.

And in North Dakota the count is usually done election night but may be delayed up to five days.

In King County (Seattle), Wash., which sent out 80,000 ballots, an official said about half those returned would be counted election night and the rest the following day. But with 15 days' leeway, many other Washington counties will take a few days.

Candidates go to the polls

Ford

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) -- Amidst the glare and flash of cameras, President Ford became citizen Ford for three minutes in a voting booth today as he cast his ballot in the election he hopes will keep him in the White House.

Ford voted by punching a card in a metal, three-sided booth that lacks curtains to totally conceal a voter exercising his franchise.

The serious-faced Ford, wearing a gray, pin-striped suit, studied his ballot as television cameras recorded the event. He looked up once to smile. His wife, Betty, voted simultaneously in a booth beside him.

Outside of the elementary school where the booths were housed, crowds of children shouted, "We want Ford! We want Ford!"

Asked if he felt lucky, Ford said, "Sure do. Don't you think we have good reason?"

Afterwards, Ford and his wife went to Granny's Kitchen for a second breakfast. He planned to unveil a mural and attend a Pentecostal church service before returning to Washington later today to await the outcome of the election.

Ford closed his campaign Monday night in Michigan, the state that sent him to Congress 28 years ago, and where a statewide poll shows his lead has slipped to 1 per cent over Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) -- Ending his exhausting and often lonely 98-week presidential campaign, Jimmy Carter today entered the solitude of the voting booth and cast his ballot for "Walter Mondale and his running mate."

"I feel a sense of satisfaction. I did the best I could," he said afterwards. "I think Sen. Mondale and I adequately presented ourselves to the American people."

Carter waited for his wife, Rosalynn; his son, Chip, and his daughter-in-law, Caron, to cast their ballots before voting at 7:29 a.m. in the booth housed in a small, cinder-block building near the railroad tracks that run through this rural hamlet.

He spent five minutes marking the lengthy Georgia ballot.

Carter said he expected the voting and tabulating to proceed slowly today, especially in Georgia. "We've got all those constitutional amendments. But that's normal for a general election in Georgia," he said

Wearing a brown, open-collar shirt, tan slacks and a beige sweater in the nippy morning air, Carter told the throng of reporters and onlookers trailing him that he was pleased to have had a chance to present himself to the American people.

"I'm glad it's over," said the candidate late Monday night as he sank into an airplane seat opposite several reporters on the way home aboard his campaign jet, "Peanut One."

Dole

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -- Looking bone-weary but satisfied that he had fought "a good campaign overall," Sen. Bob Dole prepared to vote in his hometown of Russell, Kan., at the end of an arduous 76-day vice presidential campaign.

"I guess in a positive way, I've taken a lot of heat this campaign," the 53-year-old candidate said in an interview late Monday evening after a last campaign stop at Independence, Mo., where he compared Republican President Ford's campaign to the successful 1948 effort by Harry S. Truman, who was a Democrat.

"But I have allowed President Ford to work in the White House, while I have been out in the firing line, and that's what we had planned," Dole said.

Rousing receptions in the farm belt states of Missouri and Kansas buoyed Dole's election hopes on Monday. He even shook hands with placard-carrying Carter supporters, joking with them, "Don't work too hard."

At Independence late Monday, Dole sat in Truman's old chair at the Jackson County courthouse and told a cheering crowd of well-wishers "We have his luck."

Dole said he did not regard it as an inconsistency to invoke the image of a Democratic president to further the image of his own campaign. "Truman is a great American hero now," he said.

Mondale

AFTON, Minn. (AP) -- Democratic vice-presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale ended his 32-state campaign for the nation's second highest office by voting today with his wife Joan and son Teddy.

The Minnesota senator waited in line behind about 20 other voters before casting his ballot at the Afton City Hall.

He joked that he was "undecided." But then he assured reporters he voted for "Jimmy Carter and his running mate."

Mondale told reporters he would very much like a mandate from voters. "If we win without it, I'll take that too," he said.

The Mondales spent about 10 minutes in the City Hall, and the senator explained that it had taken some time for his 19-year-old son Teddy to be cleared to vote for the first time.

Winding up his 54,000-miles of campaign travel, Mondale joined Carter Monday night for a labor auditorium rally in Flint, Mich. The message from both candidates before some 9,000 listeners was the same it had been at so many other campaign stops: a plea to the Democratic faithful to fight apathy, to get out the vote.

Carter has edge, but electoral vote is tossup

By The Associated Press

The final Associated Press survey of the states shows the tally of electoral votes too close to call.

Although Jimmy Carter still has an apparent edge, he is not comfortably ahead in enough states to be sure of the 270 electoral votes needed for victory. Neither is President Ford.

Several big states have moved into the toss-up category since the preceding AP survey last week.

The AP survey is based on independent polls in states where they are taken, and on the observations of political experts and campaign reporters in other states.

The poll now finds Carter leading in 15 states and the District of Columbia, with a total of 210 electoral votes. The 11 states in which Ford leads have a total of 91 electoral votes. The number of toss-up states has grown to 24, with 237 electoral votes.

Carter's lead has shrunk since a similar AP survey was conducted last week, and his lead in the popular vote also has all but disappeared, according to the major independent polls.

Both the Harris and Gallup polls show the two candidates within a point of each other.

In the survey last week, Carter was seen as leading in 22 states and in the District of Columbia, and that would have given him 295 electoral votes, or 25 more than he needed for election.

The survey one week ago found fewer states in the toss-up category. Carter has lost his edge in key states such as Ohio, Maryland, North Carolina and New Jersey. His tally of probable electoral votes has dropped from 295 to the current 237.

Ford has added California to his column but dropped back to an uncertain position in Michigan, Virginia, Oregon and Maine.

The closeness of the electoral vote survey is reflected in the independent polls of the popular vote. The Gallup and Harris surveys have found in the past three days that the race has come down to a virtual tie.

Here are the states Carter is perceived as leading in, with electoral votes in parentheses: Alabama (9); Arkansas (6); District of Columbia (3); Florida (17); Georgia (12); Hawaii (4); Kentucky (9); Massachusetts (14); Minnesota (10); Missouri (12); New York (41); Pennsylvania (27); Rhode Island (4); Tennessee (10); Texas (26); and West Virginia (6).

Ford was considered ahead in Alaska (3); Arizona (6); California (45); Colorado (7); Idaho (4); Kansas (7); Nebraska (5); New Hampshire (4); Utah (4); Vermont (3); and Wyoming (3).

The toss-ups were Connecticut (8); Delaware (3); Illinois (26); Indiana (13); Iowa (8); Louisiana (10); Maine (4); Maryland (10); Michigan (21); Mississippi (7); Montana (4); Nevada (3); New Jersey (17); New Mexico (4); North Carolina (13); North Dakota (3); Ohio (25); Oklahoma (8); Oregon (6); South Carolina (8); South Dakota (4); Virginia (12); Washington (9); and Wisconsin (11).

Demos to prevail in governor, Senate House races

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Democrats have a fast start toward keeping decisive control of the House: 44 of them were virtually elected the moment the polls opened today because they have no major opposition.

Only six Republicans had no major opposition.

Democrats control the current Congress 2-1, with 290 seats to the Republicans' 145. The Democrats appeared certain to keep 220 of those seats in today's election and were favored to win another 60 or so.

But Democratic campaign officials concede that Republicans are likely to win back some of the 43 seats they lost in 1974 because of Watergate. The GOP could win up to 15, the Democrats say, if the voter turnout is low.

Republicans hope for more but consider 15 their most realistic bet.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Despite prospects of a dozen or so newcomers, the party line-up in the Senate is expected to be little changed by today's elections.

Democrats are confident they will maintain, and possibly even increase slightly, their majority in the 95th Congress that will convene Jan. 4.

Republican campaign aides foresee no chance of capturing control of the Senate, saying they doubt if they can make a net pickup of more than two seats.

Democrats now outnumber Republicans in the Senate 62 to 38.

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Voters in 14 states are choosing governors, and Democrats are almost certain to retain their present hold on executive mansions around the country by a margin of nearly 3 to 1.

In Delaware, there is a duPont running; in West Virginia, a Rockefeller is favored; and Illinois is a state in which the gubernatorial race has complicated the presidential election.

There are 36 Democratic governors, 13 Republicans and one independent. In today's elections, Republicans are favored to win Illinois, Delaware, Utah, Indiana and Missouri. Democrats are given the edge in North Carolina, West Virginia, Arkansas, North Dakota and Rhode Island.

13-year-old plane wreck discovered

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) -- Authorities today were investigating a 13-year-old plane wreck, found Saturday atop a southern Utah mountain.

Washington County Sheriff Evan Whitehead said a wallet led to tentative identification of one of the victims as Harry Cleveland Ross Jr. He said a woman who identified herself as Nancy Blackman of California phoned late Monday to say she was Ross's daughter.

She confirmed her father was missing in a plane crash and identified the owner of the plane as Wallace Carey Halsey of the Logan-Smithfield area in Utah, Whitehead said. He said efforts would be made to trace Ross and Halsey.

The sheriff said several hundred dollars in cash was found at the site.

Savings and loan robbed

Ontario police today continued their search for a gunman who robbed the Ontario Savings and Loan Association office at 333 N. Euclid Ave. Monday.

Police believe the robber is involved in a series of bank robberies in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Investigators reported the gunman walked into the savings and loan office where he pulled a pistol from his waistband and ordered the teller to give him the money and not to touch the alarm.

After the teller complied, she was directed to walk to the back of the office. The gunman fled out the door after tucking the gun and money into his waistband.

Police described him as a Latin, in his early 30s, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 155 pounds and with curly black hair and a thin mustache. He was wearing blue pants and a blue shirt.

Woman held in fire

Patricia Ann Gilford, 26, 655 N. Dudley St., Pomona, was arrested Monday afternoon by Inspector Tom Fee of the Pomona Fire Department for suspicion of starting a fire in an apartment.

Miss Gilford remained in Pomona City Jail this morning.

The fire was started by burning clothing in the bathtub of the apartment rented by the suspect's mother, Mary Loftin. Damage was minor.

The fire was put out by an occupant of a nearby apartment, John Young, according to fire inspectors.

Rhodesian troops kill hundreds of guerrillas in Mozambique action

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian government forces returned from Mozambique today after a 36-hour invasion during which they killed hundreds of black Rhodesian guerrillas and destroyed seven guerrilla camps, security sources reported.

Casualties among the Rhodesian government forces were not known.

Mozambique's black government accused Prime Minister Ian Smith's white minority regime of a "major military assault on an independent sovereign state." It said its forces were battling fiercely to expel the invaders.

The Rhodesian government said its forces were exercising the right of "hot pursuit" of guerrillas who had been attacking positions in Rhodesia.

The Zambian goverment newspaper accused Smith's government of trying to wreck the Geneva conference to negotiate the transfer of power from the 278,000 Rhodesian whites to the 6.4 million blacks.

It was the second major Rhodesian attack inside Mozambique this year. The first was made in August, after mortar fire from Mozambique killed four white Rhodesian soldiers. Smith's government said its raiders killed 300 guerrillas, 30 Mozambican soldiers and 10 civilians.

Some 10,000 black Rhodesian guerrillas are believed to be operating from bases just across the 800-mile border between Rhodesia and the former Portuguese territory on the southeast coast of Africa.

Cadillac mobbed by job seekers

DETROIT (AP) — Cadillac officials made no public announcement when they decided to build up their backlog of job applications. But word spread, and more than 5,000 job seekers showed up outside the main assembly plant.

One woman fainted, a fight broke out, and when the crush at the door prevented people from getting out, Cadillac called the whole thing off.

The firm, a division of General Motors, said it had no plan to hire. Bulletins on the front door of the plant and throughout the building merely stated that applications would be handed out Monday.

People started showing up at 10 p.m. Sunday with blankets and coffee for an all-night wait.

On Monday morning, Cadillac set up five interview desks to give prospective employes forms to take home, fill out and mail back.

"We were prepared to give out up to 10,000 applications, but we just didn't expect such a crunch of people showing up at the same time," said a Cadillac spokesman. "We were only passing out applications and not interviewing for jobs.

"We stopped giving them out when there was such a crunch at the door the people who had them couldn't get out."

One woman who waited two hours to get an application had it ripped from her hands when she emerged from the plant. Several persons who managed to hold on to their applications sold the forms outside the plant for up to $20.

In the future, Cadillac said, it will handle applications by mail.

Cadillac has 9,000 blue collar workers and has hired about 200 since August.

There is no natural gas shortage...

in Alaska or Indonesia.

But in southern California, a natural gas shortage is already here.

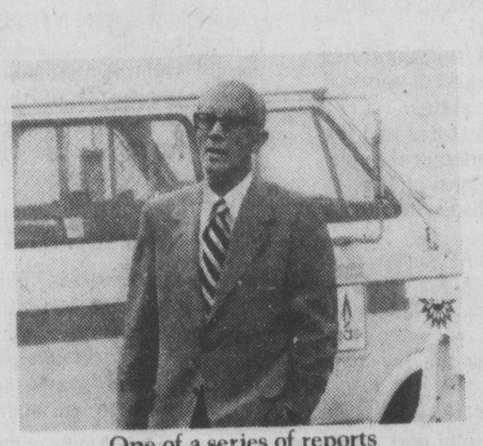
That shortage could become a crisis costing up to 700,000 jobs in this area alone unless we're able to obtain additional gas supplies by the beginning of the next decade. Conservation of natural gas is essential, but even this may not be able to prevent lost jobs and cold homes. To get enough new natural gas supplies, consumers, government, labor and the Gas Company will have to work together more closely than ever before. Here's the situation facing southern California.

Southern California supplies have declined sharply.

Existing supplies from California sources are running down. Our suppliers in New Mexico and Texas are cutting back their deliveries. That means we've had to reduce our service to large firms that can use other, more expensive, forms of fuel.

But there's plenty of natural gas in Alaska and Indonesia.

We've gone to Alaska and Indonesia to find new supplies. These areas are rich in natural gas resources. But we won't be able to start bringing the gas here until we get approval from local, state and federal government agencies. Then pipelines must be put in. Ships and plants must be built. We have signed contracts with the Indonesian government for large amounts of natural gas. But again, local, state and federal government approvals are needed in this country. And fast.



One of a series of reports by Harvey A. Proctor, Chairman, Southern California Gas Company.

How about a substitute?

Unfortunately, a low-cost substitute for natural gas is not available. For example, we are working hard to develop solar energy, but increased gas supplies are the only answer for the near future. That's why we're seeking new sources of supply from other parts of the world, too. Off the northern coast of Australia and in Malaysia, for example. But our best hope lies in getting fast, final approvals for our projects in Alaska and Indonesia.

Why can't we just go get it?

Since the Gas Company is a public utility, we must have government approvals at every level. Prompt action by local, state and federal agencies to give us the go-ahead on these projects is critical to meeting your energy needs. One project alone needs as many as 100 approvals. It is still hanging. Faster decisions are desperately needed. As time passes, the problem becomes more complex. The cost of every project goes up as the price of everything — pipelines, materials, labor, ships — goes up.

What you can do about it.

The Gas Company is urging the 12,000,000 people who live in southern California to inform themselves about the situation and to be ready to speak out; to speak out about jobs that may be lost and homes that may become cold.

As a consumer and as a participant in this area's economy, you have the right to know what's being done about your future. You can let people know that you want fast action; that you want the situation cleared up before it becomes a major crisis. The crisis need not happen. To inform you fully about the natural gas shortage and our efforts to bring you new supplies, we have printed a small brochure. Write for the Gas Company brochure on supply. On this date —

In 1782, General George Washington delivered his farewell address to the American Army near Princeton, N.J.

In 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th states of the Union.

In 1930, Haile Selassie was crowned emperor of Ethiopia.

In 1942, German troops under Field Marshal Erwin Rommel began a retreat from El Alamein in the African desert.

In 1948, President Harry S. Truman was re-elected against heavy odds.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson returned from a seven-nation tour of Asian and Pacific nations and expressed confidence that peace, security and prosperity would be achieved in Far East.

Five years ago: The Nobel Prizes in physics and chemistry went to Dr. Dennis Cabor of Stamford, Conn. for his work in photography and to Dr. Gerhard Haerzberg of Ottawa, Canada, whose studies of molecules could help fight pollution.

One year ago: President Ford fired Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger and the director of the Central Intelligence Agency, William Colby.

Today's birthday: Actor Burt Lancaster is 63.

Thought for today: Democracy is a word all public men use and none understand. — George Bernard Shaw, 1856-1950.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, an American officer in the Revolution deserted to the British and took with him plans for the fortifications at Fort Washington on Manhattan Island.

Bridge by Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

South looked over dummy quickly and saw that his slam contract was a mighty poor one. Then he set about to steal it.

He led a trump to dummy's ace and a second trump back to his king. Then he led a low diamond!

If West had played his king it would have been all over for South, but West wasn't quite up to that play at that early stage of the proceedings. West played low!

Now South rose with dummy's ace, cashed his ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy, discarded a diamond on the king of clubs, rufed dummy's last club, led a diamond and made his contract since West was thrown in with the king of diamonds and had to lead a heart or club to allow South to ruff in dummy and discard his last diamond at the same time.

Maybe West should have put up that king of diamonds at his first opportunity. He probably would have done just that if South had stripped the hand before leading the suit, but South made his play early and it worked.

Ask the Jacobys

A Georgia reader wants to know if the late Milton Work was a better bridge player than the late Wilbur Whitehead.

These were two of the greatest authorities on auction bridge. Work was a better teacher and writer, but Whitehead was a better player. Both were too old to make a really successful transition to contract.

JOHN WATKINS

Boys Republic board chief is announced

John J. Watkins, San Marino, has been named president of the board of trustees of Boys Republic, the non-profit home and school for disadvantaged youths in Chino. He succeeds Thomas A. Chandler, Pasadena, who has headed the board for the past three years.

Watkins is senior vice-president and secretary of the Earle M. Jorgensen Co., Lynwood. A long-time trustee and supporter of Boys Republic, he was an organizer of the Solteros Club of Pasadena, a group of philanthropic bachelors who have provided much support to Boys Republic since the club was founded in 1949. He also serves as a trustee of St. Luke Hospital and Polytechnic School.

Others officers included Chandler, Mrs. Theodore C. Combs, of San Marino, Dr. Henry Reining Jr., of Los Angeles and Bernard J. Ridder, of Pasadena as vice-presidents; Mrs. Dee Neice Perkins, Newport Beach, secretary; Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant III, Laguna Beach, assistant secretary; Walter C. Bateman Jr., Pasadena, treasurer, and Mrs. S. Fine, Newport Beach, assistant treasurer.

Boys Republic maintains a farm-campus at Chino and operates community residences in the Silverlake area of Los Angeles, at Pomona and at Santa Ana. Organized in 1907, the institution has served as a home and school for more than 10,000 disadvantaged boys, many of whom have become prominent citizens.

Cyclist injured in hit-run

A visiting motorcyclist from Illinois was injured along with his passenger in a collision with a hit-run driver Sunday afternoon in Pomona.

The mishap was at Walnut Avenue east of Reservoir Street where, police reported, the driver's car "clipped" the motorcycle as both were being driven west in Walnut. The motorcyclist, Michael O'Connor, 30, of Berwyn, and his passenger, Darlene Connors, 21, suffered minor injuries. O'Connor was treated for an arm injury at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The young woman declined treatment of a leg injury.

The other driver, described as a woman in a white automobile, left without stopping, police reported.

A Pasadena man was arrested late Sunday morning after his car hit a street light pole along Reservoir Street south of First Street in Pomona. The man, George Lee Steele, 40, was booked on a drunken driving charge. His passenger, Roosevelt P. Long Jr., 29, also of Pasadena, was arrested on an intoxication charge.

Both men declined treatment of minor injuries, police reported.

Cal Poly to offer 'Bugs'

Cal Poly will present "Bugs," a new musical by the Improvisational Theater Group of the Los Angeles Music Center, in the University Theater at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Nov. 10. The show is geared to junior and senior high school audiences.

ITP is a project of the Center Theater Group/ Mark Taper Forum. Since it began touring six years ago, it has played to more than 200,000 students in Los Angeles County.

"Bugs," by ITP writer-in-residence Doris Baizley, is a myth with jazz. Harry Aguado composed the music. Directed by John Dennis, the play tells the story of the insect world 400 million years ago. The ant, honeybee, moth, praying mantis, spider and cockroach decide to make a creature who will do their work for them so they can be masters of the world. The creature turns out to be man.

ALIVE AND WELL — Jeff Tobin and Lynne Lundquist romp in the Chaffey College production of "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris." The musical revue will be staged cabaret style in the Little Theater at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 10-13 and 17-20. Admission is $2. The production is recommended for adults only.

Citrus to do 'Cuckoo's Nest'

The Citrus College drama department will present Dale Wasserman's drama, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," in the auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The play is recommended for mature audiences.

The drama deals with a devil-may-care man who decides to serve a short sentence in a mental insitiution instead of doing time at hard work in a prison. His encouragement and support of the patients and his conflict with the head nurse at the institution make exciting and dramatic entertainment.

The leading role of McMurphy is played by Fred Vaugeois, Citrus College theater manager. Co-starring are Phil Florence as Billy Bibbit, the patient who stutters; and Julie Schobert, who plays Head Nurse Ratched. Other students in the cast are Kip Decker, Mary Herbener, Mike Schmitt, Lawrence Henderson, Al Mendez, Greg Duer, Tom Osbrink, Henry Morley, Bob Macias, Mike Ferree, Nick Inorvina, Dave Ankey, George Searcy, Rebecca Courtney, Angie Harms, Therin Webber and Stephanie Gabral.

The play is directed by F.G. Garlson, Citrus College speech and drama instructor. Assistants are students Therin Webber and George Acosta.

Tickets are available now at the auditorium box office. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and $1 for senior citizens.

Wonders about rites

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: For the past year I've been dating a man from Chicago and we planned to get married the end of this year. We seem compatible, enjoy the same things and the same people, but when I recently visited him at his apartment for the first time, I was shocked. It was as if the tanant was a total stranger to me. His taste in decor and neighborhood is terrible and I wonder if I should marry him? — V.K.

Dear V.K.: Before you cancel plans for the wedding, make sure that he selected whatever it is that offended and shocked you. He may have inherited from a bachelor buddy or he may just be oblivious to his surroundings. The apartment may not reflect his taste. This can be true of anyone who spends relatively little time in his or her home. This man apparently travels a great deal since, if you're contemplating marriage, I assume you saw a lot of him over the past year.

If in discussing his apartment with him you find he has chosen the furnishings and the location, you might ask how much his choices mean to him. Would he be upset if you made the choices in the home you would share?

Dr. Leslie Brownrigg of Northwestern University says we tend to want to repeat the physical environment we knew as a child. You might learn more about your friend's family and early childhood by discussing his living space. It's also important for each of us to know something about our psychological space needs because they influence many of our choices.

Give your friend a fair chance, and don't be too hard on him.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I guess I'm an extrovert. I love people and a good time. Since my late teens I've enjoyed going out with friends for a few drinks. Suddenly at 32, I'm amazed and embarrassed to find I seem unable to handle liquor. I used to be the only one who never showed or felt the effects. I can't understand this. I'm not drinking any more than I ever did. What's happening? — B.L.

Dear B.L.: Alcohol is a drug and people can develop allergies to any drug. Also, how you react to alcohol might depend on your emotional state before you started drinking.

When alcohol produces distinct personality changes or when an individual's tolerance suddenly lessens, it can mean the onset of alcoholosm, even though it may still be in the early stages. It's wise, therefore, to take stock of yourself, just as you are doing. Get help now, if you need it.

The pill also may be responsible. A recent research project at the Oklahoma Center for Alcohol and Drug Related Studies revealed that women taking the birth control pill seem to stay high longer than those not on the pill. Women taking oral contraceptives metabolize alcohol slower.

You might test yourself to see if you can relax and have a good time without alcohol. If you can't, it's important to find out why alcohol has become a crutch.

Second theater screen opposed at hearing before La Verne Council

A group of homeowners from Villa La Verne promised a "fight to the end" to keep the Mt. Baldy Drive-in Theater from intalling a second viewing screen on its premises.

The application, submitted by John E. Forte, already was approved by Zoning Administrator Charles Le Gros, and was scheduled for a routine notification before the council when James Hayslip, president of the homeowner group rose to object.

He told the council that his association was "bitterly opposed to the erection of the screen and the expansion of the theater, and we will fight it to the end."

He urged the council to withdraw permission for the operation of the theater "and get something better up there."

His statement was preceded by that of Mary Sprowl of 2919 White Ave., who charged that a second screen would block her view of the mountains. She said the second screen would bring more undesirable elements to the city.

Le Gros, in his report to the council, said he had found that the request to put up a second screen was "consistent" with the city's general plan and the applicable land use zone. Moreover, he ruled, the addition of the screen would only have a "minimal effect" upon the surrounding properties.

"Any adverse effects are justified by the benefits conferred upon the neighborhood or the community as a whole," he found.

But after the statement of the homeowners, Mayor Mike M. Morales said he had some strong feelings about the proposed expansion.

He instigated an appeal of his own from the decision of the zoning administrator, and instructed City Manager George Caswell to set the matter on the agenda as soon as possible for appeal purposes.

Survey indicates college enrollment down

CINCINNATI (AP) — College enrollments may have declined nationwide about 1 per cent this fall to an estimated 11,126,000, according to an expert who said his preliminary findings are a "surprise and a shock."

Dr. Garland Parker, executive director for Enrollment Policy and Educational Research at the University of Cincinnati, said the declines had not been expected before 1980.

Parker said predictions had called for an increase of 4.5 per cent this year following last year's increase of 9 per cent.

Parker, who will publish final tabulations in two American College Testing Program (ACT) Special Reports next spring, said his findings were based on enrollment reports received from 688 repesentative colleges and universities enrolling some 1.5 million students.

Famed Cartier diamond brings mixed response

NEW YORK (AP) — It drew them and held them and said something to each. They crowded around, came as close as they could, circled slowly, spoke in whispers.

It was the Cartier Diamond, burning quietly under glass at Cartier's on Fifth Avenue.

And to see it came women in diamonds and women who had none, the lady who flashed her own stones and the lady who jangled her dime-store gems.

It is perfect, pure fire and color, 10.07 carats of crystalized carbon, the largest flawless diamond in the world.

Mary Jane Monroe, of Birminham, Ala., sighed when she saw it. "It's so pure," she said excitedly. "It makes me shiver."

Two well-heeled matrons gave it a hard stare, then began to compare their own diamonds. "It's just too big," said one, "and gaudy."

To look at the faces mesmerized by the diamond is to feel that a new force, mined just two years ago from the African earth, has been added to the struggle for power and its symbols.

It is valued at $5 million and sought after by men who are willing to pay more.

Delicately it is held aloft in a mannequin's hand, encased in glass and surrounded by mirrors and hundreds of man-made diamonds.

The diamond dominates the room where 150 pieces of the jeweler's art are on display in a retrospective exhibit celebrating the 101st anniversary of Louis Cartier's birthday. Louis was the grandson of the founder of the famed French jewelry house.

The cases were strewn with diamonds, emeralds, rubies, sapphires, topazes, onyx, jade, lapis. They were filled with necklaces, bracelets and brooches. There were vanity cases, boxes, watches, and the fabled "mystery clocks" of fist-sized crystal chunks.

People were awed by the artistry and the many beauties.

But they came to see the diamond.

"It's ugly," said Joe Ornstein, casting a critical eye. "I'm in this business. It's not exactly ugly, it's too big. Can't make a ring out of it. Maybe a pendant. But it is gorgeous material."

"It doesn't look real," said Sheldon Klein. "And, you wouldn't last a block with that in your pocket."

Jessie Dougherty, an elderly lady with plastic and glitter earrings, tiers of bracelets and sequins in her hat, just planted herself in front of the diamond and smiled.

"I love jewelry and I came all the way from Brooklyn to see the diamond," she said. "It sure is a big one."

Date set for murder trial

Dec. 13 is the date set for the beginning of the murder trial in Pomona Superior Court of Mrs. Rachel Irene Disson, 32-year-old woman accused in the slaying March 28, 1975, of her husband in Hacienda Heights.

Mrs. Disson won dismissal last year of the charge but subsequently that dismissal was reversed by the state Appellate Court and she was ordered to stand trial. The dismissal, granted May 23, 1975, was based on a claim by the woman's attorney, Deputy Public Defender William J. Klump, that evidence against her was insufficient. The district attorney's office later won the reversal on an appeal.

The victim, Gary Disson, 35, was shot to death in the couple's home at 15434 Barata St.

CANYON FLOWER SHOPPE OPENS IN LA VERNE

EIGHT WILD, WILD WESTERN WAYS TO CUT A DEDICATION RIBBON HIGHLIGHT THE OPENING OF THE NEW MILLER'S OUTPOST STORE IN THE STUNT ARENA OF UNIVERSAL STUDIOS TOUR

Guns roared, axes flashed, bottles broke, whips cracked and boulders fell as Universal Studios Tour Stuntmen tried to break the dedication ribbon at Miller's Outpost new/old unofficial store at the Tour Stunt Arena.

In true old west tradition the stuntmen attempted any number of ways to cut the opening day ribbon. Finally, it was decided to bring in a small ceremonial cannon for a last ditch effort. With a mighty boom the cannon fired its ammunition, only to trigger off some of the special effects that highlight the Stunt Show, however the ribbon remained intact.

At long last it was decided to forget the ribbon ceremony and just settle down to being outfitted with the finest in Levi's from a nearby Miller's Outpost.

The new/old un-official Miller's Outpost Store is now a featured part of the Stunt Show at Universal Studios Tour and may be seen during the Tour's regular operating hours — weekdays from 10:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and weekends from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

$1 million in civic projects approved

City Council takes action on federal funds

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

More than $1 million in civic projects to be funded under a federal grant were approved Monday night by the Pomona City Council.

The projects include a major beautification effort, new street lighting, and a variety of other programs.

Approval of the projects was made on an item-by-item basis by the council during its review of the first two years of the Community Development Block Grant federal program.

Only two of the projects in the $1.2 million package were not approved by the council. Those two, $60,000 for home improvement loans and $100,000 for community centers, were put aside for further review.

The largest single expenditure outlined under the grant is $335,000 for beautification. The bulk of those funds will apparently be used for the design and construction of city "gateways" in the Holt Avenue-Indian Hill Boulevard, and South Garey Avenue-Corona Expressway areas.

Council member Georgia Grove, chairman of the city's beautification committee, said specific proposals will be made to the council next week.

Most popular item listed on the plan was the $160,000 allocated for new street lights. Each member of the council agreed that new and improved lights were neeeded around town and that more money should be used if it becomes available.

Again, no specific areas were designated for street lights although council members seemed to agree that the first priority should be those areas that have no lights at all.

Apparently the plan is for the city to purchase and install lights if residents in the vicinity will agree to pay the electrical power costs.

Other projects approved by the council included $60,000 for demolition of sub-standard buildings; $30,000 for historic preservation; $90,000 for coordination of housing programs in the city; $25,000 for certain public improvements; $25,000 for community development plan implementation; $60,500 for aids to the handicapped; and $30,000 for a census update.

What little controversy that surfaced over the grant program centered on the proposal for low-interest home improvement loans.

Councilman Charles Bader, vehemently opposed such a project, saying the city "is not organized, trained or equipped to get into the loan business."

"I question whether there is anyone on the city staff qualified as a banker. I just don't think the city should get in the business," he said.

Mrs. Grove stated that the city of West Covina is operating a successful program. She urged city officials to find out how it works there.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said the city might even use the funds for outright grants to persons who have improved their property in accordance with specifications adopted by the council.

The other proposal tabled by the council, community centers, was held over for the council to examine the value of each park in town having its own small center as opposed to the city having one multi-purpose center.

Although no vote was taken on that question, it appeared the majority sentiment was against the small centers at each park.

Montclair council not ready to endorse Expo

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair declared his city's moral obligation to voice concerns about a possible world's fair in Ontario and said that official endorsement would not come from the City Council until those concerns were allayed.

During the regular City Council session Monday night, Hayes led the discussion about Expo 81, the proposed world's fair to be held from May to November 1981 at the Ontario Motor Speedway. He referred to local newspaper reports of a joint meeting with the Chino City Council Oct. 11 in which both city groups commented on the effects of such a fair upon the West End communities.

Hayes pointed out that many people wrongly interpreted those concerns about transportation, sufficient housing for the fair visitors, buildings left as eyesores in the community, traffic congestion and hazards from the large influx of outsiders and direct financial benefits to the West End cities as official opposition by the Montclair and Chino city councils. Some people have charged, said Hayes, that the city officials have no right to raise these questions.

"It was clearly stated in the newspaper articles that we've taken no official position. We have the responsibility to ask questions. The (U.S.) Department of Commerce says there will be no fair if the public doesn't want it, if the cities in the area object to it. If the Department of Commerce wants input from the local governments, why haven't they communicated with us?" Hayes asked. "The promoters have held no meeting with the city councils in the area except Ontario."

The mayor questioned why the environmental impact report on the fair has not been released and why no specifics have been detailed on emergency vehicle accessibility to the fair site, housing problems, police and fire protection and a number of other important incidentals.

"We should communicate directly with the Department of Commerce and Expo 81 promoters and to the state legislators since Senator Ruben Ayala has proposed a bill to share the sales tax. We should also communicate to Congressman Jim Lloyd and to the President whoever he might be," Hayes said.

"All of this should go on the record at this time. We will take no official position of endorsement or support until we receive the full information on these concerns," Hayes declared.

The other council members concurred with the mayor's comments. Councilman Nelson Gentry said that although Mayor Paul Treadway of Ontario has attempted to arrange workshops of information for surrounding cities, the exposition promoters have provided no information to local cities.

"I hope the information we'll receive from these people will be favorable. We have high unemployment. The employment aspect is unbelievable. I hope the benefits outweigh the detriments," Gentry said.

For new regional anti-smog board

Supervisors complain about financing

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors Monday railed against various financing proposals for the new regional anti-smog board that would boost the county's cost share.

A proposal from Orange County would increase San Bernardino County's present share from $567,000 to $808,000 per year. Orange County's plan is based on amounts of pollutants emitted in each county rather than on population as the present financing is based.

"Probably 70 per cent of the dirty air in our county comes from Los Angeles and Orange counties," said Supervisor James Mayfield. "I'll accept this (new financing plan by Orange County) if they'll give us an 80 per cent discount."

Mayfield complained later that it would be "double jeopardy" if San Bernardino County pays more than three other counties on the new smog board, since "We're already subsidizing the others."

Supervisors discussed the financing methods in order to give Chairman Dennis Hansberger an idea of what position to take when the four-county Southern California Air Pollution Control District meets Friday in Pomona. That board will discuss what type of state legislation should be sought to change the financing arrangements for the new smog board that replaces the SCAPCD on Feb. 1.

The new South Coast Air Basin anti-smog board will include two representatives from Los Angeles County, and one each from Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties — plus four city representatives from each county and a state appointee.

Hansberger disclosed during Monday's discussion that San Bernardino and Riverside counties may attempt to gain veto power on the new board, much like the power they now have on the SCAPCD.

Veto power may come in exchange for relief granted Orange County, which is facing a large increase in its cost share under the new board. "They're willing to give us more power if we pay more money," explained Hansberger.

Actually, the financing arrangements could stay the same as presently mandated under AB 250, the bill by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis (R-Highland) which created the new smog board. Costs not covered by state and federal funds and industrial permit fees would be (as they are now) spread among the four counties on a population basis.

But the formula has come under fire from Orange County, which has experienced a tremendous increase in costs from $322,000 a year to $1.3 million. Also, the cities involved in the new board will not contribute any funds although they will have four representatives — and that has been criticized strongly by Los Angeles County Supervisor Pete Schabarum.

San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend said Orange County's plan to use gas tax funds to pay some of their costs holds no attraction for his county. San Bernardino County has a much longer road system to maintain than Los Angeles and Orange counties but receives less gas tax revenue than those counties.

Hansberger said jokingly that "We could rezone the desert so there won't be any gas stations between San Bernardino and Las Vegas. That'd be fun."

Other proposed financing methods such as motor vehicle fuel taxes did not meet with great enthusiasm from the supervisors.

Restaurant patron awarded $325 in suit

A Superior Court jury returned a $325 award in Los Angeles against the Cattlemen's Wharf, a La Verne restaurant, which refused admission to a patron because he was "improperly dressed."

The finding was returned Monday after a two day-trial and 2½ days of deliberations in favor of Neil S. Bezaire, a San Gabriel attorney.

Bezaire's suit, filed nearly three years ago in behalf of himself and a companion, Craig Smith, had sought $500,000 in actual and punitive damages.

The two men claimed they were refused admission to the restaurant Dec. 7, 1973, because they were not wearing "acceptable clothing" and because their hair was too long. Bezaire said when he tried to argue the decision, two policemen came up and threatened to arrest him.

The jury ruled in favor of Bezaire but declined to give a judgment to Smith. There was no explanation as to the apparent inconsistency of the decision.

The civil trial was held before Judge Edward J. O'Connor.

Second trial scheduled

The second murder trial of Richard Sinnott, 18, has been scheduled to begin Dec. 13 in Los Angeles Superior Court where a jury last week found him innocent of an accompanying robbery charge but could not decide the murder issue.

Sinnott, of Tempe, Ariz., is accused of beating to death Cal Poly professor William C. Warner in Warner's apartment in Diamond Bar early the morning of Oct. 20, 1975. Sinnott, 17 when he was arrested at his home in Arizona, subsequently was ruled unfit for consideration as a juvenile and ordered to stand trial as an adult.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Clifton Garrott again will handle the prosecution and the trial again will be in the courtroom of Los Angeles Superior Judge Billie G. Mills.

Los Angeles County sheriff's homicide detectives charged that Sinnott, and another Arizonan, accompanied Warner, 53, home from a Pomona tavern and that Sinnott beat him to death in a second-floor bedroom while the other man was in the first-floor livingroom listening to the hi-fi.

Ontario baby boy drowns in bathtub

A 14-month-old baby boy accidentally drowned in about one foot of water in a bathtub at his home at 1502 S. Pleasant Ave., Ontario, early Monday.

Ontario police reported that the baby was left alone in the tub.

Daniel Herrera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fausto Herrera, of the Pleasant Avenue address, was pronounced dead at Ontario Community Hospital about 11:20 a.m.

Paramedics called to the home found the child lifeless on the living room floor. Despite all of their efforts, the paramedics were unable to revive the baby.

Police said the baby was placed in the bath water by one of three teenagers hired to babysit the victim and his 3-year-old sister, Josue.

The teenager, Maria Torrez, told officers that she had placed the child in a bathtub and left for a short time. When she returned, she found the baby lying under the water and called the firemen. Parents were at work.

Three are injured in traffic accidents

Three persons, one of them a motorcyclist, were injured Monday in traffic accidents in Pomona.

The motorcyclist, Mark S. Ivey, 18, of Pomona, suffered a back injury in a collision with a car at Park Avenue and Chester Place. Ivey was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police said the collision occurred Monday morning when the other driver involved, Nancy C. Walden, 28, of Walnut, turned left in front of the motorcyclist as he drove southbound in Park Avenue.

Two persons were injured in a collision shortly after 1 a.m. at Towne and Bonita avenues. The drivers were John Halliday III, 18, of Claremont, and Daniel L. Cliffe, 20, of Pomona.

Halliday suffered head cuts and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. A passenger in Cliffe's car, Rubin A. Cerda, 23, of San Dimas, suffered a facial cut, but declined medical attention.

School board meeting canceled

Pomona school board canceled its public meeting tonight to devote the time completely to contract negotiations in executive session with representatives of the teachers.

Second Thomas trial scheduled for Nov. 15

The second murder trial of Gregory Thomas, 23-year-old Pomonan charged in the slaying in 1975 of 78-year-old Tessie Fern Williams, has been scheduled to begin Nov. 15 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Clark was convicted of murder, rape and burglary in the victim's death at his first trial before a Pomona Superior Court jury. The panel also later found that the case involved the so-called "special circumstances" now required to obtain a death penalty verdict, but both judgements were set aside by trial Judge Robert M. Takasugi on defense claims of new evidence in the case. The trial subsequently was transferred into Los Angeles because of its expected length.

Thomas is accused of burglarizing the victim's house, raping her and stabbing her to death before taking her television set.

Closing arguments slated today

Closing arguments were scheduled today in Pomona Superior Court in the murder trial of Cleveland Lyle Clark.

Clark, 23, of Pomona, is charged with the shotgun slaying March 8 of bartender William Hyland, 30, inside the Belinda Terrace bar at 480 Pomona Mall West where Clark had been refused service a few minutes earlier.

Clark, a former out-patient at the Tri-City Mental Health Clinic, has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity. The trial began early last month.

Right now in the United States, about 360,000 children live in foster homes or institutions. At the same time that these children wait for permanent homes, thousands of families across the country are waiting for children to adopt.

Yet current studies show that 55 per cent of all abandoned children are still in foster care after five years, and that although foster care is supposed to be temporary, a child is likely to stay four to six years and change foster homes two to three times.

In other words, many of these children will spend a quarter to a third of their entire childhoods in a series of temporary arrangements.

The dollar costs as well as the human costs are enormous. Foster care now represents the largest single item of child welfare expense on the county level. Foster care costs range from $3,000 to $6,000 a year. Annual institutional costs begin at $8,000 and soar to over $50,000.

By contrast, the cost of placing a so-called "hard to - place" child is typically about half that of a year in foster care. Moreover, it is a onetime expense.

The North American Council on Adoptable Children (NACAC) has launched a campaign with the goal of finding a permanent home by Christmas for as many of these 360,000 children as possible.

The Council is a coalition of more than 200 citizen advocate groups in the U.S. and Canada, many of which have been working for as long as 20 years to remove legal and social barriers to adoption.

Bureaucracy doesn't respond to the needs and rights of these children, says Mrs. Linda Dunn, president of NACAC. "Agency case workers are overloaded and so are court calendars. Old attitudes on everyone's part too often label these children unadoptable. That's just not true. Every child is adoptable."

To focus attention on the problem, the organization will stage its first North American Adoption Week during Thanksgiving week, holding conferences and other public events throughout the country.

Fortunately, old attitudes are beginning to change. The traditional concept of a "good adoptive applicant" no longer necessarily excludes single persons or people with disabilities.

However, thousands upon thousands of American children are still being denied the most basic of rights: the right to grow up in a permanent and loving family.

Need regulators

Amid all the criticism of excessive government regulation, we must not lose sight of the fact that underregulation would be even worse.

It was abuses in the meat packing industry, for example, that led to the establishment of the Food and Drug Administration in the first decade of the century.

Interestingly enough, the same industry is again in a clash with consumerists, and another government agency is caught in the middle.

Under interim Department of Agriculture (USDA) regulations, meat processors were beginning to utilize a machine for producing "mechanically deboned meat" as has been done in the seafood and poultry industries for years.

It is estimated that mechanical deboning, which makes more efficient use of selected portions of animal carcasses, would add at least one billion pounds of meat a year to the U.S. supply.

Seven consumer groups, however, obtained a federal court injunction ordering the USDA to withdraw its interim approval until it has completed a full evaluation of the process.

The trouble with mechanical deboning is that some bone, having the consistency of powder, is included in the meat. A processed meat using 10 per cent mechanically deboned meat would contain a bone content of about four-tenths of one per cent.

The consumer activists object that bone is a contaminant, that it may contain traces of strontium 90 or antibiotics used in animal feed and that some people may be allergic to excessive calcium. The industry counters that none of these objections have been proved by testing and that mechanically deboned meat is a valuable additional source of protein.

Here is another instance where the public interest depends on the good sense, impartiality and dedication of its regulators.

Thoughts

"Not every one who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven." — Matthew 7:21.

"Heaven is not reached at a single bound; but we build the ladder by which we rise from the lowly earth to the vaulted skies and we mount to its summit round by round." — Josiah G. Holland, American author.

Lloyd's voting record criticized

Dear Editor:

I noted that you endorsed Congressman Jim Lloyd for reelection.

I would like you to take a long look at his voting record as reported in the Congressional Record and then tell me how we can possibly afford to keep this man in office. His major aim appears to be to spend as much of the taxpayers' money as quickly as possible.

He even voted himself an automatic, annual pay raise at our expense. He won't suffer from increased inflation if we send him back to Washington, but the taxpayers certainly will.

Martha Cheney
Pomona

Dear Editor:

It came to my attention that you endorsed Jim Lloyd for reelection as Representative of the 35th Congressional Dist. I would like to call to your attention Lloyd's voting record.

On a sample of 25 key proposals, Jim Lloyd voted for 20 which would increase the size of government, therefore increase taxes. Why is this something you would approve of?

He has voted for more welfare, more foreign aid, more government jobs and a raise for Congress, just to name a few. I work for a living and pay the bill for this ridiculous spending and I resent it.

Norman Parisien
Ontario

Dear Editor:

I believe it was Abraham Lincoln who said: "It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time."

The thing that concerns me now is whether you are the "con artist" who is hoping to do the fooling or the poor idiot who is constantly being fooled when you endorse our two-faced Congressman Jim Lloyd for another term.

This man has been unresponsive in representing his constituents and irresponsible in his voting patterns. He has constantly voted to increase the burden of government by voting time and time again on passage of bills that increase our taxes and cause greater and greater inflation.

I am enclosing a copy of his voting record taken from the Congressional Record to you to look at. Why don't you try to be honest and print this voting record for all your subscribers to see right next to your endorsement or do you feel that by doing so it would show you to be the fool or the confederate of a man with his whole fist in our wallets.

MAC a forward step

Dear Editor:

In rebuttal to Michael J. Doherty of Diamond Bar, I have the following statements regarding the Municipal Advisory Committee for Diamond Bar and the 17 candidates running for the four elected posts.

Generally, when you have a newly formed organization, there was a group behind it, working for its creation. This holds true whether it be governmental, social, religious or athletic. In the case of MAC, the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association is the logical organized group to work for formation of MAC. I would not look to the scouts or churches for that purpose. We do need a group in Diamond Bar to communicate the majority voice of the residents to the County Board of Supervisors and particularly Mr. Schabarum on matters concerning Diamond Bar. Mr. Doherty states that county government is responsible and will do the right things with no input from the residents of Diamond Bar regarding zone changes, land use changes, highway improvements, park and recreation facilities, etc.

Our family has resided in Diamond Bar for 12 years. We have seen the Master Planned Community's Master Plan altered by lack of protest from all the non-members of any organizations, the non-registered voters — who seem to not really care what happens in their community.

I believe MAC is a step in the right direction. We are not large enough, nor will we have sufficient tax base for a long, long time, if ever, to become a self-sustaining city. Hence, we remain a community, governed by the county of Los Angeles. We do have the right to be able to advise those elected officials, in particular Mr. Schabarum and his deputies, of our wishes regarding matters that concern our community and its direction.

Mr. Doherty stated, "When we go to the polls Tuesday, our wishes will be heard and a resounding no vote for MAC will be heard." My wishes and his are not the same! I feel those of us who have worked in the community, with the community and for the community (be they members of the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association or not) view MAC as a forward step!

Hopefully, there are more registered voters in my corner than in Mr. Doherty's. Incidentally, I am personally acquainted with 12 of the 17 candidates for MAC and know them all to be hardworking, selfless volunteers in the community in many different endeavors. I don't know or really care how many of these 12 or of the other 5, with whom I am not acquainted, are active members of the Homeowners Association. I have never been a member of that organization myself, but I respect the works they have accomplished over the years. I did attend the forum held by the League of Women Voters to hear all 17 candidates speak and it will be difficult to choose just 4 for election. I believe each candidate sincerely applied for the elected office because he or she live in Diamond Bar and are proud of our community. Each candidate has stated he or she is willing to donate the time, whatever that time requirement is, to keep Diamond Bar the fine community it is now. — Nancy Kent, Diamond Bar

IRS chief asks for his files

WASHINGTON — Donald Alexander, the embattled Internal Revenue Commissioner, is supposed to direct tax investigations of others. Yet he has repeatedly come under investigation himself. Just recently, he tried to find out whether the Treasury Dept. is keeping criminal files on his activities.

Alexander works for the Treasury Dept., which has jurisdiction over the Internal Revenue Service. Yet astonishingly, he lodged an official request, under the Freedom of Information Act, for any files the department might have on him.

The Customs Service is also a Treasury agency, which cooperates closely with the IRS. Yet Alexander submitted a separate Freedom of Information request for the Customs Service's files on him.

Under the Freedom of Information Act, American citizens are entitled to know what's in their federal files. But it is unprecedented for a high official to request his personal files from his own associates.

Perhaps it shouldn't be surprising that Alexander is apprehensive. He was accused of blocking a tax audit of Sen. Joseph Montoya, D.-N.M. Alexander also impeded another tax investigation, which involved his former law partners. He protested his innocence in both cases.

Subsequently, Customs identified Alexander as a possible defendant in a criminal investigation of Procter and Gamble, the soap colossus, which has its headquarters in his hometown of Cincinnati.

Back in 1972, Procter and Gamble discovered it owed import duties, totaling $29,000, on toys purchased from Japan. The firm sought the counsel of Alexander, who was then a respected Cincinnati attorney. He advised the company to ignore the $29,000 deficiency but to pay all future duties. A Customs investigation alleged that Procter and Gamble made false statements to evade the duty payments. Alexander was accused of conspiring to defraud the government.

The $29,000 was small change for the soap kings. But the company could have been hit with penalties equaling the domestic value of the toys. This could have added up to millions of dollars.

Customs referred the case to the Justice Dept. Our sources say that Customs also asked the U.S. attorney in Seattle, where the toy shipments arrived, to subpoena Alexander. The prosecutor refused, saying Alexander violated no laws.

The IRS also showed us a personal letter to Alexander from former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. The letter declares: "I see nothing unethical in the advice you rendered (to Procter and Gamble) and to indicate that some type of criminal conduct may have been involved is ludicrous."

Other sources close to the investigation concluded that Alexander's conduct in fact was unethical. But they agreed it wasn't illegal.

Alexander began to stew, nevertheless, over the results of the Customs investigation. He asked his associates at Customs and the Treasury what the files showed. They assured him that they had not compiled extensive files on his activities.

Still suspicious, Alexander invoked the Freedom of Information Act and submitted a formal request on official IRS stationery for his files. His assistant, Thomas Glynn, explained to our associate Marc Smolonsky that Alexander wanted to find out whether Customs had made an "improper investigation" of him.

Customs responded, deadpan, with a routine letter demanding: "Before we initiate a review of Customs records, it is necessary that you submit a notorized statement ascertaining your identity."

Burning over the indignity, the internal revenue commissioner provided the notorized proof that he was, indeed, Donald Alexander. He also requested that all fees be waived, contending that the records would be "in the public interest."

He got back a batch of old newspaper clippings from his Treasury file. The Customs file on him contained an investigative report. But it was so expurgated that he couldn't have found it very informative.

CURIOUS CONTRIBUTIONS: Vernon W. Thompson is chairman of the Federal Elections Commission. It is his sworn duty to administer the election law.

Now it looks as if he may have to crack down on some of his own contributors. They formed a "People for Thompson" organization in 1974 to re-elect him to Congress. But, unhappily, he was unseated by Rep. Alvin Baldus, D.-Wis.

Thompson found new employment running the Federal Elections Commission. He thought his fund-raising friends had disbanded. But they turned up unexpectedly, still bearing the "People for Thompson" banner, in this campaign.

These People for Thompson, it turned out, are now for Adolph Gunderson. He is a former Thompson aide who decided to run for Congress himself. The People for Thompson group, accordingly, coughed up $5,000 for Gunderson.

The way the law is written, unfortunately, the group must be registered as a multicandidate committee before it can contribute over $1,000 to a campaign. Having neglected this formality, the group then compounded the felony by making token $25 contributions to four different candidates.

The purpose was to qualify the group as a multicandidate committee. But this, too, failed to comply with the legal technicalities.

Just in jest

I have long been convinced that half truths are the pearls which keep political candidates in business. But never in this nation's long history of political dissembling have they been bandied about with more seeming authority than they are today. Presently one of the more interesting examples of this type of white lying has to do with the employment situation in this country.

"More people are now employed than ever before in our history," thunders one candidate.

"Our unemployment rate is the highest since the Great Depression," counters the other candidate.

And believe it or not, both are right. But unfortunately few of us take the trouble to analyze and simplify those statements. The truth is, if the previous employment high was 100 and today's high is 101, we have, of course, set an all time employment record.

But if the previous unemployment rate was 5 per cent and today's is 8 per cent, it stands to reason that more people are now collecting unemployment insurance. — Why oh why, I wonder, can't political opponents first agree on the basic facts and, having accurately defined the problem, go on from there to tell us how they would correct it?

Access to newspapers

By EARL G. WATERS

Although, momentarily, the attention of the press and those who care about its freedom has centered on the struggle for the reporter's right to confidentiality, another threat to an uninhibited press is brewing. This is the attempt to compel the substitution of a nebulous doctrine of "right of access" for editorial news judgment.

What the proponents of the doctrine seek is a modicum of control by the government over newspapers to compel the printing of anyone's and everyone's views regardless of the newsworthiness of such opinions. They hold that the constitutional guarantee of free speech will become useless unless the government imposes requirements upon newspapers similar to regulations of the FCC for radio and television.

That the threat is real is seen in the "right of reply" statute adopted in Florida. Although it was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court the efforts for some form of government regulation for compulsory space in newspapers have not diminished.

In support of these efforts the realities of newspaper publication in today's world are cited. The high costs of equipment and newsprint and payrolls have worked to dwindle competition. The merging of newspapers and the acquisition of independent journals by chains have created a "monopolistic influence" held by "news corporations". Viewed with great alarm is the disappearance of opposition daily newspapers in the major cities throughout the land as well as their absence in most of the rest of the communities.

The opinion is that because newspaper owners are now important industrialists they think and act as members of the economic group to which they belong and block from the pages of their papers political viewpoints counter to their interests.

There is a certain validity to the criticisms made of newspapers. No doubt some horrible examples of one-sided coverage by a specific newspaper can be shown. But most newspapers demonstrate a remarkable sense of responsibility for fairness both in the news columns and editorial pages. Almost all devote space, expanded by many, to reader opinions. Many have instituted ombudsmen to field complaints. But to compel, in the name of free speech, newspapers to give equal space to everyone's counter views would have a chilling effect on the publication of all news.

Neither is the contention that free speech demands the right of access by everyone to the established newspapers. True the costs of competing financially with an established press is prohibitive to most. But the cost of pamphleteering is not. Anybody with a mimeograph can get into circulated publication. An article in last month's New West describes the proliferation of newsletters and recants how a recent shoestring newspaper effort in the Bay Area has blossomed into a profitable 75,000 circulation.

The subject of "right of access to newspapers" is treated in depth in an article in the latest Santa Clara Law Review by Civil Liberties Union lawyer Michael Gary Chatzky and 1976 law graduate William Eric Robinson. They trace the trend of newspaper monopoly and the various court decisions relating to the pertinent first amendment rights. Conceding the acceptance of the access doctrine "lies somewhere in the delicate process of implementation" and that any regulation should be carefully controlled with compulsion "expressly limited to the provision for space for responsible public interests groups and individuals on a revolving basis" they project that government policy to foster commerce "must be reaffirmed and implemented as swiftly and promptly and decisively as possible if our society is to be as contemporary in its exchange of thoughts as it is in the exchange of products.

Ann Landers

A revolting development

Dear Ann Landers: Someone on the radio reported that the National Institute on Alcoholism estimates that approximately one million high school kids (which is one in 20) get drunk on the average of once a week.

Can this be true? If it is, what is causing our young people to turn to alcohol? What help is available for the teenage alcoholic? Please enlighten me and others who are wondering about this. — Niagara Falls Reader

Dear N.F.R.: The figures sound accurate to me.

Many teenagers are into alcohol because it's easier to get than other drugs. (I say "other" because alcohol IS a drug.) Moreover, it is legal for adults, and parents aren't about to hassle their kids about it when they drink themselves.

Any teenager who figures he has a drinking problem can call Alcoholics Anonymous. (It's in the phone book.) AA will send over someone in the same age bracket to talk about attending meetings. I heartily endorse AA. They have had a far better record of success than the religious groups and the psychiatrists.

Dear Ann Landers: I was just reading that Americans spent over $650 million on dolls last year. They were the most popular toy of all.

But dolls aren't purchased for their looks, it's what they DO that attracts buyers. They walk, talk, cry tears, crawl, sneeze, and wet their pants.

The biggest-selling doll last year was "Skipper." When you twist her arm, she swells up in certain places and produces a pair of breasts. This year you will be able to buy a doll that not only has breasts, but "winks and smiles suggestively."

What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — What Next?

Dear What: Do I HAVE to think about it? I'd rather not. The whole idea is revolting.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend sent me the following which he copied off a bookmark. It reflects such an optimistic philosophy I hope you will share it with your readers. Everyone over 40 will appreciate the lift. — I Read You In Bangkok

Dear Faraway Friend: Loved your "bookmark philosophy" and I'm delighted to share it:

"Youth is not a time of life, it is a state of mind, a product of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions, a predominance of courage over timidity — an appetite for adventure.

"Nobody grows old by living a number of years. People grow old when they desert their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul.

"Worry, self-doubt, fear and anxiety — these are the culprits that bow the head and break the spirit.

"Whether 16 or 70, there exists in the heart of every person who loves life the thrill of a new challenge, the insatiable appetite for what is coming next. You are as young as your faith and as old as your doubts.

"So long as your heart receives from your head messages that reflect beauty, courage, joy and excitement, you are young. When your thinking becomes clouded with pessimism and prevents you from taking risks, then you are old — and may God have mercy on your soul."

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teenage Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Speedometer for passenger?

Should a second speedometer be added to the right side of a car's dashboard so the passenger thereby can take note of its readings and offer comment? Some police in Belgium think so. They say their traffic statistics prove that driving husbands accompanied by their wives get into fewer accidents than do fellows who drive alone. Our Love and War man sympathizes with their position, but not much.

If any of those in your family show up for dinner tonight — congratulations — you might spring this one at the table! Who can jot down five odd figures that add up to 14? Say figures, not numbers, please note. Isn't easy. Dessert goes to the party who offers three 1's and an 11.

RED LETTER DAY

Q. "Where did we get the term 'red letter day'?"

A. Ordinary dates on the old calendars were printed in black, special holidays in red.

Remember, no place in any ocean is more than 1,500 miles from land.

That renowned English artist Thomas Gainsborough used paint brushes with six-foot handles.

More than one medical expert now claims the best cure for hiccups is the swallowing of a big spoonful of dry table sugar.

Pigs, like men, can turn into full-blown alcoholics, according to the lab researchers, although pigs when drunk haven't yet been observed to behave like men when drunk, pecularily.

HAPPINESS IS

It has been said repeatedly that to be happy a citizen needs five things: Health, freedom, economic independence, congenial work and reciprocated love. There's little debate that the foregoing is correct. What the argument is all about has to do with the order of importance.

In the Dutch, says our Language man, the word "koek" means "cake," and its diminutive is "koekje" which means "little cake," and that clearly is the origin of our word "cookie," got that?

No fan of the comic strips should fail to learn that a real Dr. Rex Morgan practices in Sioux City, Iowa.

Socializing folk in this country talk mostly about the weather probably because it's the subject least likely to hit a personal note that might offend. But among some portion of the 466 million Moslems, the weather is not regarded as an appropriate topic for light conversation. Ill-advised comment on same, it's felt by many, appears to criticize the arrangements of The Deity.

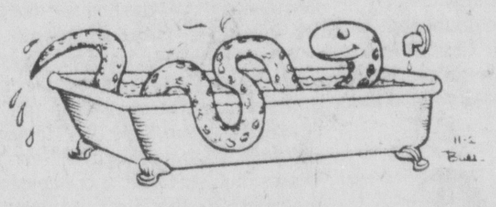
Garter snake likes own pool



DEAR DR. MILLER: I've fixed up an aquarium which is 20 inches long for my garter snake, El Lopo. Is that long enough? The other thing is, I spray leaves for his drinking water like I used to do for my lizard. Is that best, or is a drinking cup? — A.N.

DEAR A.N.: The aquarium's long enough — If El Lopo's short enough. Figure his home should be at least one and a half times his length (and half his length wide). As far as fluids are concerned, spraying leaves is all right for a lizard, but El Lopo would do better with a more concentrated quantity. What he'd really prefer would be a bathtub big enough for complete immersion on occasion, rather than a puny drinking cup.

DEAR DR. MILLER: If your canary has a black toe, does it mean anything? I never noticed that he had it before, but I looked real close and he sure does now. — P.T.

DEAR P.T.: Odds are that black toe means real trouble for your tiny bird. It's not uncommon for canaries to develop foot circulatory problems, in the toes in particular. The end result is probably gradual loss of circulation starting with the tip and extending back up the toe to its base. Progressive darkening of the skin usually indicates increased loss of circulation. Rarely can a black toe be salvaged. Intensive treatment is often required if the other toes (and the bird) are to be saved. Consequently, a darkening toe on a caged bird usually indicates a dangerous, potentially progressive circulatory problem which, if ignored, may eventually become fatal.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Was just given Hamburger, a nine-month old part dog part German shepherd. Some say a choke collar is dangerous, others say if you put it on right it's OK. Could it help me train Hamburger? — L.T.

DEAR L.T.: A choke collar when properly used, (that is, to help communicate to the dog what is desired — not as a choking tool) is an important piece of training equipment. It can, if improperly used, actually become a "choke" collar, but if so that's the fault of the trainer on the other end of the leash. Don't blame the collar. When it is worn properly, it hangs loosely around the neck whenever tension from the leash is relieved. If the choke collar remains snug around the neck when there is no leash tension, it's probably on backwards and should be removed and replaced correctly.

A winner has problems, too

According to my mail, people all over the country who have never won so much as a Reader's Digest Sweepstakes or a Pillsbury Bake-off have finally hit it lucky.

They pick up their phones and a husky-voiced lady informs them they have just won a cemetery plot, Choked up at the idea of being an instant landowner, they cannot see the ramifications of the offer.

What begins as a simple family discussion over your eternal future ends up as a shout-off in the Domestic Olympics.

Here's what happened to one couple in Florida. According to Phyllis, when she told her husband Cecil they had won a plot he said, "You can have it."

"What's that supposed to mean?" she asked. "Where are you going to be buried?"

"Not where," he said smugly, "but when."

"I'm not surprised," she snorted. "You never go anyplace with me. I thought at least we could be buried together . . . maybe even be cremated and have our ashes intermingled in the same urn."

"I do not plan on spending my eternity resting ash to ash with anyone. Besides, knowing your mother and her aversion to dust, we'd get thrown out the first week with the newspapers. I swear she throws out newspapers with the rubber bands still on them."

"I do not believe you are saying these things," said Phyllis, weeping softly into her handerchief.

"Why are you so upset?" he asked.

"IT'S YOUR ATTITUDE. It's going to be just like Christmas eve, isn't it?"

He put down his paper. "You've lost me, Phyllis. WHAT is going to be like Christmas eve?"

"My funeral. You're going to whip out at the last minute and throw something together. If Revco doesn't have it, I'll go without it."

"You want me to shop?"

"There are a lot of options. There's the talking tombstone, for example, with a picture on it."

"You're putting me on, Phyllis. Say you're putting me on."

"I am not putting you on. They have them with recordings and a picture of your loved one."

"If you think I'm paying good money to stand in front of a stone and listen to a recording of you nagging, 'Cecil, take out the garbage before it smells,' you're crazy."

"Let these words go forth around the land, Cecil Hardheart, if you put on my stone that picture of me taken last year in Florida when I was sick as a dog on that fishing boat, you'd better hope you win a cemetery plot of your own."

Sometimes, even when you win, you lose.

Dr. Lamb

Some good, bad about aspirin

DEAR DR. LAMB — Prolonged use of arthritic drugs produced such undesirable side effects that I was hospitalized with an irritated pancreas. An internist advised free use of Ascriptin (aspirin with Maalox). I have read that large doses of aspirin cause bleeding of the stomach and intestines. Please advise me as to the soundness of large doses of Ascriptin for control of arthritic pain and soreness.

DEAR READER — Ascriptin is aspirin with Maalox as you stated. As such it is "buffered" meaning it helps prevent the aspirin from irritating the stomach, at least to some small extent.

Aspirin will burn or irritate tissue if a small piece of it is allowed to remain in contact with tissue for a period of time. You can help prevent this problem by crushing it and putting it in a half cup of milk. Or you can take it with food. This means it will not be absorbed as rapidly and its action in relieving pain will be delayed. However, the action will last longer.

It is true that aspirin will prolong bleeding time. That is why its use in preventing strokes and heart attacks is under study. It would probably also help prevent any of the clotting tendencies that occur in some women taking birth control pills. The lower rate of heart attacks and strokes in patients with arthritis taking aspirin was one of the early tip-offs that aspirin might be useful in this regard.

I cannot recommend the use of aspirin to prevent heart attacks at this time. The value of the medicine for this purpose as opposed to its hazards is now undergoing a massive national study. After that is done you will have a good answer about its usefulness and limitations.

Two ordinary (five grain or 300 milligram) aspirin tablets will double the bleeding time for as long as seven days. For this reason anyone who has any medical problems associated with bleeding should not use aspirin in any form. This includes people with peptic ulcers or any tendency to bleed from the digestive system. Women should not take aspirin in any form for at least two weeks before delivering a baby.

If you do not have any problem that might be associated with bleeding the use of the aspirin is not likely to cause you any problems — and to the extent that it may have some beneficial effects in preventing heart attacks and strokes — it may help.

Aspirin remains the best all around medicine to relieve pain in joints or muscular aching as commonly occurs in degenerative arthritis — the kind you get as you get older. You do not need to take large doses for this effect.

In much larger doses, prescribed by a doctor, it can be used to decrease inflammation as occurs in rheumatoid arthritis. How much you take depends upon what is being treated. There are a number of medicines on the market that will relieve pain and can be used for osteoarthritis, but do not decrease inflammation and cannot be used for that purpose in treating rheumatoid arthritis.

To give you more information about aspirin and related medicines you might want to use to relieve pain I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

New day an exciting event

As I began to run early one morning, I was completely overwhelmed with the excitement of a new day that was breaking. With a sliver of moon still remaining, the sun came bursting through over shadow-backed mountains with a resplendent glory of gold. The air was sweet and clean. What a glorious new day! What a beautiful land of beginning again called Now.

What a gift Today is! After all, you didn't ask the sun to rise this morning. You didn't ask for the new day. God gave it to you. It is His gift — the gift of beginning again — a new opportunity to live a better more beautiful life than yesterday!

I invite you to share in the excitement of this new day by repeating with me, "Good morning, God. What are you up to today? I want to be a part of it."

Now get set for a wonderful day with God as your friend.

Ram QBs still not real happy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Harris is happy, Ron Jaworski is unhappy and Pat Haden sits in the wings always ready as the Los Angeles quarterback situation revolves.

Harris started as No. 1 and still holds that position despite being hurt on Aug. 28 and again on Oct. 11. Twice he's made successful comebacks.

He passed for two touchdowns in the first half as the Rams built a 31-3 halftime lead. Before he went out in the fourth quarter, the Grambling product had hit 14 of 25 passes for 208 yards.

"I'd like to have known sooner that I was starting because I can get prepared better for a game," commented Harris, who didn't learn until Saturday that he would start. "All this writing about the quarterback situation is tearing us apart."

Harris said he had no doubt that he was No. 1 and Coach Chuck Knox agreed that if the black quarterback was 100 per cent physically, he is the Rams' starter.

Jaworski, the third-year pro from Youngtown State who is playing out his option, declared unhappily, "What really bothers me is in one week I go from the penthouse to the basement. I'm going to talk to the coach this week. If they feel I'm not up to it and I'm not going to play, then there's no reason to stick around."

Jaworski, who suffered a broken shoulder against Atlanta on Sept. 12, started against New Orleans a week ago but gave way to the rookie Haden who tossed the winning pass in a 16-10 victory.

Jaworski added, "We are certainly fortunate to have three good quarterbacks with everyone rallying around them."

Rhodes Scholar Haden, from Southern California, got the call to replace Harris when the Seattle game was out of the Seahawks reach. He threw for one touchdown.

When both Harris and Jaworski were hurt, Haden played the whole game against Minnesota in the 10-10 overtime tie on Sept. 19. He started the next week against the New York Giants but suffered a concussion at the end of the first quarter and Jaworski took over.

The Rams won that one 24-10, and now lead the National Football Conference West with a 6-1-1 record.

Jack Youngblood, a defensive leader for the Los Angeles club, commented on the return of Harris:

"It is sort of settling. The offense needs one real leader. It's just like when Washington was alternating Sonny Jurgensen and Bill Kolmer. It just doesn't add any stability or balance."

Knox admitted that when the injuries caused the switching of the quarterbacks, "we didn't have the continuity that we should."

Harris concluded, "I felt like I was supposed to play all along. I never was thinking any other way about it. But it's going to take all of us on the team to get to the Super Bowl. So now, I just hope we can concentrate on a team effort and get away from all this controversy."

Owens big plus for UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When James Owens was recruited from Norte Del Rio High School in Sacramento, football Coach Dick Vermeil and track Coach Jim Bush both were happy.

Vermeil was happy because Owens looked like a good defensive back prospect. Bush was happy because Owens looked like a sensational high hurdler.

But Owens kept telling both of them he was a running back, and finally last Sautrday the 5-foot-11, 175-pound speedster got his chance against Washington and gained 123 yards.

"Last year I was never in a position to make a decision on where he would play," said first-year coach Terry Donahue on Monday. Donahue coached the offensive line last year, and Owens played defense—sparingly.

"Once I became a head coach, I decided I still wanted him to play defense. But I knew he didn't have a real liking for defense, so before the season we switched him to wide receiver.

"But he kept telling us he was really a running back, and I knew from seeing him in high school that he had the potential to be a great wishbone halfback. Based on my high school evaluation, I was very excited about his potential.

"So we switched him to halfback in practices early in the season. After a couple of weeks, I looked at him and thought maybe I had made the wrong decision.

"But Billie Matthews, our running back coach, said, 'Let's stay with it for a while.' Well, we did and you saw what he did Saturday.

"He ran inside and outside and he did a fine job, but he's still got a long way to go. He's still not where he has to be and his blocking can get a lot better. And his ball-carrying instincts are still not that good. A couple of times Saturday he cut the wrong way.

"But his future as a running back at UCLA is still ahead of him."

Owens got his break to play when No. 1 running back Wendell Tyler suffered a wrist injury and someone had to play alongside Theotis Brown. With Owens taking the pressure off, Brown gained 220 yards to set a school record as the third-ranked Bruins won 30-21. Brown bettered the school single-game record of 183 set by Kermit Johnson against Arizona in 1972.

Donahue reminded writers Tyler remains the Bruins' No. 1 tailback.

"Wendell is the best running back in the history of UCLA," said Donahue. Tyler holds the UCLA career rushing record of 2,959 yards. "It would be ridiculous for me to consider moving him from his No. 1 tailback spot."

Owens, Donahue said, remains the No. 2 running back.

Bush has said Owens is one of the fastest starters out of the blocks of any hurdler he's seen, but Donahue said, "I know he's supposed to be fast on the track, but he doesn't appear that fast on the football field. Maybe it's his inexperience. Maybe he's still feeling his way coming out of his stance.

"But I don't think you can get any faster out of a stance than Tyler."

National TV sparks Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Motivation takes many forms. For Joe Ehrmann, it was the presence of national television. For John Dutton, it was the memory of a rookie season best forgotten. And for Lydell Mitchell, it was the fact that it was "a big game."

Whatever turned them on, Ehrmann, Dutton, Mitchell and the rest of the Baltimore Colts were ready for Monday night's nationally televised game against Houston, and the Oilers could do nothing to dampen the spirit.

The Colts, playing in their first Monday night National Football League game in four years, turned Houston turnovers into early touchdowns and held the Oilers' explosive offense in check for a 38-14 victory.

The triumph was the Colts' fifth in a row and gave them a 7-1 record and a two-game lead over New England in the American Conference East. Houston now is 4-4 after losing its third consecutive game.

"We were high," said Ehrmann, who had four tackles and a quarterback sack from his right defensive tackle position. "A lot of it was team pride; not a feeling that we had been slighted by TV, but we just had the chance to say, 'Hey, here we are.'"

The Colts gave up 190 net yards to Houston, but most of them came in two late touchdown drives. At the half, the Oilers had minus-seven yards passing and just 54 yards yards total offense.

Dutton, the third-year defensive end who also had one of the Colts' six sacks, agreed that TV helped get the team up for Houston. But for himself, Dutton added, it was the lingering image of a 2-12 record his rookie year with Baltimore that provided the boost.

"I've been there (with a loser) and I don't ever want to go back," he said. "It's a force that keeps us all working very, very hard. It was a learning experience, I guess, but I don't want to relive it."

Mitchell, whose 136 yards pushed his AFC-leading total to 796, said he wasn't thinking that much about national exposure or atoning for past shortcomings when he took the field Monday night.

"It was a big game, that's all," he said. "In a game like that, all you have to do is wire me up, let me out there and I'm ready to play.

"It used to be I wasn't sure of myself in comparison to other backs. Now, I seriously consider myself the No. 1 back in footbali."

The Colts' defense forced two key turnovers early, first recovering a Ronnie Coleman fumble at the Houston 13, then intercepting a halfback option pass by Coleman at the Oilers' 22.

Both times Baltimore followed with touchdowns, the first by Roosevelt Leaks on a fouryard run and the second by Don McCauley on a one-yard plunge. Leaks and McCauley each finished with two TDs.

The lead swelled to 21-0 by halftime and grew to 31-0 by early in the fourth quarter when Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda pulled his regulars.

Houston Coach Bum Phillips also pulled one of his starters early, but his decision to bench Dan Pastorini resulted from what the quarterback called "a disciplinary thing." Neither man would discuss specifics of the incident.

Poly cagers have potential

It's hard to believe but the college basketball season is only three weeks away.

The football season always goes too fast or at least it seems so when you get older.

This could be a good year on the hardwood for valley fans since Cal Poly has the potential of fielding an outstanding team.

On paper, the Broncos appear to have their finest team ever. But teams don't win games on potential.

Coach Don Hogan, who guided the Broncos to a third place finish in last year's NCAA Division II West Regionals, is optimistic about the season but also realizes there is a big challenge for assistant Allan Van Winkle and himself.

"Things are encouraging," Hogan said in reviewing the first two weeks of practice. "We have people who have the talent. For once, our depth is outstanding."

Hogan and Van Winkle will get an early indication of what to expect when the Broncos open the season on Monday night, Nov. 22, at home against the Athletes in Action featuring former UCLA center Ralph Drollinger. Following the only home appearance until January, Poly will hit the road with a road trip to Dayton, South Carolina, Notre Dame and Kansas State. Later on, Hogan will take his team against the University of San Francisco and Nevada Reno.

Obviously, a schedule like that will do nothing for a team's won-loss record but Hogan isn't concerned about it. The important thing is getting the team ready for the California Collegiate Athletic Association campaign which starts in January.

"We're not going to be overly excited about the early season results," Hogan said. "What we want to do is learn enough so we can be very good at our own level."

Good size for once

For the time in memory, Poly will have size thanks to the additions of junior college transfers Carl Jones (7-0) and Don Johnson (6-11) from Chicago area JCs.

Having the luxury of having players of that altitude is quite a challenge for the coaches but they are enjoying it.

"I'm encouraged because it is a healthy situation," Hogan said. "Both of them have the talent. Johnson right now is the best center because of his mobility and speed. Jones has been injured so his progress has been delayed.

Hogan also added that Mark Bernhard (6-7), last year's starter, is fighting for his position.

"Mark has improved tremendously," Hogan said. "He is more mature and the competition for the job has helped him."

Hogan says Poly will be using the running game but he also wants to have the ability to work for the high percentage shot if the strategy calls for it.

"The object is to play intelligent ball consistently," he said. "We can't afford to beat ourselves."

Ticket prices for Poly home games this season are very reasonable. Family season tickets cost $20 and two adult season tickets are $10. Individual game tickets cost $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children.

* * *

In other college basketball news, former Mt. San Antonio College star George Schader is getting ready for his senior season at Stanford. He averaged 13.7 points and seven rebounds per game for the Cardinals last winter.

Long Beach State is very optimistic. In the first press release about the 49ers' basketball team, the publicist asks, "Will Long Beach take over the domination of West Coast college basketball?" That's a mighty big question which UCLA fans should find very interesting. UCLA is best in the West until somebody can beat the Bruins on the court.

UC Riverside will be playing four home games this season at the city's new downtown arena, Raincross Square. The opener against cross-town rival Cal Baptist, a power in the NAIA last season, should draw a full house. Unfortunately, UCR will still be using its old campus gym for league games.

Freshman Mark McQuaid from Chaffey High has been impressive thus far at Idaho State. He is one of three California freshmen at Pocatello. The others are Paul Wilson from Fontana and Ernie Wheeler, the son of the Cal Poly San Luis Obispo coach.

Angels hire Del Crandall

ANAHEIM (AP) — Del Crandall, a native of Southern California, says he's happy to join the California Angels as the American League team's first base coach.

"It was great to join the Angels on a minor league level during the past season," Crandall said Monday after the club announced he'd been hired.

"But now, having been born and raised in this area, it's quite exciting to be able to join the club on a major league level. It's truly a thrill."

Crandall, 46, was born in nearby Ontario and grew up in Fullerton, where he now resides. He had joined the Angels organization earlier this year as the manager of Salinas of the California League.

A four-time Golden Glove award winner, Crandall had a 16-year major league batting average of .254, playing for Milwaukee, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

He became manager of the Milwaukee Brewers in 1972, and remained with the Brewer organization until joining the Angels this year.

Pros not for Schembechler

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's Bo Schembechler has often indicated he wouldn't take a pro football coaching job.

Monday the highly successful coach of the nation's top-ranked college team reinterated his reason.

"I'd always fear coaching someone who's more important than I am," he said with a grin.

But Schembechler hastened to add that his star fullback-tailback Rob Lytle and wingback Jim Smith "are more important and I am—but they don't know that. And they don't make more money than I do."

In his eight years at Michigan, Schembechler's teams have won 73 games, lost nine and tied three. Of those losses, four have been to archrival Ohio State and two have come in bowl games. One of the ties was with Ohio State.

USC tops Pac 8 in five departments

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — The Southern California Trojans are putting their usual indelible mark on the Pacific-8 Conference football statistics.

The Trojans top in the league in five of eight team departments, including team offense, defense, scoring offense, scoring defense and rushing defense.

After losing their opening game to Missouri, Southern Cal has won six straight, averaging five touchdowns a game. The Trojan defense has refused to yield a touchdown in four of its last six games and has intercepted 10 per cent of its opponents' passes.

Troy is averaging 475 yards of offense per game compared to undefeated UCLA's 438 yards. The Uclans, however, have the best running game in the conference, averaging 352½ yards per game to Southern Cal's 317.

Trojan running back Ricky Bell leads the conference in scoring with 74 points and in total rushing with 1,154 yards. UCLA backs Theotis Brown and Wendel Tyler are ranked No. 2 and 3 with 793 and 781 yards, respectively.

Stanford quarterback Guy Benjamin and Jack Thompson of Washington State are the top passers in the league. Benjamin is averaging 258 yards per game and has passed for a total of 1,548 yards and nine TDs in six games. Thompson, who has played two more games than Benjamin, has passed for 1,720 yards and 10 touchdowns. He is averaging 215 yards per game.

Oregon State, 1-7, has the best pass defense. The Beavers' secondary has held their opponents to an average of just 111½ yards per game through the air.

'Bird' named Tiger of Year

DETROIT (AP) — Tiger rookie pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych was voted Tiger of the Year Saturday by the Detroit Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The colorful righthander, who finished the season with a 19-9 record, picked up 31 votes. Outfielder Ron LeFlore received the other four votes.

Fidrych pitched in 31 games, all but two as a starter. He had a 2.34 earned run average, struck out 97 and walked 53.

Erratic officiating bothering local coaches

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Erratic officiating continued to bother local college grid coaches last week.

Both Roland Ortmayer of La Verne and Mike Merandi of Chaffey voiced complaints over some questionable calls in their contests last week at the Progress Bulletin's football luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona Monday.

Although neither blamed officiating for their team's losses, they obviously weren't pleased with the work of the men in the striped shirts.

The Player of the Week awards on the four-year level went to Azusa Pacific running back Darryl Richard and La Verne linebacker Ole Ellingson. Winning the JC honors were Citrus offensive guard Dick Smallwood and Chaffey defensive tackle Vince Sgantas.

Others nominated at the four-year level were APC defensive guard Michael Price and Pomona-Pitzer defensive end Randy Roddy.

Quoting the coaches:

ORTMAYER, La Verne: "We felt the Redlands game would be a critical one in our conference, and it turned out to be more critical for us than them, since we lost it. They beat us in just about every department, it was not one of our better games.

"I have no complaints about the loss, but it was a frustrating day for us with the officials at the game. I become irritated when an official says something is strictly a judgment call when in reality it is an interpretation of a rule.

"If it is a judgment call, then I as a coach should have no say in the matter. But I think they should listen if it's a case of rules interpretation. But in Saturday's game the officials wouldn't listen to me, they said I could not have anything to do with a judgment call. In that case there is one judgment I can make after the game, and that's that in my judgment the officials were not very good.

"Two plays were definitely questionable to me, especially after watching the films. One involved a Whittier fair catch of a punt, the other when we blocked one of their punts. Both calls went against us, which did not help our cause any.

"This week we play Pomona-Pitzer, they should be real proud of the way they played against Whittier last week. If they play that way against us it will be a real good game."

MIKE MERANDI, Chaffey: "Two real good football teams met last week at Citrus, one team turned the ball over five times and was penalized over 100 yards, the other team did not turn the ball over and was penalized 60 yards. That was the difference in the game.

"We played well, those turnovers just killed us. Our defense was on the field too long vs. a club like Citrus which has so much fire-power.

"No, I wasn't happy with the officiating. Again, it was a case of a guy saying a couple calls were strictly his judgment. He refused to discuss them with me, which really makes me mad when I can't even get an explanation of what the penalty was all about. I'll tell you this, two of last Saturday's officials will never work another Chaffey game if I have any say in the matter.

"This week we go against San Bernardino Valley, they have super talent and will be a real tough opponent. It will be tough for our guys to get up for them, after the loss to

ATHLETE'S FRIEND — Trainer Karen R. Miller gives Cal Poly pitcher Randy Schauer some assistance with his ailing arm. Karen and Sandy Steward are Poly trainers.

Last male domain ends

By BILL LANGLEY
Sports Editor

Cal Poly is the latest university to see women invading the last male domain.

Two women trainers are busy at work handling the needs of both the male and female athletes and apparently the need for women trainers everywhere far exceeds the supply.

It's all a basic result of the Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments Act which rules for equality for the females.

Karen R. Miller, who is often confused with women's tennis coach Karen L. Miller, serves as a fulltime trainer for Poly's many sports in the expanded women's athletic program.

Sandy Steward, a graduate student from Azusa, helps head male trainer Chris Mumaw with the men's teams. She travels with the football team and is right there on the sidelines to offer her medical help.

It's obvious both of them love their work.

Sandy is actually the pioneer at Poly as far as female trainers are concerned since she did some work last year while Karen was the pioneer at Cal State Fullerton.

The usual questions are about the language and possible nakedness.

But it's really no problem at Poly since the training room is very visable anyway from a public hall.

As far as the language is concerned, the two females don't create much of a stir.

"I've noticed the men usually watch their language for awhile but not so much as they get to know you," Karen explained.

In fact, it can be said the two girls are just about treated like the guys.

"If you act professional, they will treat you just like a guy," Karen added. "If you're genuine in your interest in their injuries, they will treat you well."

Working and traveling with the football team is nothing really new for Sandy, who was a cheerleader last year.

"I've known most of the players anyway so there has been no problems," she said.

Sandy was taping injured gridders Rich Kluck and Max Weischedel, two of the defensive stars on the Broncos.

"I love it," Weischedel said. "It's nice to have so much attention. Most of us knew Sandy when she was a cheerleader."

"It's fine with me as long as they can tape ankles and Sandy can certainly tape ankles," Kluck added.

There's a big shortage of women trainers because of the sudden increase of women's sports and that's why Karen was hired.

"I help out some at home football games but handling all the women's sports keeps me busy enough," she said. "Right now, we are in the midst of the volleyball and field hockey seasons and basketball is just beginning. There is really a need for the women athletes to have their own trainer. They have a lot of injuries just like the men and needed treatment. The trainers here did as much as they could but they just didn't have the necessary time."

Why would young ladies get into such a field?

"I love this type of work," Sandy said. "I've always been interested in sports and medicine so this job fits."

"I've always been involved in athletics since I can remember," Karen added. "I've just been hooked. It's a lot of hours and work but it's worth it."

Citrus' sixth win insures good year

Citrus but we will have to be ready for San Bernardino or they can kill us with the talent they have."

JOHN STRYCULA, Citrus: "It was great to win last week since we beat a very good team in Chaffey. The win was our sixth of the year which insures us of a winning year no matter what.

"Chaffey did a hell of a job getting ready for us, I thought we would never shake them. They were well-prepared for the game and hit as hard as anyone we have played this year. Their turnovers really hurt them.

"I thought we played well, we blew a couple plays but basically did a solid job. I'm happy with our game.

"This week we go down south to play Southwestern. They are a good strong team and looked tough in their two non-league games vs. S.D. Mesa and Grossmont. We always have a rough time down there, at least we are healthy for the game."

JERRY SCONCE, Azusa Pacific: "We had a very interesting game with St. Mary's. We had the thing under control at 30-14 late in the game until our kids became very kind and they narrowed the gap. We had 320 yards rushing in the game, our offensive line finally came alive. We held them to 126 yards in total offense, the final score should not have been that close.

"Surprisingly, I thought the officiating at the game was just excellent. We had a super crew, I'd sure like to have them in every game. That's one of the problems with this officiating thing, they are constantly rotating these crews and you can get a couple donkeys thrown in with two good officials.

"We play Cal State L.A. this week. It will be a very difficult game for us, we will need our best game of the year to beat them."

WALT AMBORD, Pomona-Pitzer: "We played a very good game for us against Whittier, in fact it was probably the best we have played overall in the past two years. Whittier showed us a lot of class, they were well-disciplined.

"We finally put together a sustained drive, and we eliminated a lot of the mistakes we have been making. I was real proud of our kids.

"This week we have La Verne, they are a fine football team, there's no way on paper we can stay with them. We will just have to give 100 percent effort and hope we have a better game than the first time we played them."

ANDY VINCI, Cal Poly: "Thank God for the bye we had, we are still racked up injury-wise. We had only two practices last week, so I don't know where we are going into this week's game at Northridge. We will probably take only six offensive and five defensive linemen with us to Northridge, we need to get healthy.

"CSN is a vastly improved team. We will need to stop their kicking game and control the football to beat them. The game will probably come down to who wants it the most."

Claremont-Mudd's water polo squad will be hosting Occidental Wednesday afternoon at 4 p.m. at the Stag pool.

The game will be a key one for both teams, as they enter the match with perfect 4-0 conference marks. The two teams tied for the SCIAC title last the midway point in the conference season for both teams.

Claremont-Mudd beat Redlands 18-9 last Saturday to set up the match with Oxy. Freshmen Paul Miller, of Charter Oak High, and Greg Dorst, of Chaffey High, have played well for the Stags, as has

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A decision is expected in about two weeks on whether a federal appeals court will rehear its own ruling on the so-called "Rozelle Rule" in professional football.

Attorneys for the National Football League asked the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday for the rehearing, but did not say why the National Football League wanted it.

The court ruled last month in favor of a lower court decision which termed the rule a violation of federal antitrust laws.

The rule, named after NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, says that a player may become a free agent after he has played out his contract, but that the commissioner can determine what compensation must be given to the team losing the player.

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — Stanford defensive end Duncan McColl and UCLA running back Theotis Brown were named Pacific-8 Conference football players of the week today.

McColl made 15 tackles, including two quarterback sacks, in the Cardinals' 24-3 victory over Oregon State last weekend. He also blocked a pass and recovered two fumbles.

"McColl has played some great games this year, but this one was his best ever," declared Stanford Coach Jack Christiansen. "He pressurd and sacked the quarterback, he stopped the run and he recovered two important fumbles. He did everything you can ask of a football player."

Brown ran for a school record 220 yards as the Uclans whipped Washington 31-20 last Saturday. He scored three touchdowns on runs of 29, 15 and 51 yards.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System is giving the boot to pro soccer.

After studying unusually low Neilsen ratings for last year's televised games, CBS has decided not to pick up its option on the remainder of a three-year contract with the North American Soccer League.

"We still think professional soccer will do well as a television attraction, but it hasn't arrived yet," said Herbert Gross, director of sports for CBS. "After the championship game (last year) did not do well, it made us sit back and think of what to do."

This year, CBS had televised two games, but both had very low audience participation, according to Gross. Under its option-laden contract with the NASL, CBS was to televise a minimum of six games in 1977 and a minimum of nine in 1978.

VANCOUVER, Canada (AP) — John Best, coach of the Seattle Sounders for three years, Monday was named general manager of the Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League.

The Whitecaps said Best signed a three-year contract, replacing Denny Veitch, whose contract expired last month. Veitch had held the position since the Whitecaps entered the NASL in 1974.

Best resigned in Seattle two months ago after leading the Sounders into the playoffs for a second straight year. He said then that he wanted to get into front-office management.

COLOGNE, West Germany — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors whipped fellow American Zan Guerry 6-2, 6-2 in opening-round action of the $50,000 Cologne Grand Prix tennis tournament.

LONDON — John Fever of England defeated Cliff Richey of Dallas 6-3, 7-6 in first-round action of the $100,000 Dewar Cup tennis tournament.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Italian Adriano Panatta defeated Argentina's Guillermo Vilas 7-6, 3-6, 6-2 and won the $10,000 first prize in an international tennis tournament.

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Mark Hayes made the $125,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament his second victory of the season, shooting a final round five-under-par 66 and beating Lee Elder by two strokes.

MINO, Japan — Beth Stone of Miami fired a three-under-par 71 for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Mizuno Classic golf tournament.

CLEVELAND — Mark Roth of New York averaged 227 over 42 games and held off Paul Colwell of Tucson, Ariz., for the title in the $60,000 Northern Ohio Open bowling tournament.

Meeting scheduled for adult leagues

The Pomona Park and Recreation departments have announced plans for their Winter Adult Basketball leagues. An organization meeting is scheduled for Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Emerson Jr. High cafeteria to discuss these plans.

Five divisions, offering a variety of basketball activity, are planned. Programs are open to both men and women. The minimum age for participation is 16 years.

Entry fee will be $160 per team in the open division, while the team entry fee in the classified division will be $120 per squad. Six leagues are planned in the classified division, with each team playing 12 games. The open division teams will play 17 games.

A "slo-break" league is also planned, for men 25 years and older and women 18 years and older. "Slo-break" games will be played Tuesday nights at Simons Jr. High. Entry fee is $80 per team.

The women's league will use CIF rules, which include a 30-second shot clock. Games will be played Tuesday evenings at Emerson Jr. High. The team entry fee is $120, with each squad slated to play 12 games.

A half-court league is also planned. Teams play one evening per week, entry fee being $16 for 24 games, which are self-officiated.

Complete information on all the leagues will be available at Thursday's organization meeting at Emerson.

Coach storms as Nets lose

By The Associated Press

Kevin Loughery is playing before smaller crowds, but he hasn't changed his act. He's still one of the most explosive courtside performers in basketball.

The volatile New York Nets' coach continues to storm and rave while his team continues to lose. Loughery blew up and the Nets went down again Monday night—this time by an 82-75 margin to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

"The big thing is that the guys on the front line aren't hitting for us," said a disappointed Loughery, considerably calmed down in the dressing room after watching his three starters up front shoot 7of-27 from the field. "They were open shots, too."

Loughery didn't do his team any good by allowing his formidable temper to get the better of him. He was called for two technical fouls and ultimately kicked out of the game.

Actually, one can't blame the Nets' coach for a lack of patience. He is minus superstar Julius Erving and has attempted to rebuild his game plan around a new offensive setup. Also, Erving's loss has triggered a dismaying backlash from protesting Nets' fans, who are staying away from home games in droves. The house count was 4,681 Monday night.

"We're still in the process of putting in some new offense," admitted Loughery, whose team now is 2-5 for the season.

Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, who has seen bad times himself, could sympathize with Loughery.

"The Nets are not wearing black bands on their sleeves, they're wearing their hearts on their sleeves," he said in regard to the devastating loss of Erving to the Philadelphia 76ers. "They lost a superstar. Yoy might say they lost the battle—but in the long run, they'll win the war."

In the only other NBA game, the Kansas City Kings beat the New York Knicks 105-101.

Dick Snyder scored 15 points, including a big basket and two free throws in the last two minutes of the game, to give Cleveland its victory over the Nets. Three free throws by Tiny Archibald had given the Nets a 75-74 lead with 2:27 left when Snyder came through with a three-point play for the Cavs.

Snyder later gave Cleveland a 78-75 lead with a free throw at the 1:31 mark after a technical against Loughery. The Cavaliers then held on to win their sixth game, highest in the NBA.

Kings 105, Knicks 101

Guards Ron Boone and Brian Taylor combined for 40 points as Kansas City upended the Knicks. Boone, who was acquired in the American Basketball Association dispersal draft, scored 22 points while adding eight rebounds and two blocked shots. Taylor, a newcomer acquired in an off-season trade with the Nets, popped in 18 points and picked up six steals.

New teams seek youth

NEW YORK (AP) — The two men who will be at the controls for baseball expansionists Seattle and Toronto will be pressing the same buttons.

Peter Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Toronto Blue Jays, and Lou Gorman, director of player operations for the Seattle Mariners, both say they will be fishing for youth Friday at the American League's expansion draft.

"Fundamentally, we hope to draft young players," said Bavasi. "But some of our draft choices will be veterans who can provide stability for an otherwise young lineup."

"We're going to go after the best young talent available," said Gorman. "We'll also sprinkle in some veterans for stability. But you have to build with young talent."

This is the fifth time a league is allowing newcomers into baseball's select circle. The two expansion clubs each will draft 30 players at a cost of $175,000 a head.

The 12 established teams each will lose a total of five players. Each team can protect 15 players and all minor leaguers signed after 1975. As soon as one player is drafted from its roster, an established team can protect three others.

Washington and Los Angeles joined the American League in 1961, and the National League grew to 10 teams the following year with the New York Mets and Houston.

In 1969, Kansas City and Seattle—which moved to Milwaukee one year later—joined the AL and San Diego and Montreal entered the NL. During that expansion, Bavasi was part of the San Diego organization and Gorman was with Kansas City.

"It's been proven that the best way to build is with young players," said Gorman, who was Kansas City's director of player procurement in 1969. "The Royals are one of the most successful expansion teams ever, and they went with young players."

The Royals won the AL West Division flag this season, eight years after they came into the league. That tied them with the Mets for the fastest rise into the playoffs for any expansion club. The Mets won the NL East, the NL pennant and the World Series in 1969.

The Mets stocked their original roster with a preponderance of veterans. In that first year, the Mets lost more games than any team in history.

"You have to realize that when the Mets became winners," Gorman said, "it was with the players from their farm system—Tom Seaver, Jerry Koosman, Gary Gentry and Bud Harrelson.

"It was the same way with the Royals. The club that won this year was mostly from the farm system."

Bavasi says that in the 1969 draft, Montreal drafted older players, while San Diego picked mostly for the future. The Padres have shown steady improvement each year. This season, the Expos finished with the second worst record in their eight-year history.

"It won't be an exact balance of age and youth," said Bavasi. "It will be a blend of age and youth with a view more clearly toward young players."

NFL is back to bargaining

WASHINGTON AP) — The National Football League is back at the negotiating table in an effort to resolve differences between the owners and players over a new labor contract.

Nevertheless, it is doubtful that any collective bargaining agreement could be reached by the Super Bowl in January, if then.

Representatives of the NFL management and the players union met for three hours in the nation's capital Monday and agreed to establish four subcommittees to consider major issues which have been roadblocks to an agreement for the past 33 months.

The NFL Players Association presented to management a seven-point "plan for responsible action." The owners agreed to six of the points but rejected a request to reinstitute a check-off of union dues for 1976 in return for a non-strike pledge.

The two groups agreed to establish a task force "to consider a workable and legal draft and modified reserve system. The task force shall be authorized to hire outside advisors to meet with representatives of other sports and take other reasonable steps to seek a solution to this complex problem area."

The subcommittees were directed to report back to the full committee on or about Dec. 1.

Dapkewicz paces Monte Vista Club

The Monte Vista Swim Club, a novice and AAU swim program located in Montclair, has recently been competing in AAU swim meets in Grand Terrace and Barstow.

At the Grand Terrace meet held, Jack Dapkewicz led the 15-18 boys division with six first place awards. His firsts were for the 100 freestyle, 50 butterfly, 100 backstroke, 100 breaststroke, 100 individual medley, and 50 backstroke.

In the 11-12 boys division, the club was led by Matt Loggins who came back with a second in the 50 breaststroke, a third in the 100 individual medley and a sixth in the 50 freestyle.

At the Barstow ABC meet, the club had three award winners in the 15-18 boys division. Tom Maples had a 3rd in the A-100 butterfly with a time of 1:00.3; 3rd in the B-200 individual medley, 2:23.0 and a 4th in the B-200 freestyle, 2:04.0 Jeff Palmer had a 1st in the C-100 freestyle, 58.2; 5th in the B-50 freestyle, 27.0; 6th in the B-100 backstroke, 1:08.5; and 6th in the B-100 butterfly, 1:07.0. Jack Dapkewicz had a 1st in the C-50 breaststroke, 34.2; 2nd in the C-100 backstroke, 1:15.2; and 4th in the 50 freestyle, 27.7.

In the 13-14 boys division, Jim Schiller came back with a 1st in the C-100 freestyle, 1:01.5; 1st in the C-100 individual medley, 1:11.5; and a 2nd in the B-50 freestyle, 27.4. Eric Bakman came back with a 4th in three events, B-100 backstroke, 1:12.2, B-100 freestyle, 1:01.1; and A-50 freestyle, 26.5.

The Monte Vista Swim Club which works out daily at Montclair High School welcomes children who are interested in competitive stroke instruction and encourage parents with children five and older to contact coach Mike Dickson at 624-0791 or Barb Loggins at 983-3333.

Cal loses Walker for rest of season

BERKELEY (AP) — California's record-setting wide receiver, Wesley Walker, faces knee surgery Wednesday and will be lost for the rest of the college football season.

Walker, a senior, is Cal's alltime pass receiver and second in the Pacific-8 Conference with 2,209 career yards. His 22 career touchdowns tied him for the conference record with Hugh Campbell of Washington State.

The star receiver will undergo surgery at Alta Bates Hospital to repair ligaments torn in his right knee during last Saturday's game against Southern Cal.

"It is a mild injury with respect to usual knee injuries, but it is to his best interest to have it repaired immediately rather than to wait until some time later," team physician Dr. Jerry Patmont said Monday.

"This is obviously a blow to us," said Coach Mike White, "but we'll just have to adust as best we can."

White said freshman Holden Smith, who caught two passes against Southern Cal, will replace Walker.

Walker, a sprinter who has run the 100 meters in 10.1 seconds, also missed most of the Oregon State game and the entire UCLA game with an unrelated foot injury before returning to action against SC. Cal lost all three games.

Walker last year averaged more than 23 yards per catch to lead the NCAA in that department. This year he had 23 receptions for 624 yards and six touchdowns.

Angels drop Sunset tilt

The Riverside A's bested the Futuris Angels 8-4 Sunday afternoon at the Angels' home park Upland Memorial in a Sunset League winter baseball contest.

Tommy Rojo and Bill Teague, with three hits apiece, led the Angels' attack.

The Angels are now 1-5 on the year. Next game will be Sunday at Fontana High vs. the Fontana Stars.

Bold Forbes out for rest of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bold Forbes, the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner, will not race the remainder of this year because of an injured foot, Trainer Laz Barrera said today.

Don Lugo sets games

Don Lugo High athletic director and head football coach John Monger has announced that he has scheduled three games for the 1977 grid season, when the school will be a freelance entry in the CIF 1A Division.

Don Lugo, which will have both freshmen and sophomores next fall, has scheduled Webb, La Verne Lutheran and Orange Lutheran. Monger indicated he is still looking for several other varsity games to fill out the "Q's" schedule, hopefully with other 1A schools in the valley.

Q. "WHAT IS PAPAYA?"

JEFF LEE
TOBACCOVILLE, NC

A. PAPAYA IS A LARGE TROPICAL FRUIT THAT GROWS ON A PALMLIKE TREE. ITS MILDLY SWEET FLESH IS POPUAR AS A BREAKFAST FRUIT.

© 1976 by NEA, Inc. T.M. Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. DICK Rogers 11/2

If you visit the Pacific islands you might see papayas growing on trees.

The papaya (pronounced puh PIE uh) is a large, melonlike fruit found in almost all tropical countries.

The papaya grows on a tall plant which looks much like a palm tree. Large green leaves, often two feet across, spread from the top of the branchless trunk. The papaya fruit hang near the top of the tree in coconut-like clusters.

The juicy flesh is mildly sweet, with a musky tang. Inside the fruit is a hollow cavity filled with many black seeds.

Ripe papayas are often eaten raw as a breakfast fruit. They may also be used in salads, pies, sherberts and juices.

The papaya plant contains a milky juice which can be used as a meat tenderizer.

In the tropics, it is a common practice to rub tough meat with the juice of a raw papaya, or even leave the meat wrapped in papaya leaves overnight, to make it more tender before cooking.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Voting heavy to very heavy across U.S.

By The Associated Press

Initial reports indicated heavy to very heavy voter turnout across much of the nation today as voting began in a presidential election that some experts had said might draw a record light vote.

Long lines were reported at polls as they opened in Massachusetts, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Texas and at least a dozen other states. Sunny skies and crisp autumn temperatures were the rule across most of the country.

"I've never seen anything like it," said a voting official in Waltham, Mass., a Boston suburb where voters were lined up before the 8 a.m. opening of polling places.

At Precinct 264 in Dallas, Tex., an area of apartment complexes, there were 250 persons in line when the polls opened at 7 a.m.

Unusually heavy voting was reported in Alabama. Police cars had to be sent to polling places at schools in Birmingham because the voter traffic was so heavy children were having trouble getting to class.

The voter turnout in New York City was "astonishingly heavy," the Board of Elections reported. A Democratic survey of upstate New York and subruban areas indicated early balloting was heavier than in 1972.

The traditional political wisdom is that a heavy voter turnout would favor Democrat Jimmy Carter in his race against President Ford, since there are more registered Democrats than Republicans.

Election analysts had predicted that only slightly more than half the 150 million Americans of voting age would go to the polls today. In 1972, the turnout was 55 per cent.

Early turnout in Michigan was reported heavy to very heavy throughout the state. In Grand Rapids, Mich, where President Ford cast his ballot, voting was reported four times as heavy as in 1972.

The morning turnout in Albany, Ga., indicated record voting, officials said. At 7 a.m. there were long lines at every polling place, they said. Mrs. R. O. Buitman, supervisor at one of the polling places, said, "this is the heaviest turnout I have seen" in 20 years.

Forty-to 45-minute lines were reported at polling places in Richmond, Va. Uniformly heavy voting was reported in a half dozen cities in Maine. Long lines were reported in various parts of Tennessee.

Early reports from Pennsylvania indicated heavy voting throughout the state. In one precinct in State College, Pa., 71 people voted in the first 50 minutes.

Democrat Jimmy Carter cast his ballot in a cinder-block building near the railroad tracks in Plains, Ga. Republican Gerald Ford voted in an elementary school in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Carter's 98-week campaign came to an end in Plains, his rural home town. "I feel a sense of satisfaction," he said. "I did the best I could."

Ford, home in Grand Rapids, was asked if he felt lucky "Sure do," the President replied. "Don't you think we have good reason?"

Carter's running-mate, Walter F. Mondale, also voted early, in Afton, Minn., his home town. He joked that he was "undecided," but then assured reporters he had voted for "Jimmy Carter and his running-mate."

The fourth man in the celebrated quarter, GOP vice-presidential candidate Bob Dole, planned to vote later in the day in his home town, Russell, Kan. At a rally Monday evening in Independence, Mo., he sat in former President Harry S. Truman's chair in the local courthouse "for luck."

Ford and Carter ended their campaigns Monday night with rallies in Michigan, barely 100 miles apart.

High court rejects L.A. plea on porno store rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has rejected attempts by Los Angeles county and city authorities to knock down a state court ruling preventing them from closing down book stores and theaters that sell and exhibit pornographic material.

The high court rejected without comment Monday arguments by Los Angeles Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp that a ruling by the California Supreme Court would force local authorities to take a piecemeal approach to obscenity.

The state court had ruled that injunctions could be issued against sale of materials found obscene but not against the premises themselves.

City and county officials had sought the power to close such establishments for one year and to have moveable property removed and sold.

In Van de Kamp vs. Projection Room Theater, the district attorney argued that the ruling ties the hands of local authorities by forcing them to go to court over each complaint of an obscene magazine or film.

Court upholds work schedule change over religious views

WASHINGTON AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that employers must change an employe's work schedule if he requests the change for religious reasons.

The court, in a 4-4 decision, said the Parker Seal Co. was guilty of religious discrimination when it fired Paul Cummins because he refused to work on Saturdays.

Cummins was a supervisor in the company's Berea, Ky., rubber seal plant.

The dispute between Cummins and his employer attracted the attention of Seventh-day Adventist and Jewish organizations, who urged the Supreme Court to uphold the federal law prohibiting an employer to discharge or discriminate against an employe because of his religion, including "all aspects of religious observance and practice."

In a 2-1 decision last year, the 6th Circuit Court ruled that "grumbling" by other employes "must yield to the single employe's right to practice his religion."

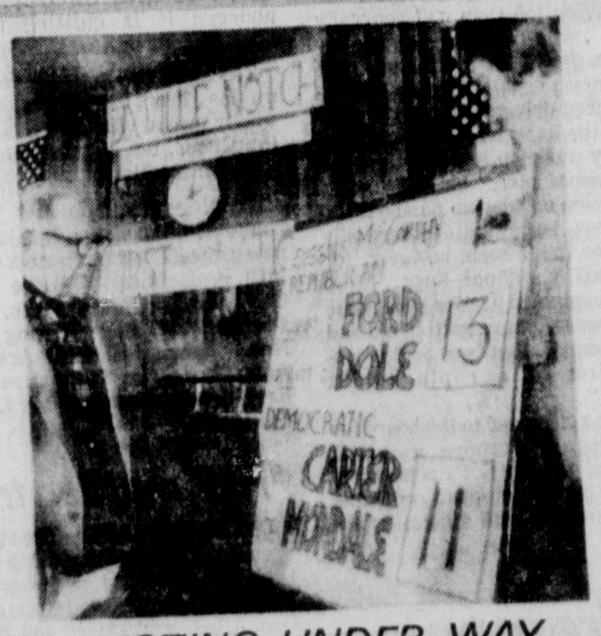
BOOTHS FOR HANDICAPPED

Max Pyle of Pomona, a wheelchair patient, votes in one of the over-sized booths which Tuesday were generously sprinkled throughout the valley to accommodate the handicapped. Eighty-five of the specially designed booths were placed at polling places in the east end of Los Angeles County. They are wider than normal voting booths and have adjustable shelves allowing individuals to vote while sitting or while standing on crutches. Thirty-two of the special booths are installed at Pomona polling places today.



VOTING UNDER WAY

Four local cities may lose dogcatcher service in June

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Four cities in the valley may find themselves without any dogcatchers next June.

The Humane Society of Pomona Valley which has served Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas for more than a quarter century, says it may have to abandon the animal control part of its services next year because it is operating at a deficit.

A letter outlining the deficit was directed to the La Verne City Council Monday night, but Bruce Richards, executive director of the animal shelter, says all four cities have been notified.

He said that although the animal control portion of the work may be abandoned, the shelter will continue its welfare program to animals, including preservation of wild life, reclamation of pets, and protection of dogs and cats and other animal life.

"We are still operating under a contract that was drawn up 26 years ago," he claimed. "If the cities want to continue animal control we're going to have to brush the dust off the contract and do some basic revisions."

Richards said the society has been operating in the red for the past three years "and things are getting worse."

Richards said the society has had to lay off several employes to stay near the budget, but now "there is nowhere to go.

"We can't get enough money from the license fees," he maintained. "To be self-sufficient, we would have to raise the fees from the present $4 to $20, and that's too much."

He said in Pomona alone, the number of dogs has gone from the original 6,000 to 18,000. Right now, the society is processing 22,000 dog licenses throughout the valley. Richard says the animal shelter also handles 11,000 cats for which dog owners have to pay since there are no license fees charged for cats.

"Recently the city of Walnut wanted to join the valley humane society," he said. "We had to turn them down. We simply couldn't handle any more."

Richards said the decision to get out of the dog catching business was not final, but a strong possibility.

"It all depends on what the cities want to do about it," he declared. "We must have some dialog about the future."

He said the humane society will no longer make presentations before city councils, nor will it continue to present financial statements to get approval to raise its license fees.

"What we hope is that we can have an over-all meeting with representatives of all the cities, all at one time," the executive director said. "We need to rewrite our contracts entirely."

City Manager George Caswell said Richards notified him that he would be unable to meet with the council because of conflicts in his schedule. The council tabled action on the matter until Richards could appear.

Ambulance stolen while paramedics giving aid

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

Police are searching for two men who stole an ambulance parked in front of a store at 621 W. Sunkist St., Ontario, early this morning while paramedics were giving medical aid to someone in the building.

Police said ambulance attendant Kenneth A. Croteall of B and B Ambulance Service came out of the store to discover the ambulance missing at about 12:17 a.m.

Rescue victim was transported to Ontario Community Hospital by Ontario fire department paramedics called to assist.

About 40 minutes later, the ambulance was found parked in the intersection of Cypress Avenue and Park Street, Ontario, with its doors open. Croteall told officers that a scoop stretcher and a flat stretcher with a total value of $180 were missing from the ambulance.

Witnesses at the store told officers that just after the paramedics left the ambulance two men in a dark green or blue 1966 sedan drove up behind it. One of the men left the car and entered the ambulance and drove off with it.

The ambulance was followed by the man driving the other car. The men were both described as Latins with long, bushy hair.

Judge to sample drug before ruling on case

BOSTON (AP) — A district court judge says he won't rule on a cocaine possession case until he's sampled the illegal drug for himself and determined its effects.

"It was a mind-boggling, precedent-setting action," a defense attorney said after Roxbury District Court Judge Elwood McKenney made the announcement in court Monday.

McKenney, presiding over a case challenging the constitutionality of Massachusetts' anti-cocaine laws, says he wants to determine if the drug is as harmful as the statutes imply.

"My wanting to do this is similar to a judge visiting the scene of a crime or viewing a movie to determine if it is obscene," the judge said.

REPORT LOCAL TURNOUT AS 'VERY BRISK'

Voters got up with the sun this morning to go to the polls.

Spot checks before 10 a.m. brought reports of brisk activity throughout the valley, beginning promptly at 7 a.m.

A number of election workers reported a much heavier early morning turnout than they had experienced in the June primary. They predicted that if the voting remained steady throughout the day there would indeed be the 80 per cent turnout forecast by registrars of voters in both Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Election workers were hopeful many voters would mark ballots during the day and not wait until the evening hours to crowd polling places and have to stand in line.

Polls will remain open until 8 p.m. to accommodate workers.

In Philadelphia

Water supply under guard after threat

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Officials kept Philadelphia's water system under tight security today after an extortionist apparently failed to carry out a threat to dump 1,000 gallons of heating oil into the water unless he got $1 million.

Hillel Levinson, city managing director, emphasized that there was no cause for alarm. He said the worst effect of that much oil would be some cases of nausea, and that the biggest problem would be cleaning it up.

"We hope it's a hoax, but it's too early to tell," Water Commissioner Carmen Guarino said shortly before a midnight deadline for the money set by the extortionist in a tape-recorded message. Early today, Guarino said no attempt to contaminate the water had been detected.

"We have people stationed at all our facilities and others riding around in their cars," Charles Vickerman, deputy water commissioner, said. "And the police have been alerted to watch for anything suspicious."

A man's voice on the tape cassette, which was found in a city hall conference room about 9 a.m., had ordered the city to drop $1 million from a helicopter over a site that would be marked by flashing lights along the Delaware River.

Officials in the nation's fourth largest city said they followed the instructions but spotted no flashing lights. They refused to say whether they brought money on the flight.

Levinson told a news conference that fire hydrants would be opened periodically to test for contamination. He said residents had been urged to examine their water carefully before drinking it.

Philadelphia's water system includes three main reservoirs, three treatment plants, 10 pumping stations and 3,200 miles of water lines.

Nearly one-tenth of ones investigated

Problems appear in 23 hospital deaths

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Serious questions are being raised about the circumstances of nearly one-tenth of state mental hospital patient deaths investigated so far, state health officials say.

The investigation followed reports last month of possible patient abuse in deaths at Camarillo State Hospital. The Ventura County district attorney is studying at least six of those deaths for possible prosecution.

So far, state investigators have checked 273 deaths at state hospitals in the last three years and found 23 in which "there appears to be a gross problem, either legal or administrative," deputy Health Director Ray Procunier said Monday.

The investigation has covered seven of the 10 mental hospitals, excluding Camarillo while the district attorney has the case and two other hospitals, Porterville and Stockton, until more staff is available.

The investigators were assigned last month by state Health Director Jerome Lackner to visit the hospitals and study all of the approximately 1,000 deaths there in the last three years.

Other findings included a possible drug ring at one hospital, which Procunier refused to name, and continued reports of threats against employes at Metropolitan State Hospital near Los Angeles, he said.

At Metropolitan, where one employe earlier told of having "KKK" scratched on his car, a state investigator received an anonymous note "telling him to get out of there," Procunier said.

Procunier said 146 of the 273 deaths studied so far appeared to need no further checking, 104 required some followup such as completion of an autopsy but didn't appear out of the ordinary, and the other 23 raised serious questions.

Without naming the hospitals involved, Procunier said the 23 deaths included cases in which:

—A medical officer on duty didn't show up until seven hours after being summoned.

—A portion of a patient's record had been penciled out.

—A patient's chart indicated that medicine had been administered several hours after the patient was dead.

They also included a number of cases in which there was no record of an illness before the patient's death, Procunier said.

He said each case would be studied closely, with interviews of each employe. He added cases would be referred, if necessary, to the hospital administrator for procedure or staff changes, or to prosecutors.

In the case of the chart that indicated medication after the time of death, "Whoever's initials are on that chart is going to be listening to somebody," Procunier said.

Strong action will be taken in the case of the medical officer if his absence contributed to the death, Procunier said.

He said the drug ring wasn't involved in the death of a patient, but surfaced during the investigation. He said the case had been turned over to law enforcement.

Claremont board retains its sample ballot policy

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Correspondent

Following a lengthy discussion at its Monday night meeting the Claremont school board voted 3-1 to retain its present policy regarding school board candidates' sample ballot election statements.

The present system requires statements which accompany sample ballots be limited to 200 words and that candidates bear the cost of their preparation. The board could have approved an increase in the length of the statements to 400 words and voted to have the school district pick up the cost.

Board member Robert Stafford expressed his concern that costs for the statements were becoming too high and forcing the poorer person out of a candidacy. Stafford said the cost for statement preparation the last time he ran was $443 compared to only $114 the election prior to that.

"And you hear so many people say, 'He must not be interested because he didn't even submit a sample ballot statement,'" said Stafford. Stafford, who cast the dissenting vote, said he would like to see the district pick up all or part of the election statement costs.

Several suggestions were offered throughout the discussion including a split of the costs on a percentage basis between the district and candidate or the possibility of the district picking up any costs in excess of a given amount; say, $100 or $200.

Stafford told fellow board members that research has shown that where the district picks up such costs more persons from low income areas run for office.

Board President Arthur Steffen, however, questioned the need of the district to pick up the cost noting that it could become a considerable expense if several candidates decided to run. Steffen also said that "the present system hasn't stopped anyone from running yet."

The board was advised by staff that the registrar of voters required a decision on the matter by Nov. 18 and that if the board wished to it could vote to maintain the present policy and later amend its decision.

The board also discussed the problem of Condit School students facing traffic hazards crossing Base Line Road on their way to school. A petition had been presented at the board's last meeting requesting that school hours at Condit be adjusted allowing students to cross at a time when fewer cars were on the street. Supt. Richard Kirkendall reported to the board that the Claremont Police Department will provide a traffic count on Nov. 12 (a regular workday but school holiday) and another on a regular school day. The superintendent also said the staff would conduct a survey of Condit parents to see how they felt on the subject. He said the staff would prepare a recommendation for the next board meeting.

Korean man charged with murder at APC

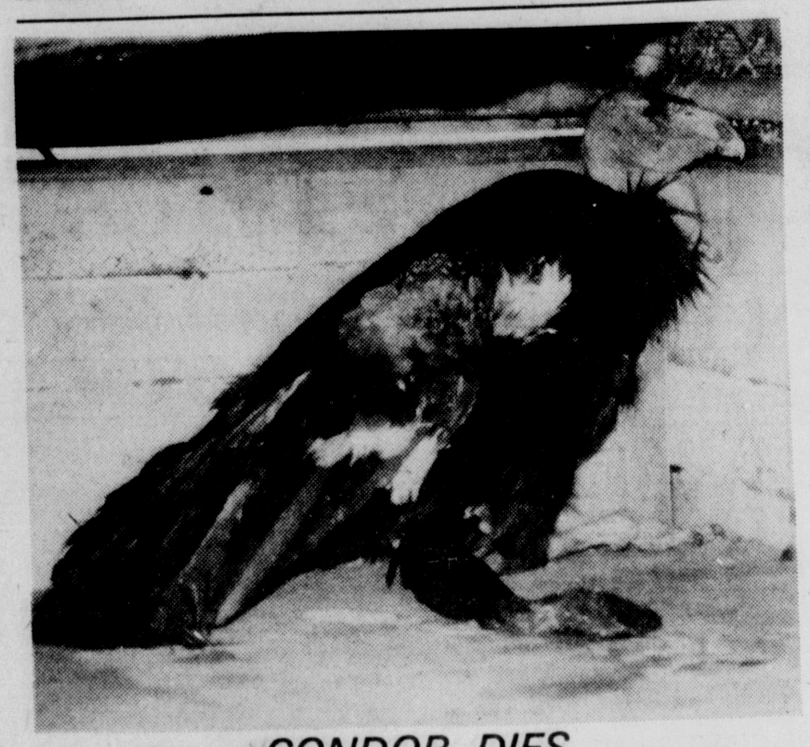
A young Korean man has been charged formally with murder in the slaying Oct. 7 of David Kim Brunk in Azusa Pacific College's music room.

The suspect is Ki Duc Kim, 24, who is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Nov. 8 in Citrus Municipal Court in West Covina. Kim was arraigned Friday in the same court and he was ordered held in lieu of $500,000 bail.

Brunk, of Ontario, was stabbed to death after an altercation that day. Sheriff's investigators said the stabbing followed an argument over a young woman.

Both young men were natives of Korea. Brunk lived with adoptive parents in Ontario.

It was not determined how long the suspect, who was arrested late last week, has been in this country.



CONDOR DIES

Despite life-saving efforts and amputation of a badly shattered wing, this rare California condor shot down in September has died. Tehachapi, one of about 45 survivors of the condor species that lives only in the Southern California coastal mountains, had regained consciousness and shown signs of recovery after its wing was amputated last week. But officials at the Los Angeles zoo said the bird began breathing erratically and died.

Chaffey postpones purchase of buses

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Trustees of the Chaffey Union School District have decided to postpone the purchase of new school buses until a study is done to determine whether or not the district should contract out busing services.

The decision to wait on the purchase came after board member John Schnepp voiced an objection to accepting bids for five new school buses until the district looked into alternative methods of providing school transportation.

"A little over a year ago I asked for a cost analysis on our buses," said Schnepp. "To this date I have not seen one.

"I find it hard to vote for the purchase of five new buses when I have not received information necessary to arrive at such a decision," he declared.

"I would like to know what it costs us to operate our own buses and what it would cost us to contract for bus service," said Schnepp.

Board President G. A. Chalfant agreed that the idea of contracting for bus service should be looked into. "I think it is an obligation of this board to look at alternative methods of financing," he said.

Board member Martha Chapman raised a related point of why it was so difficult for the district to keep qualified bus drivers from leaving their jobs.

"I understand we are having trouble keeping drivers in this district," she told the board, "and I'm beginning to wonder why?"

Assistant Supt. Robert Spencer explained why. "Most of our bus drivers only work part time," he said. "As soon as they can find a full-time driving job they will generally do it . . . who can blame them.

"Since the jobs we offer are only part time we usually have to hire inexperienced drivers. As soon as they acquire the experience with us they generally move on to a full-time job with someone else," he said.

A decision on what to do about the school bus issue will undoubtedly have to be made soon, however, for as Chaffey school Supt. Mike Dirksen explained it, "We have some school buses that are getting old and it is essential that we begin consideration of a replacement schedule."

Dirksen apologized to the board for not providing a more detailed analysis of the district's school bus situation, but promised to return as soon as possible with a detailed accounting.

Upland police, firemen accept salary increase

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Upland police officers and firefighters have accepted a five per cent salary increase retroactive to July 1.

The salaries are for persons represented by the Upland Police Officers' Association and the Upland Firefighters' Association.

City Manager Lee Travers told Upland City Council members Monday that both groups were told that the city would look at its financial status at the end of the year.

"But we made no commitment as to another salary increase at that time," Travers said.

Miscellaneous employes were meeting Monday night in a conferring session to see if they would accept a percentage increase in salaries rather than the flat dollar amount they previously asked for.

The council voted to purchase 14½ acres of land on 11th Street for use as a city park at a cost of $225,000.

The land has been held by the Upland School District as the site for a future junior high school. However, the district now feels that it will not need a junior high school in that location and has offered the land to the city.

In a special meeting, the Upland Recreation Committee recommended that the city purchase the land for use as a soccer and football field.

Travers reported that there is $306,000 in the park funds but that $110,000 has been budgeted for specific items at Pioneer Park, Hawkins Field, Euclid Avenue and Greenbelt Park.

"This means we have $196,000 for the purchase of the 11th Street property," Travers said. "The additional $29,000 would come from the projected bedroom tax on homes being constructed in the city."

State briefs

Strike ends

MILPITAS (AP) — Rank-and-file ratification of a new contract has ended a 47-day strike by 2,700 United Auto Workers at the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant at Milpitas, Ford's largest on the West Coast.

The Local 560 vote Monday was 1,190 to 386 to return to work. Maintenance workers went back to work hours later, and the full work force was expected to be back by Wednesday.

Although a nationwide UAW strike against Ford ended two weeks ago with workers getting a 37.5-cent hourly wage increase and another 13 days off a year, the Milpitas plant workers stayed out over local working condition issues.

Marijuana bust

SAN SIMEON (AP) — Many more arrests are expected in connection with a major Southern California marijuana smuggling operation, according to authorities who have arrested 16 men and confiscated about five tons of "Thai-stick" marijuana.

The marijauna, a potent type believed to be worth more than $30 million, was seized minutes after it was allegedly smuggled ashore Monday from a fishing boat in a cove near Hearst Castle, authorities said.

The 79-foot fishing boat, the Dong Phat, sped from the cove after apparently receiving a radio warning, authorites said, and a Coast Guard cutter went after the vessel, finally overtaking it after a four-hour chase.

McCulloch quits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Citing rising construction and financing costs and increasing government regulation, McCulloch Oil Corp. has announced it is quitting the land development business.

The move will probably cause a $59 million loss for McCulloch Oil's wholly owned subsidiary, McCulloch Properties, Inc, the company said in a statement Monday.

Existing developments will be completed, the company said, but no new projects will be started. Current MPI projects are at Lake Havasu City and Fountain Hills, Ariz., Pueblo West, Colo., Spring Creek, Nev., Holiday Island, Ark., and Amarillo, Texas. The company also has a development at Silver Lakes in California.

Hall murder trial

PASADENA (AP) — The two men accused of the shooting death of Burbank private detective Robert Duke Hall have been ordered to stand trial Dec. 6 but prosecutors and defense attorneys say they probably will be tried separately, thus further delaying proceedings.

Superior Court Judge Mary Goode Rogan set the trial date Monday because one of the defendants, Jack Ginsburgs, has refused to waive his right to a speedy trial.

Continental strike

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spokesman for striking Continental Airlines pilots predicts his group will resume talks with the company this week in an effort to end a 10-day-long bargaining stalemate.

Gary Thomas, head of the council of pilots that holds the power to ratify contracts, said Monday that he hopes such preliminary talks this week will get official negotiations started again.

Pilots said they received a telegram from the company telling them officials will negotiate if a mediator determines the pilots have reduced their demands substantially.

Heart disease caused deaths of three

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county coroner has concluded that heart disease rather than influenza vaccines caused the deaths of three elderly persons over the weekend.

Two of the three had received swine flu vaccine and the other had been administered Hong Kong B vaccine, Dr. Thomas Noguchi said Monday.

All three died Saturday within 48 hours of receiving the innoculations. However, Noguchi said all three had extensive heart disease which had been the cause of death.

Dr. Wallace Frasher, president of the Greater Los Angeles branch of the Heart Association, said there is no evidence that the swine flu vaccine causes death and that heart patients should get the shots according to their doctors' advice.

"The patient with heart disease is clearly at increased risk of getting the flu if he or she is not protected," Frasher said. "Therefore, under guidance of their own physician, it is advisable for such high risk persons to get their shot."

Absentee ballots could decide it

Associated Press Writer

A big upsurge in absentee balloting in some states and cities could tip the balance of today's presidential election if the race is close.

Many of the absentee votes will not be counted for as long as a week after the election.

And one state, Washington, allows county election officials 15 days to count absentee ballots. An estimated 200,000 ballots were mailed out to residents of that state.

Two huge blocks of absentee votes — California's estimated 700,000, compared with 400,000 in 1972, and the returns on 300,000 to 500,000 mailed out by New York State — are due to be counted on election night. So are those of many less populous states.

But in Washington, D.C., the "boxes and boxes" of returned absentee ballots will not be counted until a week after the election.

In an election eve Associated Press survey, many states were unable to provide estimates of absentee ballot totals because ballots are returned to county officials. Nor could they say how the returns compared with previous presidential elections.

But Massachusetts reported a "huge number" of absentee ballot requests this year, and in Maine there were so many that the supply of 82,822 special ballots ran out and regular ballots had to be sent to absentee voters.

In a few places, there were reports of a drop in absentee balloting. Election officials in Chicago said absentee voting was running slightly behind 1972, with 20,436 ballots mailed out. Minnesota officials estimated a drop of several thousand because fewer residents are in the military than four years ago.

But in New York City, where about 30,000 ballots were mailed out, an election official commented, "I've never seen bags coming in this way, bags and bags."

Methods of handling the absentee ballots vary from state to state and even from county to county.

In South Dakota, the absentee votes are counted at the county level after votes cast at the polls are tallied.

In Vermont, where 26,670 ballots were mailed out, those returned will be counted by town clerks as soon as the polls close.

In some states — including Florida with an estimated 150,000 absentee ballots and Rhode Island with 17,500 — they are not counted until the following day.

Nebraska will begin counting its estimated 8,000 to 10,000 absentee ballots this morning, and Missouri also plans to count most of its expected 100,000 absentee votes prior to counting regular ballots.

In Wyoming, county commissioners can set up a counting board to count absentee ballots after the election. It's usually done "promptly," says an official.

And in North Dakota the count is usually done election night but may be delayed up to five days.

In King County (Seattle), Wash., which sent out 80,000 ballots, an official said about half those returned would be counted election night and the rest the following day. But with 15 days' leeway, many other Washington counties will take a few days.

Candidates go to the polls

Ford

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Amidst the glare and flash of cameras, President Ford became citizen Ford for three minutes in a voting booth today as he cast his ballot in the election he hopes will keep him in the White House.

Ford voted by punching a card in a metal, three-sided booth that lacks curtains to totally conceal a voter exercising his franchise.

The serious-faced Ford, wearing a gray, pin-striped suit, studied his ballot as television cameras recorded the event. He looked up once to smile. His wife, Betty, voted simultaneously in a booth beside him.

Outside of the elementary school where the booths were housed, crowds of children shouted, "We want Ford! We want Ford!"

Asked if he felt lucky, Ford said, "Sure do. Don't you think we have good reason?"

Afterwards, Ford and his wife went to Granny's Kitchen for a second breakfast. He planned to unveil a mural and attend a Pentecostal church service before returning to Washington later today to await the outcome of the election.

Ford closed his campaign Monday night in Michigan, the state that sent him to Congress 28 years ago, and where a statewide poll shows his lead has slipped to 1 per cent over Democrat Jimmy Carter.

Carter

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Ending his exhausting and often lonely 98-week presidential campaign, Jimmy Carter today entered the solitude of the voting booth and cast his ballot for "Walter Mondale and his running mate."

"I feel a sense of satisfaction. I did the best I could," he said afterwards. "I think Sen. Mondale and I adequately presented ourselves to the American people."

Carter waited for his wife, Rosalynn; his son, Chip, and his daughter-in-law, Caron, to cast their ballots before voting at 7:29 a.m. in the booth housed in a small, cinder-block building near the railroad tracks that run through this rural hamlet.

He spent five minutes marking the lengthy Georgia ballot.

Carter said he expected the voting and tabulating to proceed slowly today, especially in Georgia. "We've got all those constitutional amendments. But that's normal for a general election in Georgia," he said

Wearing a brown, open-collar shirt, tan slacks and a beige sweater in the nippy morning air, Carter told the throng of reporters and onlookers trailing him that he was pleased to have had a chance to present himself to the American people.

"I'm glad it's over," said the candidate late Monday night as he sank into an airplane seat opposite several reporters on the way home aboard his campaign jet, "Peanut One."

Dole

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Looking bone-weary but satisfied that he had fought "a good campaign overall," Sen. Bob Dole prepared to vote in his hometown of Russell, Kan., at the end of an arduous 76-day vice presidential campaign.

"I guess in a positive way, I've taken a lot of heat this campaign," the 53-year-old candidate said in an interview late Monday evening after a last campaign stop at Independence, Mo., where he compared Republican President Ford's campaign to the successful 1948 effort by Harry S. Truman, who was a Democrat.

"But I have allowed President Ford to work in the White House, while I have been out in the firing line, and that's what we had planned," Dole said.

Rousing receptions in the farm belt states of Missouri and Kansas buoyed Dole's election hopes on Monday. He even shook hands with placard-carrying Carter supporters, joking with them, "Don't work too hard."

At Independence late Monday, Dole sat in Truman's old chair at the Jackson County courthouse and told a cheering crowd of well-wishers "We have his luck."

Dole said he did not regard it as an inconsistency to invoke the image of a Democratic president to further the image of his own campaign. "Truman is a great American hero now," he said.

Mondale

AFTON, Minn. (AP) — Democratic vice-presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale ended his 32-state campaign for the nation's second highest office by voting today with his wife Joan and son Teddy.

The Minnesota senator waited in line behind about 20 other voters before casting his ballot at the Afton City Hall.

He joked that he was "undecided." But then he assured reporters he voted for "Jimmy Carter and his running mate."

Mondale told reporters he would very much like a mandate from voters. "If we win without it, I'll take that too," he said.

The Mondales spent about 10 minutes in the City Hall, and the senator explained that it had taken some time for his 19-year-old son Teddy to be cleared to vote for the first time.

Winding up his 54,000-miles of campaign travel, Mondale joined Carter Monday night for a labor auditorium rally in Flint, Mich. The message from both candidates before some 9,000 listeners was the same it had been at so many other campaign stops: a plea to the Democratic faithful to fight apathy, to get out the vote.

Carter has edge, but electoral vote is tossup

By The Associated Press

The final Associated Press survey of the states shows the tally of electoral votes too close to call.

Although Jimmy Carter still has an apparent edge, he is not comfortably ahead in enough states to be sure of the 270 electoral votes needed for victory. Neither is President Ford.

Several big states have moved into the toss-up category since the preceding AP survey last week.

The AP survey is based on independent polls in states where they are taken, and on the observations of political experts and campaign reporters in other states.

The poll now finds Carter leading in 15 states and the District of Columbia, with a total of 210 electoral votes. The 11 states in which Ford leads have a total of 91 electoral votes. The number of toss-up states has grown to 24, with 237 electoral votes.

Carter's lead has shrunk since a similar AP survey was conducted last week, and his lead in the popular vote also has all but disappeared, according to the major independent polls.

Both the Harris and Gallup polls show the two candidates within a point of each other.

In the survey last week, Carter was seen as leading in 22 states and in the District of Columbia, and that would have given him 295 electoral votes, or 25 more than he needed for election.

The survey one week ago found fewer states in the toss-up category. Carter has lost his edge in key states such as Ohio, Maryland, North Carolina and New Jersey. His tally of probable electoral votes has dropped from 295 to the current 237.

Ford has added California to his column but dropped back to an uncertain position in Michigan, Virginia, Oregon and Maine.

The closeness of the electoral vote survey is reflected in the independent polls of the popular vote. The Gallup and Harris surveys have found in the past three days that the race has come down to a virtual tie.

Here are the states Carter is perceived as leading in, with electoral votes in parentheses: Alabama (9); Arkansas (6); District of Columbia (3); Florida (17); Georgia (12); Hawaii (4); Kentucky (9); Massachusetts (14); Minnesota (10); Missouri (12); New York (41); Pennsylvania (27); Rhode Island (4); Tennessee (10); Texas (26); and West Virginia (6).

Ford was considered ahead in Alaska (3); Arizona (6); California (45); Colorado (7); Idaho (4); Kansas (7); Nebraska (5); New Hampshire (4); Utah (4); Vermont (3); and Wyoming (3).

The toss-ups were Connecticut (8); Delaware (3); Illinois (26); Indiana (13); Iowa (8); Louisiana (10); Maine (4); Maryland (10); Michigan (21); Mississippi (7); Montana (4); Nevada (3); New Jersey (17); New Mexico (4); North Carolina (13); North Dakota (3); Ohio (25); Oklahoma (8); Oregon (6); South Carolina (8); South Dakota (4); Virginia (12); Washington (9); and Wisconsin (11).

Demos to prevail in governor, Senate House races

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats have a fast start toward keeping decisive control of the House: 44 of them were virtually elected the moment the polls opened today because they have no major opposition.

Only six Republicans had no major opposition.

Democrats control the current Congress 2-1, with 290 seats to the Republicans' 145. The Democrats appeared certain to keep 220 of those seats in today's election and were favored to win another 60 or so.

But Democratic campaign officials concede that Republicans are likely to win back some of the 43 seats they lost in 1974 because of Watergate. The GOP could win up to 15, the Democrats say, if the voter turnout is low.

Republicans hope for more but consider 15 their most realistic bet.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite prospects of a dozen or so newcomers, the party line-up in the Senate is expected to be little changed by today's elections.

Democrats are confident they will maintain, and possibly even increase slightly, their majority in the 95th Congress that will convene Jan. 4.

Republican campaign aides foresee no chance of capturing control of the Senate, saying they doubt if they can make a net pickup of more than two seats.

Democrats now outnumber Republicans in the Senate 62 to 38.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voters in 14 states are choosing governors, and Democrats are almost certain to retain their present hold on executive mansions around the country by a margin of nearly 3 to 1.

In Delaware, there is a duPont running; in West Virginia, a Rockefeller is favored; and Illinois is a state in which the gubernatorial race has complicated the presidential election.

There are 36 Democratic governors, 13 Republicans and one independent. In today's elections, Republicans are favored to win Illinois, Delaware, Utah, Indiana and Missouri. Democrats are given the edge in North Carolina, West Virginia, Arkansas, North Dakota and Rhode Island.

13-year-old plane wreck discovered

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Authorities today were investigating a 13-year-old plane wreck, found Saturday atop a southern Utah mountain.

Washington County Sheriff Evan Whitehead said a wallet led to tentative identification of one of the victims as Harry Cleveland Ross Jr. He said a woman who identified herself as Nancy Blackman of California phoned late Monday to say she was Ross's daughter.

She confirmed her father was missing in a plane crash and identified the owner of the plane as Wallace Carey Halsey of the Logan-Smithfield area in Utah, Whitehead said. He said efforts would be made to trace Ross and Halsey.

The sheriff said several hundred dollars in cash was found at the site.

Savings and loan robbed

Ontario police today continued their search for a gunman who robbed the Ontario Savings and Loan Association office at 333 N. Euclid Ave. Monday.

Police believe the robber is involved in a series of bank robberies in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Investigators reported the gunman walked into the savings and loan office where he pulled a pistol from his waistband and ordered the teller to give him the money and not to touch the alarm.

After the teller complied, she was directed to walk to the back of the office. The gunman fled out the door after tucking the gun and money into his waistband.

Police described him as a Latin, in his early 30s, 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 155 pounds and with curly black hair and a thin mustache. He was wearing blue pants and a blue shirt.

Woman held in fire

Patricia Ann Gilford, 26, 655 N. Dudley St., Pomona, was arrested Monday afternoon by Inspector Tom Fee of the Pomona Fire Department for suspicion of starting a fire in an apartment.

Miss Gilford remained in Pomona City Jail this morning.

The fire was started by burning clothing in the bathtub of the apartment rented by the suspect's mother, Mary Loftin. Damage was minor.

The fire was put out by an occupant of a nearby apartment, John Young, according to fire inspectors.

Rhodesian troops kill hundreds of guerrillas in Mozambique action

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian government forces returned from Mozambique today after a 36-hour invasion during which they killed hundreds of black Rhodesian guerrillas and destroyed seven guerrilla camps, security sources reported.

Casualties among the Rhodesian government forces were not known.

Mozambique's black government accused Prime Minister Ian Smith's white minority regime of a "major military assault on an independent sovereign state." It said its forces were battling fiercely to expel the invaders.

The Rhodesian government said its forces were exercising the right of "hot pursuit" of guerrillas who had been attacking positions in Rhodesia.

The Zambian goverment newspaper accused Smith's government of trying to wreck the Geneva conference to negotiate the transfer of power from the 278,000 Rhodesian whites to the 6.4 million blacks.

It was the second major Rhodesian attack inside Mozambique this year. The first was made in August, after mortar fire from Mozambique killed four white Rhodesian soldiers. Smith's government said its raiders killed 300 guerrillas, 30 Mozambican soldiers and 10 civilians.

Some 10,000 black Rhodesian guerrillas are believed to be operating from bases just across the 800-mile border between Rhodesia and the former Portuguese territory on the southeast coast of Africa.

Cadillac mobbed by job seekers

DETROIT (AP) — Cadillac officials made no public announcement when they decided to build up their backlog of job applications. But word spread, and more than 5,000 job seekers showed up outside the main assembly plant.

One woman fainted, a fight broke out, and when the crush at the door prevented people from getting out, Cadillac called the whole thing off.

The firm, a division of General Motors, said it had no plan to hire. Bulletins on the front door of the plant and throughout the building merely stated that applications would be handed out Monday.

People started showing up at 10 p.m. Sunday with blankets and coffee for an all-night wait.

On Monday morning, Cadillac set up five interview desks to give prospective employes forms to take home, fill out and mail back.

"We were prepared to give out up to 10,000 applications, but we just didn't expect such a crunch of people showing up at the same time," said a Cadillac spokesman. "We were only passing out applications and not interviewing for jobs.

"We stopped giving them out when there was such a crunch at the door the people who had them couldn't get out."

One woman who waited two hours to get an application had it ripped from her hands when she emerged from the plant. Several persons who managed to hold on to their applications sold the forms outside the plant for up to $20.

In the future, Cadillac said, it will handle applications by mail.

Cadillac has 9,000 blue collar workers and has hired about 200 since August.

Don't blame your age for poor hearing

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

True, all hearing problems are not alike . . . and some cannot be helped, but many can. Send for this non-operating model now. Wear it in the privacy of your own home to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

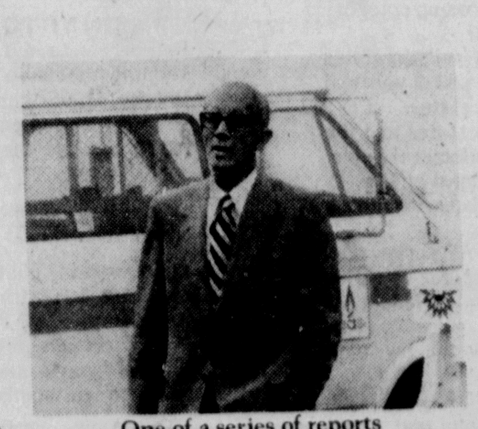
These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept 9894, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

There is no natural gas shortage...

in Alaska or Indonesia.

But in southern California, a natural gas shortage is already here.

That shortage could become a crisis costing up to 700,000 jobs in this area alone unless we're able to obtain additional gas supplies by the beginning of the next decade. Conservation of natural gas is essential, but even this may not be able to prevent lost jobs and cold homes. To get enough new natural gas supplies, consumers, government, labor and the Gas Company will have to work together more closely than ever before. Here's the situation facing southern California.



One of a series of reports by Harvey A. Proctor, Chairman, Southern California Gas Company.

Southern California supplies have declined sharply.

Existing supplies from California sources are running down. Our suppliers in New Mexico and Texas are cutting back their deliveries. That means we've had to reduce our service to large firms that can use other, more expensive, forms of fuel.

But there's plenty of natural gas in Alaska and Indonesia.

We've gone to Alaska and Indonesia to find new supplies. These areas are rich in natural gas resources. But we won't be able to start bringing the gas here until we get approval from local, state and federal government agencies. Then pipelines must be put in. Ships and plants must be built. We have signed contracts with the Indonesian government for large amounts of natural gas. But again, local, state and federal government approvals are needed in this country. And fast.

How about a substitute?

Unfortunately, a low-cost substitute for natural gas is not available. For example, we are working hard to develop solar energy, but increased gas supplies are the only answer for the near future. That's why we're seeking new sources of supply from other parts of the world, too. Off the northern coast of Australia and in Malaysia, for example. But our best hope lies in getting fast, final approvals for our projects in Alaska and Indonesia.

Why can't we just go get it?

Since the Gas Company is a public utility, we must have government approvals at every level. Prompt action by local, state and federal agencies to give us the go-ahead on these projects is critical to meeting your energy needs. One project alone needs as many as 100 approvals. It is still hanging. Faster decisions are desperately needed. As time passes, the problem becomes more complex. The cost of every project goes up as the price of everything — pipelines, materials, labor, ships — goes up.

What you can do about it.

The Gas Company is urging the 12,000,000 people who live in southern California to inform themselves about the situation and to be ready to speak out; to speak out about jobs that may be lost and homes that may become cold.

As a consumer and as a participant in this area's economy, you have the right to know what's being done about your future. You can let people know that you want fast action; that you want the situation cleared up before it becomes a major crisis. The crisis need not happen. To inform you fully about the natural gas shortage and our efforts to bring you new supplies, we have printed a small brochure. Write for the Gas Company brochure on supply. Bridge by Jacobys

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY

South looked over dummy quickly and saw that his slam contract was a mighty poor one. Then he set about to steal it.

He led a trump to dummy's ace and a second trump back to his king. Then he led a low diamond!

If West had played his king it would have been all over for South, but West wasn't quite up to that play at that early stage of the proceedings. West played low!

Now South rose with dummy's ace, cashed his ace and king of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy, discarded a diamond on the king of clubs, rufed dummy's last club, led a diamond and made his contract since West was thrown in with the king of diamonds and had to lead a heart or club to allow South to ruff in dummy and discard his last diamond at the same time.

Maybe West should have put up that king of diamonds at his first opportunity. He probably would have done just that if South had stripped the hand before leading the suit, but South made his play early and it worked.

Ask the Jacobys

A Georgia reader wants to know if the late Milton Work was a better bridge player than the late Wilbur Whitehead.

These were two of the greatest authorities on auction bridge. Work was a better teacher and writer, but Whitehead was a better player. Both were too old to make a really successful transition to contract.

SHARPSHOOTER — Debbie Reynolds will star in Irving Berlin's "Annie Get Your Gun" as part of the 40th anniversary season of the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera at the Los Angeles Music Center next summer. The production about the sharp-shooting Annie Oakley, was mounted specifically for her at the request of Berlin.

Cal Poly to offer 'Bugs'

Cal Poly will present "Bugs," a new musical by the Improvisational Theater Group of the Los Angeles Music Center, in the University Theater at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Nov. 10. The show is geared to junior and senior high school audiences.

ITP is a project of the Center Theater Group/ Mark Taper Forum. Since it began touring six years ago, it has played to more than 200,000 students in Los Angeles County.

"Bugs," by ITP writer-in-residence Doris Baizley, is a myth with jazz. Harry Aguado composed the music. Directed by John Dennis, the play tells the story of the insect world 400 million years ago. The ant, honeybee, moth, praying mantis, spider and cockroach decide to make a creature who will do their work for them so they can be masters of the world. The creature turns out to be man.

ALIVE AND WELL — Jeff Tobin and Lynne Lundquist romp in the Chaffey College production of "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris." The musical revue will be staged cabaret style in the Little Theater at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 10-13 and 17-20. Admission is $2. The production is recommended for adults only.

Citrus to do 'Cuckoo's Nest'

The Citrus College drama department will present Dale Wasserman's drama, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," in the auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The play is recommended for mature audiences.

The drama deals with a devil-may-care man who decides to serve a short sentence in a mental insitiution instead of doing time at hard work in a prison. His encouragement and support of the patients and his conflict with the head nurse at the institution make exciting and dramatic entertainment.

The leading role of McMurphy is played by Fred Vaugeois, Citrus College theater manager. Co-starring are Phil Florence as Billy Bibbit, the patient who stutters; and Julie Schobert, who plays Head Nurse Ratched. Other students in the cast are Kip Decker, Mary Herbener, Mike Schmitt, Lawrence Henderson, Al Mendez, Greg Duer, Tom Osbrink, Henry Morley, Bob Macias, Mike Ferree, Nick Inorvina, Dave Ankey, George Searcy, Rebecca Courtney, Angie Harms, Therin Webber and Stephanie Gabral.

The play is directed by F.G. Garlson, Citrus College speech and drama instructor. Assistants are students Therin Webber and George Acosta.

Tickets are available now at the auditorium box office. Admission is $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and $1 for senior citizens.

Guild to stage art sale

The Diamond Bar Artists Guild will present a "Starving Artist" show and sale from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday on the parking lot of Payless Market, 300 S. Diamond Bar Blvd., Diamond Bar.

Wonders about rites

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: For the past year I've been dating a man from Chicago and we planned to get married the end of this year. We seem compatible, enjoy the same things and the same people, but when I recently visited him at his apartment for the first time, I was shocked. It was as if the tanant was a total stranger to me. His taste in decor and neighborhood is terrible and I wonder if I should marry him? — V.K.

Dear V.K.: Before you cancel plans for the wedding, make sure that he selected whatever it is that offended and shocked you. He may have inherited from a bachelor buddy or he may just be oblivious to his surroundings. The apartment may not reflect his taste. This can be true of anyone who spends relatively little time in his or her home. This man apparently travels a great deal since, if you're contemplating marriage, I assume you saw a lot of him over the past year.

If in discussing his apartment with him you find he has chosen the furnishings and the location, you might ask how much his choices mean to him. Would he be upset if you made the choices in the home you would share?

Dr. Leslie Brownrigg of Northwestern University says we tend to want to repeat the physical environment we knew as a child. You might learn more about your friend's family and early childhood by discussing his living space. It's also important for each of us to know something about our psychological space needs because they influence many of our choices.

Give your friend a fair chance, and don't be too hard on him.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I guess I'm an extrovert. I love people and a good time. Since my late teens I've enjoyed going out with friends for a few drinks. Suddenly at 32, I'm amazed and embarrassed to find I seem unable to handle liquor. I used to be the only one who never showed or felt the effects. I can't understand this. I'm not drinking any more than I ever did. What's happening? — B.L.

Dear B.L.: Alcohol is a drug and people can develop allergies to any drug. Also, how you react to alcohol might depend on your emotional state before you started drinking.

When alcohol produces distinct personality changes or when an individual's tolerance suddenly lessens, it can mean the onset of alcoholosm, even though it may still be in the early stages. It's wise, therefore, to take stock of yourself, just as you are doing. Get help now, if you need it.

The pill also may be responsible. A recent research project at the Oklahoma Center for Alcohol and Drug Related Studies revealed that women taking the birth control pill seem to stay high longer than those not on the pill. Women taking oral contraceptives metabolize alcohol slower.

You might test yourself to see if you can relax and have a good time without alcohol. If you can't, it's important to find out why alcohol has become a crutch.

Second theater screen opposed at hearing before La Verne Council

A group of homeowners from Villa La Verne promised a "fight to the end" to keep the Mt. Baldy Drive-in Theater from intalling a second viewing screen on its premises.

The application, submitted by John E. Forte, already was approved by Zoning Administrator Charles Le Gros, and was scheduled for a routine notification before the council when James Hayslip, president of the homeowner group rose to object.

He told the council that his association was "bitterly opposed to the erection of the screen and the expansion of the theater, and we will fight it to the end."

He urged the council to withdraw permission for the operation of the theater "and get something better up there."

His statement was preceded by that of Mary Sprowl of 2919 White Ave., who charged that a second screen would block her view of the mountains. She said the second screen would bring more undesirable elements to the city.

Le Gros, in his report to the council, said he had found that the request to put up a second screen was "consistent" with the city's general plan and the applicable land use zone. Moreover, he ruled, the addition of the screen would only have a "minimal effect" upon the surrounding properties.

"Any adverse effects are justified by the benefits conferred upon the neighborhood or the community as a whole," he found.

But after the statement of the homeowners, Mayor Mike M. Morales said he had some strong feelings about the proposed expansion.

He instigated an appeal of his own from the decision of the zoning administrator, and instructed City Manager George Caswell to set the matter on the agenda as soon as possible for appeal purposes.

Survey indicates college enrollment down

CINCINNATI (AP) — College enrollments may have declined nationwide about 1 per cent this fall to an estimated 11,126,000, according to an expert who said his preliminary findings are a "surprise and a shock."

Dr. Garland Parker, executive director for Enrollment Policy and Educational Research at the University of Cincinnati, said the declines had not been expected before 1980.

Parker said predictions had called for an increase of 4.5 per cent this year following last year's increase of 9 per cent.

Parker, who will publish final tabulations in two American College Testing Program (ACT) Special Reports next spring, said his findings were based on enrollment reports received from 688 repesentative colleges and universities enrolling some 1.5 million students.

Famed Cartier diamond brings mixed response

NEW YORK (AP) — It drew them and held them and said something to each. They crowded around, came as close as they could, circled slowly, spoke in whispers.

It was the Cartier Diamond, burning quietly under glass at Cartier's on Fifth Avenue.

And to see it came women in diamonds and women who had none, the lady who flashed her own stones and the lady who jangled her dime-store gems.

It is perfect, pure fire and color, 10.07 carats of crystalized carbon, the largest flawless diamond in the world.

Mary Jane Monroe, of Birminham, Ala., sighed when she saw it. "It's so pure," she said excitedly. "It makes me shiver."

Two well-heeled matrons gave it a hard stare, then began to compare their own diamonds. "It's just too big," said one, "and gaudy."

To look at the faces mesmerized by the diamond is to feel that a new force, mined just two years ago from the African earth, has been added to the struggle for power and its symbols.

It is valued at $5 million and sought after by men who are willing to pay more.

Delicately it is held aloft in a mannequin's hand, encased in glass and surrounded by mirrors and hundreds of man-made diamonds.

The diamond dominates the room where 150 pieces of the jeweler's art are on display in a retrospective exhibit celebrating the 101st anniversary of Louis Cartier's birthday. Louis was the grandson of the founder of the famed French jewelry house.

The cases were strewn with diamonds, emeralds, rubies, sapphires, topazes, onyx, jade, lapis. They were filled with necklaces, bracelets and brooches. There were vanity cases, boxes, watches, and the fabled "mystery clocks" of fist-sized crystal chunks.

People were awed by the artistry and the many beauties.

But they came to see the diamond.

"It's ugly," said Joe Ornstein, casting a critical eye. "I'm in this business. It's not exactly ugly, it's too big. Can't make a ring out of it. Maybe a pendant. But it is gorgeous material."

"It doesn't look real," said Sheldon Klein. "And, you wouldn't last a block with that in your pocket."

Jessie Dougherty, an elderly lady with plastic and glitter earrings, tiers of bracelets and sequins in her hat, just planted herself in front of the diamond and smiled.

"I love jewelry and I came all the way from Brooklyn to see the diamond," she said. "It sure is a big one."

Date set for murder trial

Dec. 13 is the date set for the beginning of the murder trial in Pomona Superior Court of Mrs. Rachel Irene Disson, 32-year-old woman accused in the slaying March 28, 1975, of her husband in Hacienda Heights.

Mrs. Disson won dismissal last year of the charge but subsequently that dismissal was reversed by the state Appellate Court and she was ordered to stand trial. The dismissal, granted May 23, 1975, was based on a claim by the woman's attorney, Deputy Public Defender William J. Klump, that evidence against her was insufficient. The district attorney's office later won the reversal on an appeal.

The victim, Gary Disson, 35, was shot to death in the couple's home at 15434 Barata St.

EIGHT WILD, WILD WESTERN WAYS TO CUT A DEDICATION RIBBON HIGHLIGHT THE OPENING OF THE NEW MILLER'S OUTPOST STORE IN THE STUNT ARENA OF UNIVERSAL STUDIOS TOUR

Guns roared, axes flashed, bottles broke, whips cracked and boulders fell as Universal Studios Tour Stuntmen tried to break the dedication ribbon at Miller's Outpost new/old unofficial store at the Tour Stunt Arena.

In true old west tradition the stuntmen attempted any number of ways to cut the opening day ribbon. Finally, it was decided to bring in a small ceremonial cannon for a last ditch effort. With a mighty boom the cannon fired its ammunition, only to trigger off some of the special effects that highlight the Stunt Show, however the ribbon remained intact.

At long last it was decided to forget the ribbon ceremony and just settle down to being outfitted with the finest in Levi's from a nearby Miller's Outpost.

The new/old un-official Miller's Outpost Store is now a featured part of the Stunt Show at Universal Studios Tour and may be seen during the Tour's regular operating hours — weekdays from 10:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and weekends from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

$1 million in civic projects approved

City Council takes action on federal funds

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

More than $1 million in civic projects to be funded under a federal grant were approved Monday night by the Pomona City Council.

The projects include a major beautification effort, new street lighting, and a variety of other programs.

Approval of the projects was made on an item-by-item basis by the council during its review of the first two years of the Community Development Block Grant federal program.

Only two of the projects in the $1.2 million package were not approved by the council. Those two, $60,000 for home improvement loans and $100,000 for community centers, were put aside for further review.

The largest single expenditure outlined under the grant is $335,000 for beautification. The bulk of those funds will apparently be used for the design and construction of city "gateways" in the Holt Avenue-Indian Hill Boulevard, and South Garey Avenue-Corona Expressway areas.

Council member Georgia Grove, chairman of the city's beautification committee, said specific proposals will be made to the council next week.

Most popular item listed on the plan was the $160,000 allocated for new street lights. Each member of the council agreed that new and improved lights were neeeded around town and that more money should be used if it becomes available.

Again, no specific areas were designated for street lights although council members seemed to agree that the first priority should be those areas that have no lights at all.

Apparently the plan is for the city to purchase and install lights if residents in the vicinity will agree to pay the electrical power costs.

Other projects approved by the council included $60,000 for demolition of sub-standard buildings; $30,000 for historic preservation; $90,000 for coordination of housing programs in the city; $25,000 for certain public improvements; $25,000 for community development plan implementation; $60,500 for aids to the handicapped; and $30,000 for a census update.

What little controversy that surfaced over the grant program centered on the proposal for low-interest home improvement loans.

Councilman Charles Bader, vehemently opposed such a project, saying the city "is not organized, trained or equipped to get into the loan business."

"I question whether there is anyone on the city staff qualified as a banker. I just don't think the city should get in the business," he said.

Mrs. Grove stated that the city of West Covina is operating a successful program. She urged city officials to find out how it works there.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said the city might even use the funds for outright grants to persons who have improved their property in accordance with specifications adopted by the council.

The other proposal tabled by the council, community centers, was held over for the council to examine the value of each park in town having its own small center as opposed to the city having one multi-purpose center.

Although no vote was taken on that question, it appeared the majority sentiment was against the small centers at each park.

Montclair council not ready to endorse Expo

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair declared his city's moral obligation to voice concerns about a possible world's fair in Ontario and said that official endorsement would not come from the City Council until those concerns were allayed.

During the regular City Council session Monday night, Hayes led the discussion about Expo 81, the proposed world's fair to be held from May to November 1981 at the Ontario Motor Speedway. He referred to local newspaper reports of a joint meeting with the Chino City Council Oct. 11 in which both city groups commented on the effects of such a fair upon the West End communities.

Hayes pointed out that many people wrongly interpreted those concerns about transportation, sufficient housing for the fair visitors, buildings left as eyesores in the community, traffic congestion and hazards from the large influx of outsiders and direct financial benefits to the West End cities as official opposition by the Montclair and Chino city councils. Some people have charged, said Hayes, that the city officials have no right to raise these questions.

"It was clearly stated in the newspaper articles that we've taken no official position. We have the responsibility to ask questions. The (U.S.) Department of Commerce says there will be no fair if the public doesn't want it, if the cities in the area object to it. If the Department of Commerce wants input from the local governments, why haven't they communicated with us?" Hayes asked. "The promoters have held no meeting with the city councils in the area except Ontario."

The mayor questioned why the environmental impact report on the fair has not been released and why no specifics have been detailed on emergency vehicle accessibility to the fair site, housing problems, police and fire protection and a number of other important incidentals.

"We should communicate directly with the Department of Commerce and Expo 81 promoters and to the state legislators since Senator Ruben Ayala has proposed a bill to share the sales tax. We should also communicate to Congressman Jim Lloyd and to the President whoever he might be," Hayes said.

"All of this should go on the record at this time. We will take no official position of endorsement or support until we receive the full information on these concerns," Hayes declared.

The other council members concurred with the mayor's comments. Councilman Nelson Gentry said that although Mayor Paul Treadway of Ontario has attempted to arrange workshops of information for surrounding cities, the exposition promoters have provided no information to local cities.

"I hope the information we'll receive from these people will be favorable. We have high unemployment. The employment aspect is unbelievable. I hope the benefits outweigh the detriments," Gentry said.

For new regional anti-smog board

Supervisors complain about financing

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

San Bernardino County supervisors Monday railed against various financing proposals for the new regional anti-smog board that would boost the county's cost share.

A proposal from Orange County would increase San Bernardino County's present share from $567,000 to $808,000 per year. Orange County's plan is based on amounts of pollutants emitted in each county rather than on population as the present financing is based.

"Probably 70 per cent of the dirty air in our county comes from Los Angeles and Orange counties," said Supervisor James Mayfield. "I'll accept this (new financing plan by Orange County) if they'll give us an 80 per cent discount."

Mayfield complained later that it would be "double jeopardy" if San Bernardino County pays more than three other counties on the new smog board, since "We're already subsidizing the others."

Supervisors discussed the financing methods in order to give Chairman Dennis Hansberger an idea of what position to take when the four-county Southern California Air Pollution Control District meets Friday in Pomona. That board will discuss what type of state legislation should be sought to change the financing arrangements for the new smog board that replaces the SCAPCD on Feb. 1.

The new South Coast Air Basin anti-smog board will include two representatives from Los Angeles County, and one each from Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties — plus four city representatives from each county and a state appointee.

Hansberger disclosed during Monday's discussion that San Bernardino and Riverside counties may attempt to gain veto power on the new board, much like the power they now have on the SCAPCD.

Veto power may come in exchange for relief granted Orange County, which is facing a large increase in its cost share under the new board. "They're willing to give us more power if we pay more money," explained Hansberger.

Actually, the financing arrangements could stay the same as presently mandated under AB 250, the bill by Assemblyman Jerry Lewis (R-Highland) which created the new smog board. Costs not covered by state and federal funds and industrial permit fees would be (as they are now) spread among the four counties on a population basis.

But the formula has come under fire from Orange County, which has experienced a tremendous increase in costs from $322,000 a year to $1.3 million. Also, the cities involved in the new board will not contribute any funds although they will have four representatives — and that has been criticized strongly by Los Angeles County Supervisor Pete Schabarum.

San Bernardino County Supervisor Robert Townsend said Orange County's plan to use gas tax funds to pay some of their costs holds no attraction for his county. San Bernardino County has a much longer road system to maintain than Los Angeles and Orange counties but receives less gas tax revenue than those counties.

Hansberger said jokingly that "We could rezone the desert so there won't be any gas stations between San Bernardino and Las Vegas. That'd be fun."

Other proposed financing methods such as motor vehicle fuel taxes did not meet with great enthusiasm from the supervisors.

Restaurant patron awarded $325 in suit

A Superior Court jury returned a $325 award in Los Angeles against the Cattlemen's Wharf, a La Verne restaurant, which refused admission to a patron because he was "improperly dressed."

The finding was returned Monday after a two day-trial and 2½ days of deliberations in favor of Neil S. Bezaire, a San Gabriel attorney.

Bezaire's suit, filed nearly three years ago in behalf of himself and a companion, Craig Smith, had sought $500,000 in actual and punitive damages.

The two men claimed they were refused admission to the restaurant Dec. 7, 1973, because they were not wearing "acceptable clothing" and because their hair was too long. Bezaire said when he tried to argue the decision, two policemen came up and threatened to arrest him.

The jury ruled in favor of Bezaire but declined to give a judgment to Smith. There was no explanation as to the apparent inconsistency of the decision.

The civil trial was held before Judge Edward J. O'Connor.

Second trial scheduled

The second murder trial of Richard Sinnott, 18, has been scheduled to begin Dec. 13 in Los Angeles Superior Court where a jury last week found him innocent of an accompanying robbery charge but could not decide the murder issue.

Sinnott, of Tempe, Ariz., is accused of beating to death Cal Poly professor William C. Warner in Warner's apartment in Diamond Bar early the morning of Oct. 20, 1975. Sinnott, 17 when he was arrested at his home in Arizona, subsequently was ruled unfit for consideration as a juvenile and ordered to stand trial as an adult.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Clifton Garrott again will handle the prosecution and the trial again will be in the courtroom of Los Angeles Superior Judge Billie G. Mills.

Los Angeles County sheriff's homicide detectives charged that Sinnott, and another Arizonan, accompanied Warner, 53, home from a Pomona tavern and that Sinnott beat him to death in a second-floor bedroom while the other man was in the first-floor livingroom listening to the hi-fi.

Ontario baby boy drowns in bathtub

A 14-month-old baby boy accidentally drowned in about one foot of water in a bathtub at his home at 1502 S. Pleasant Ave., Ontario, early Monday.

Ontario police reported that the baby was left alone in the tub.

Daniel Herrera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fausto Herrera, of the Pleasant Avenue address, was pronounced dead at Ontario Community Hospital about 11:20 a.m.

Paramedics called to the home found the child lifeless on the living room floor. Despite all of their efforts, the paramedics were unable to revive the baby.

Police said the baby was placed in the bath water by one of three teenagers hired to babysit the victim and his 3-year-old sister, Josue.

The teenager, Maria Torrez, told officers that she had placed the child in a bathtub and left for a short time. When she returned, she found the baby lying under the water and called the firemen. Parents were at work.

Three are injured in traffic accidents

Three persons, one of them a motorcyclist, were injured Monday in traffic accidents in Pomona.

The motorcyclist, Mark S. Ivey, 18, of Pomona, suffered a back injury in a collision with a car at Park Avenue and Chester Place. Ivey was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police said the collision occurred Monday morning when the other driver involved, Nancy C. Walden, 28, of Walnut, turned left in front of the motorcyclist as he drove southbound in Park Avenue.

Two persons were injured in a collision shortly after 1 a.m. at Towne and Bonita avenues. The drivers were John Halliday III, 18, of Claremont, and Daniel L. Cliffe, 20, of Pomona.

Halliday suffered head cuts and was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. A passenger in Cliffe's car, Rubin A. Cerda, 23, of San Dimas, suffered a facial cut, but declined medical attention.

School board meeting canceled

Pomona school board canceled its public meeting tonight to devote the time completely to contract negotiations in executive session with representatives of the teachers.

Closing arguments slated today

Closing arguments were scheduled today in Pomona Superior Court in the murder trial of Cleveland Lyle Clark.

Clark, 23, of Pomona, is charged with the shotgun slaying March 8 of bartender William Hyland, 30, inside the Belinda Terrace bar at 480 Pomona Mall West where Clark had been refused service a few minutes earlier.

Clark, a former out-patient at the Tri-City Mental Health Clinic, has pleaded innocent and ignocent by reason of insanity. The trial began early last month.

Second Thomas trial scheduled for Nov. 15

The second murder trial of Gregory Thomas, 23-year-old Pomonan charged in the slaying in 1975 of 78-year-old Tessie Fern Williams, has been scheduled to begin Nov. 15 in Los Angeles Superior Court.

Clark was convicted of murder, rape and burglary in the victim's death at his first trial before a Pomona Superior Court jury. The panel also later found that the case involved the so-called "special circumstances" now required to obtain a death penalty verdict, but both judgements were set aside by trial Judge Robert M. Takasugi on defense claims of new evidence in the case. The trial subsequently was transferred into Los Angeles because of its expected length.

Thomas is accused of burglarizing the victim's house, raping her and stabbing her to death before taking her television set.

Right now in the United States, about 360,000 children live in foster homes or institutions. At the same time that these children wait for permanent homes, thousands of families across the country are waiting for children to adopt.

Yet current studies show that 55 per cent of all abandoned children are still in foster care after five years, and that although foster care is supposed to be temporary, a child is likely to stay four to six years and change foster homes two to three times.

In other words, many of these children will spend a quarter to a third of their entire childhoods in a series of temporary arrangements.

The dollar costs as well as the human costs are enormous. Foster care now represents the largest single item of child welfare expense on the county level. Foster care costs range from $3,000 to $6,000 a year. Annual institutional costs begin at $8,000 and soar to over $50,000.

By contrast, the cost of placing a so-called "hard to - place" child is typically about half that of a year in foster care. Moreover, it is a onetime expense.

The North American Council on Adoptable Children (NACAC) has launched a campaign with the goal of finding a permanent home by Christmas for as many of these 360,000 children as possible.

The Council is a coalition of more than 200 citizen advocate groups in the U.S. and Canada, many of which have been working for as long as 20 years to remove legal and social barriers to adoption.

Bureaucracy doesn't respond to the needs and rights of these children, says Mrs. Linda Dunn, president of NACAC. "Agency case workers are overloaded and so are court calendars. Old attitudes on everyone's part too often label these children unadoptable. That's just not true. Every child is adoptable."

To focus attention on the problem, the organization will stage its first North American Adoption Week during Thanksgiving week, holding conferences and other public events throughout the country.

Fortunately, old attitudes are beginning to change. The traditional concept of a "good adoptive applicant" no longer necessarily excludes single persons or people with disabilities.

However, thousands upon thousands of American children are still being denied the most basic of rights: the right to grow up in a permanent and loving family.

Need regulators

Amid all the criticism of excessive government regulation, we must not lose sight of the fact that underregulation would be even worse.

It was abuses in the meat packing industry, for example, that led to the establishment of the Food and Drug Administration in the first decade of the century.

Interestingly enough, the same industry is again in a clash with consumerists, and another government agency is caught in the middle.

Under interim Department of Agriculture (USDA) regulations, meat processors were beginning to utilize a machine for producing "mechanically deboned meat" as has been done in the seafood and poultry industries for years.

It is estimated that mechanical deboning, which makes more efficient use of selected portions of animal carcasses, would add at least one billion pounds of meat a year to the U.S. supply.

Seven consumer groups, however, obtained a federal court injunction ordering the USDA to withdraw its interim approval until it has completed a full evaluation of the process.

The trouble with mechanical deboning is that some bone, having the consistency of powder, is included in the meat. A processed meat using 10 per cent mechanically deboned meat would contain a bone content of about four-tenths of one per cent.

The consumer activists object that bone is a contaminant, that it may contain traces of strontium 90 or antibiotics used in animal feed and that some people may be allergic to excessive calcium. The industry counters that none of these objections have been proved by testing and that mechanically deboned meat is a valuable additional source of protein.

Here is another instance where the public interest depends on the good sense, impartiality and dedication of its regulators.

Lloyd's voting record criticized

Dear Editor:

I noted that you endorsed Congressman Jim Lloyd for reelection.

I would like you to take a long look at his voting record as reported in the Congressional Record and then tell me how we can possibly afford to keep this man in office. His major aim appears to be to spend as much of the taxpayers' money as quickly as possible.

He even voted himself an automatic, annual pay raise at our expense. He won't suffer from increased inflation if we send him back to Washington, but the taxpayers certainly will.

Martha Cheney
Pomona

Dear Editor:

It came to my attention that you endorsed Jim Lloyd for reelection as Representative of the 35th Congressional Dist. I would like to call to your attention Lloyd's voting record.

On a sample of 25 key proposals, Jim Lloyd voted for 20 which would increase the size of government, therefore increase taxes. Why is this something you would approve of?

He has voted for more welfare, more foreign aid, more government jobs and a raise for Congress, just to name a few. I work for a living and pay the bill for this ridiculous spending and I resent it.

Norman Parisien

Dear Editor:

I believe it was Abraham Lincoln who said: "It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time."

The thing that concerns me now is whether you are the "con artist" who is hoping to do the fooling or the poor idiot who is constantly being fooled when you endorse our two-faced Congressman Jim Lloyd for another term.

This man has been unresponsive in representing his constituents and irresponsible in his voting patterns. He has constantly voted to increase the burden of government by voting time and time again on passage of bills that increase our taxes and cause greater and greater inflation.

I am enclosing a copy of his voting record taken from the Congressional Record to you to look at. Why don't you try to be honest and print this voting record for all your subscribers to see right next to your endorsement or do you feel that by doing so it would show you to be the fool or the confederate of a man with his whole fist in our wallets.

MAC a forward step

Dear Editor:

In rebuttal to Michael J. Doherty of Diamond Bar, I have the following statements regarding the Municipal Advisory Committee for Diamond Bar and the 17 candidates running for the four elected posts.

Generally, when you have a newly formed organization, there was a group behind it, working for its creation. This holds true whether it be governmental, social, religious or athletic. In the case of MAC, the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association is the logical organized group to work for formation of MAC. I would not look to the scouts or churches for that purpose. We do need a group in Diamond Bar to communicate the majority voice of the residents to the County Board of Supervisors and particularly Mr. Schabarum on matters concerning Diamond Bar. Mr. Doherty states that county government is responsible and will do the right things with no input from the residents of Diamond Bar regarding zone changes, land use changes, highway improvements, park and recreation facilities, etc.

Our family has resided in Diamond Bar for 12 years. We have seen the Master Planned Community's Master Plan altered by lack of protest from all the non-members of any organizations, the non-registered voters — who seem to not really care what happens in their community.

I believe MAC is a step in the right direction. We are not large enough, nor will we have sufficient tax base for a long, long time, if ever, to become a self-sustaining city. Hence, we remain a community, governed by the county of Los Angeles. We do have the right to be able to advise those elected officials, in particular Mr. Schabarum and his deputies, of our wishes regarding matters that concern our community and its direction.

Mr. Doherty stated, "When we go to the polls Tuesday, our wishes will be heard and a resounding no vote for MAC will be heard." My wishes and his are not the same! I feel those of us who have worked in the community, with the community and for the community (be they members of the Diamond Bar Homeowners Association or not) view MAC as a forward step!

Hopefully, there are more registered voters in my corner than in Mr. Doherty's. Incidentally, I am personally acquainted with 12 of the 17 candidates for MAC and know them all to be hardworking, selfless volunteers in the community in many different endeavors. I don't know or really care how many of these 12 or of the other 5, with whom I am not acquainted, are active members of the Homeowners Association. I have never been a member of that organization myself, but I respect the works they have accomplished over the years. I did attend the forum held by the League of Women Voters to hear all 17 candidates speak and it will be difficult to choose just 4 for election. I believe each candidate sincerely applied for the elected office because he or she live in Diamond Bar and are proud of our community. Each candidate has stated he or she is willing to donate the time, whatever that time requirement is, to keep Diamond Bar the fine community it is now. — Nancy Kent, Diamond Bar

WASHINGTON — Donald Alexander, the embattled Internal Revenue Commissioner, is supposed to direct tax investigations of others. Yet he has repeatedly come under investigation himself. Just recently, he tried to find out whether the Treasury Dept. is keeping criminal files on his activities.

Alexander works for the Treasury Dept., which has jurisdiction over the Internal Revenue Service. Yet astonishingly, he lodged an official request, under the Freedom of Information Act, for any files the department might have on him.

The Customs Service is also a Treasury agency, which cooperates closely with the IRS. Yet Alexander submitted a separate Freedom of Information request for the Customs Service's files on him.

Under the Freedom of Information Act, American citizens are entitled to know what's in their federal files. But it is unprecedented for a high official to request his personal files from his own associates.

Perhaps it shouldn't be surprising that Alexander is apprehensive. He was accused of blocking a tax audit of Sen. Joseph Montoya, D.-N.M. Alexander also impeded another tax investigation, which involved his former law partners. He protested his innocence in both cases.

Subsequently, Customs identified Alexander as a possible defendant in a criminal investigation of Procter and Gamble, the soap colossus, which has its headquarters in his hometown of Cincinnati.

Back in 1972, Procter and Gamble discovered it owed import duties, totaling $29,000, on toys purchased from Japan. The firm sought the counsel of Alexander, who was then a respected Cincinnati attorney. He advised the company to ignore the $29,000 deficiency but to pay all future duties. A Customs investigation alleged that Procter and Gamble made false statements to evade the duty payments. Alexander was accused of conspiring to defraud the government.

The $29,000 was small change for the soap kings. But the company could have been hit with penalties equaling the domestic value of the toys. This could have added up to millions of dollars.

Customs referred the case to the Justice Dept. Our sources say that Customs also asked the U.S. attorney in Seattle, where the toy shipments arrived, to subpoena Alexander. The prosecutor refused, saying Alexander violated no laws.

The IRS also showed us a personal letter to Alexander from former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. The letter declares: "I see nothing unethical in the advice you rendered (to Procter and Gamble) and to indicate that some type of criminal conduct may have been involved is ludicrous."

Other sources close to the investigation concluded that Alexander's conduct in fact was unethical. But they agreed it wasn't illegal.

Alexander began to stew, nevertheless, over the results of the Customs investigation. He asked his associates at Customs and the Treasury what the files showed. They assured him that they had not compiled extensive files on his activities.

Still suspicious, Alexander invoked the Freedom of Information Act and submitted a formal request on official IRS stationery for his files. His assistant, Thomas Glynn, explained to our associate Marc Smolonsky that Alexander wanted to find out whether Customs had made an "improper investigation" of him.

Customs responded, deadpan, with a routine letter demanding: "Before we initiate a review of Customs records, it is necessary that you submit a notorized statement ascertaining your identity."

Burning over the indignity, the internal revenue commissioner provided the notorized proof that he was, indeed, Donald Alexander. He also requested that all fees be waived, contending that the records would be "in the public interest."

He got back a batch of old newspaper clippings from his Treasury file. The Customs file on him contained an investigative report. But it was so expurgated that he couldn't have found it very informative.

CURIOUS CONTRIBUTIONS: Vernon W. Thompson is chairman of the Federal Elections Commission. It is his sworn duty to administer the election law.

Now it looks as if he may have to crack down on some of his own contributors. They formed a "People for Thompson" organization in 1974 to re-elect him to Congress. But, unhappily, he was unseated by Rep. Alvin Baldus, D.-Wis.

Thompson found new employment running the Federal Elections Commission. He thought his fund-raising friends had disbanded. But they turned up unexpectedly, still bearing the "People for Thompson" banner, in this campaign.

These People for Thompson, it turned out, are now for Adolph Gunderson. He is a former Thompson aide who decided to run for Congress himself. The People for Thompson group, accordingly, coughed up $5,000 for Gunderson.

The way the law is written, unfortunately, the group must be registered as a multicandidate committee before it can contribute over $1,000 to a campaign. Having neglected this formality, the group then compounded the felony by making token $25 contributions to four different candidates.

The purpose was to qualify the group as a multicandidate committee. But this, too, failed to comply with the legal technicalities.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

I have long been convinced that half truths are the pearls which keep political candidates in business. But never in this nation's long history of political dissembling have they been bandied about with more seeming authority than they are today. Presently one of the more interesting examples of this type of white lying has to do with the employment situation in this country.

"More people are now employed than ever before in our history," thunders one candidate.

"Our unemployment rate is the highest since the Great Depression," counters the other candidate.

And believe it or not, both are right. But unfortunately few of us take the trouble to analyze and simplify those statements. The truth is, if the previous employment high was 100 and today's high is 101, we have, of course, set an all time employment record.

But if the previous unemployment rate was 5 per cent and today's is 8 per cent, it stands to reason that more people are now collecting unemployment insurance. — Why oh why, I wonder, can't political opponents first agree on the basic facts and, having accurately defined the problem, go on from there to tell us how they would correct it?

Access to newspapers

By EARL G. WATERS

Although, momentarily, the attention of the press and those who care about its freedom has centered on the struggle for the reporter's right to confidentiality, another threat to an uninhibited press is brewing. This is the attempt to compel the substitution of a nebulous doctrine of "right of access" for editorial news judgment.

What the proponents of the doctrine seek is a modicum of control by the government over newspapers to compel the printing of anyone's and everyone's views regardless of the newsworthiness of such opinions. They hold that the constitutional guarantee of free speech will become useless unless the government imposes requirements upon newspapers similar to regulations of the FCC for radio and television.

That the threat is real is seen in the "right of reply" statute adopted in Florida. Although it was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court the efforts for some form of government regulation for compulsory space in newspapers have not diminished.

In support of these efforts the realities of newspaper publication in today's world are cited. The high costs of equipment and newsprint and payrolls have worked to dwindle competition. The merging of newspapers and the acquisition of independent journals by chains have created a "monopolistic influence" held by "news corporations". Viewed with great alarm is the disappearance of opposition daily newspapers in the major cities throughout the land as well as their absence in most of the rest of the communities.

The opinion is that because newspaper owners are now important industrialists they think and act as members of the economic group to which they belong and block from the pages of their papers political viewpoints counter to their interests.

There is a certain validity to the criticisms made of newspapers. No doubt some horrible examples of one-sided coverage by a specific newspaper can be shown. But most newspapers demonstrate a remarkable sense of responsibility for fairness both in the news columns and editorial pages. Almost all devote space, expanded by many, to reader opinions. Many have instituted ombudsmen to field complaints. But to compel, in the name of free speech, newspapers to give equal space to everyone's counter views would have a chilling effect on the publication of all news.

Neither is the contention that free speech demands the right of access by everyone to the established newspapers. True the costs of competing financially with an established press is prohibitive to most. But the cost of pamphleteering is not. Anybody with a mimeograph can get into circulated publication. An article in last month's New West describes the proliferation of newsletters and recants how a recent shoestring newspaper effort in the Bay Area has blossomed into a profitable 75,000 circulation.

The subject of "right of access to newspapers" is treated in depth in an article in the latest Santa Clara Law Review by Civil Liberties Union lawyer Michael Gary Chatzky and 1976 law graduate William Eric Robinson. They trace the trend of newspaper monopoly and the various court decisions relating to the pertinent first amendment rights. Conceding the acceptance of the access doctrine "lies somewhere in the delicate process of implementation" and that any regulation should be carefully controlled with compulsion "expressly limited to the provision for space for responsible public interests groups and individuals on a revolving basis" they project that government policy to foster commerce "must be reaffirmed and implemented as swiftly and promptly and decisively as possible if our society is to be as contemporary in its exchange of thoughts as it is in the exchange of products.

Ann Landers

A revolting development

Dear Ann Landers: Someone on the radio reported that the National Institute on Alcoholism estimates that approximately one million high school kids (which is one in 20) get drunk on the average of once a week.

Can this be true? If it is, what is causing our young people to turn to alcohol? What help is available for the teenage alcoholic? Please enlighten me and others who are wondering about this. — Niagara Falls Reader

Dear N.F.R.: The figures sound accurate to me.

Many teenagers are into alcohol because it's easier to get than other drugs. (I say "other" because alcohol IS a drug.) Moreover, it is legal for adults, and parents aren't about to hassle their kids about it when they drink themselves.

Any teenager who figures he has a drinking problem can call Alcoholics Anonymous. (It's in the phone book.) AA will send over someone in the same age bracket to talk about attending meetings. I heartily endorse AA. They have had a far better record of success than the religious groups and the psychiatrists.

Dear Ann Landers: I was just reading that Americans spent over $650 million on dolls last year. They were the most popular toy of all.

But dolls aren't purchased for their looks, it's what they DO that attracts buyers. They walk, talk, cry tears, crawl, sneeze, and wet their pants.

The biggest-selling doll last year was "Skipper." When you twist her arm, she swells up in certain places and produces a pair of breasts. This year you will be able to buy a doll that not only has breasts, but "winks and smiles suggestively."

What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — What Next?

Dear What: Do I HAVE to think about it? I'd rather not. The whole idea is revolting.

Dear Ann Landers: A friend sent me the following which he copied off a bookmark. It reflects such an optimistic philosophy I hope you will share it with your readers. Everyone over 40 will appreciate the lift. — I Read You In Bangkok

Dear Faraway Friend: Loved your "bookmark philosophy" and I'm delighted to share it:

"Youth is not a time of life, it is a state of mind, a product of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions, a predominance of courage over timidity — an appetite for adventure.

"Nobody grows old by living a number of years. People grow old when they desert their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul.

"Worry, self-doubt, fear and anxiety — these are the culprits that bow the head and break the spirit.

"Whether 16 or 70, there exists in the heart of every person who loves life the thrill of a new challenge, the insatiable appetite for what is coming next. You are as young as your faith and as old as your doubts.

"So long as your heart receives from your head messages that reflect beauty, courage, joy and excitement, you are young. When your thinking becomes clouded with pessimism and prevents you from taking risks, then you are old — and may God have mercy on your soul."

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teenage Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Speedometer for passenger?

Should a second speedometer be added to the right side of a car's dashboard so the passenger thereby can take note of its readings and offer comment? Some police in Belgium think so. They say their traffic statistics prove that driving husbands accompanied by their wives get into fewer accidents than do fellows who drive alone. Our Love and War man sympathizes with their position, but not much.

If any of those in your family show up for dinner tonight — congratulations — you might spring this one at the table! Who can jot down five odd figures that add up to 14? Say figures, not numbers, please note. Isn't easy. Dessert goes to the party who offers three 1's and an 11.

RED LETTER DAY

Q. "Where did we get the term 'red letter day'?"

A. Ordinary dates on the old calendars were printed in black, special holidays in red.

Remember, no place in any ocean is more than 1,500 miles from land.

That renowned English artist Thomas Gainsborough used paint brushes with six-foot handles.

More than one medical expert now claims the best cure for hiccups is the swallowing of a big spoonful of dry table sugar.

Pigs, like men, can turn into full-blown alcoholics, according to the lab researchers, although pigs when drunk haven't yet been observed to behave like men when drunk, pecularily.

HAPPINESS IS

It has been said repeatedly that to be happy a citizen needs five things: Health, freedom, economic independence, congenial work and reciprocated love. There's little debate that the foregoing is correct. What the argument is all about has to do with the order of importance.

In the Dutch, says our Language man, the word "koek" means "cake," and its diminutive is "koekje" which means "little cake," and that clearly is the origin of our word "cookie," got that?

No fan of the comic strips should fail to learn that a real Dr. Rex Morgan practices in Sioux City, Iowa.

Socializing folk in this country talk mostly about the weather probably because it's the subject least likely to hit a personal note that might offend. But among some portion of the 466 million Moslems, the weather is not regarded as an appropriate topic for light conversation. Ill-advised comment on same, it's felt by many, appears to criticize the arrangements of The Deity.

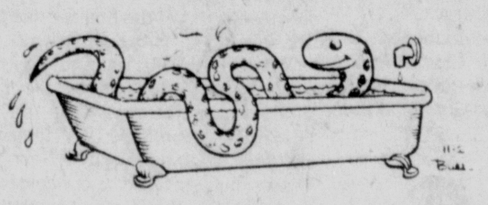
Garter snake likes own pool



DEAR DR. MILLER: I've fixed up an aquarium which is 20 inches long for my garter snake, El Lopo. Is that long enough? The other thing is, I spray leaves for his drinking water like I used to do for my lizard. Is that best, or is a drinking cup? — A.N.

DEAR A.N.: The aquarium's long enough — If El Lopo's short enough. Figure his home should be at least one and a half times his length (and half his length wide). As far as fluids are concerned, spraying leaves is all right for a lizard, but El Lopo would do better with a more concentrated quantity. What he'd really prefer would be a bathtub big enough for complete immersion on occasion, rather than a puny drinking cup.

DEAR DR. MILLER: If your canary has a black toe, does it mean anything? I never noticed that he had it before, but I looked real close and he sure does now. — P.T.

DEAR P.T.: Odds are that black toe means real trouble for your tiny bird. It's not uncommon for canaries to develop foot circulatory problems, in the toes in particular. The end result is probably gradual loss of circulation starting with the tip and extending back up the toe to its base. Progressive darkening of the skin usually indicates increased loss of circulation. Rarely can a black toe be salvaged. Intensive treatment is often required if the other toes (and the bird) are to be saved. Consequently, a darkening toe on a caged bird usually indicates a dangerous, potentially progressive circulatory problem which, if ignored, may eventually become fatal.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Was just given Hamburger, a nine-month old part dog part German shepherd. Some say a choke collar is dangerous, others say if you put it on right it's OK. Could it help me train Hamburger? — L.T.

DEAR L.T.: A choke collar when properly used, (that is, to help communicate to the dog what is desired — not as a choking tool) is an important piece of training equipment. It can, if improperly used, actually become a "choke" collar, but if so that's the fault of the trainer on the other end of the leash. Don't blame the collar. When it is worn properly, it hangs loosely around the neck whenever tension from the leash is relieved. If the choke collar remains snug around the neck when there is no leash tension, it's probably on backwards and should be removed and replaced correctly.

A winner has problems, too

According to my mail, people all over the country who have never won so much as a Reader's Digest Sweepstakes or a Pillsbury Bake-off have finally hit it lucky.

They pick up their phones and a husky-voiced lady informs them they have just won a cemetery plot. Choked up at the idea of being an instant landowner, they cannot see the ramifications of the offer.

What begins as a simple family discussion over your eternal future ends up as a shout-off in the Domestic Olympics.

Here's what happened to one couple in Florida. According to Phyllis, when she told her husband Cecil they had won a plot he said, "You can have it."

"What's that supposed to mean?" she asked. "Where are you going to be buried?"

"Not where," he said smugly, "but when."

"I'm not surprised," she snorted. "You never go anyplace with me. I thought at least we could be buried together . . . maybe even be cremated and have our ashes intermingled in the same urn."

"I do not plan on spending my eternity resting ash to ash with anyone. Besides, knowing your mother and her aversion to dust, we'd get thrown out the first week with the newspapers. I swear she throws out newspapers with the rubber bands still on them."

"I do not believe you are saying these things," said Phyllis, weeping softly into her handerchief.

"Why are you so upset?" he asked.

"IT'S YOUR ATTITUDE. It's going to be just like Christmas eve, isn't it?"

He put down his paper. "You've lost me, Phyllis. WHAT is going to be like Christmas eve?"

"My funeral. You're going to whip out at the last minute and throw something together. If Revco doesn't have it, I'll go without it."

"You want me to shop?"

"There are a lot of options. There's the talking tombstone, for example, with a picture on it."

"You're putting me on, Phyllis. Say you're putting me on."

"I am not putting you on. They have them with recordings and a picture of your loved one."

"If you think I'm paying good money to stand in front of a stone and listen to a recording of you nagging, 'Cecil, take out the garbage before it smells,' you're crazy."

"Let these words go forth around the land, Cecil Hardheart, if you put on my stone that picture of me taken last year in Florida when I was sick as a dog on that fishing boat, you'd better hope you win a cemetery plot of your own."

Sometimes, even when you win, you lose.

Some good, bad about aspirin

DEAR DR. LAMB — Prolonged use of arthritic drugs produced such undesirable side effects that I was hospitalized with an irritated pancreas. An internist advised free use of Ascriptin (aspirin with Maalox). I have read that large doses of aspirin cause bleeding of the stomach and intestines. Please advise me as to the soundness of large doses of Ascriptin for control of arthritic pain and soreness.

DEAR READER — Ascriptin is aspirin with Maalox as you stated. As such it is "buffered" meaning it helps prevent the aspirin from irritating the stomach, at least to some small extent.

Aspirin will burn or irritate tissue if a small piece of it is allowed to remain in contact with tissue for a period of time. You can help prevent this problem by crushing it and putting it in a half cup of milk. Or you can take it with food. This means it will not be absorbed as rapidly and its action in relieving pain will be delayed. However, the action will last longer.

It is true that aspirin will prolong bleeding time. That is why its use in preventing strokes and heart attacks is under study. It would probably also help prevent any of the clotting tendencies that occur in some women taking birth control pills. The lower rate of heart attacks and strokes in patients with arthritis taking aspirin was one of the early tip-offs that aspirin might be useful in this regard.

I cannot recommend the use of aspirin to prevent heart attacks at this time. The value of the medicine for this purpose as opposed to its hazards is now undergoing a massive national study. After that is done you will have a good answer about its usefulness and limitations.

Two ordinary (five grain or 300 milligram) aspirin tablets will double the bleeding time for as long as seven days. For this reason anyone who has any medical problems associated with bleeding should not use aspirin in any form. This includes people with peptic ulcers or any tendency to bleed from the digestive system. Women should not take aspirin in any form for at least two weeks before delivering a baby.

If you do not have any problem that might be associated with bleeding the use of the aspirin is not likely to cause you any problems — and to the extent that it may have some beneficial effects in preventing heart attacks and strokes — it may help.

Aspirin remains the best all around medicine to relieve pain in joints or muscular aching as commonly occurs in degenerative arthritis — the kind you get as you get older. You do not need to take large doses for this effect.

In much larger doses, prescribed by a doctor, it can be used to decrease inflammation as occurs in rheumatoid arthritis. How much you take depends upon what is being treated. There are a number of medicines on the market that will relieve pain and can be used for osteoarthritis, but do not decrease inflammation and cannot be used for that purpose in treating rheumatoid arthritis.

To give you more information about aspirin and related medicines you might want to use to relieve pain I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-8, Aspirin and Related Medicines. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

New day an exciting event

As I began to run early one morning, I was completely overwhelmed with the excitement of a new day that was breaking. With a sliver of moon still remaining, the sun came bursting through over shadow-backed mountains with a resplendent glory of gold. The air was sweet and clean. What a glorious new day! What a beautiful land of beginning again called Now.

What a gift Today is! After all, you didn't ask the sun to rise this morning. You didn't ask for the new day. God gave it to you. It is His gift — the gift of beginning again — a new opportunity to live a better more beautiful life than yesterday!

I invite you to share in the excitement of this new day by repeating with me, "Good morning, God. What are you up to today? I want to be a part of it."

Now get set for a wonderful day with God as your friend.

Poly cagers have potential

It's hard to believe but the college basketball season is only three weeks away.

The football season always goes too fast or at least it seems so when you get older.

This could be a good year on the hardwood for valley fans since Cal Poly has the potential of fielding an outstanding team.

On paper, the Broncos appear to have their finest team ever. But teams don't win games on potential.

Coach Don Hogan, who guided the Broncos to a third place finish in last year's NCAA Division II West Regionals, is optimistic about the season but also realizes there is a big challenge for assistant Allan Van Winkle and himself.

"Things are encouraging," Hogan said in reviewing the first two weeks of practice. "We have people who have the talent. For once, our depth is outstanding."

Hogan and Van Winkle will get an early indication of what to expect when the Broncos open the season on Monday night, Nov. 22, at home against the Athletes in Action featuring former UCLA center Ralph Drollinger. Following the only home appearance until January, Poly will hit the road with a road trip to Dayton, South Carolina, Notre Dame and Kansas State. Later on, Hogan will take his team against the University of San Francisco and Nevada Reno.

Obviously, a schedule like that will do nothing for a team's won-loss record but Hogan isn't concerned about it. The important thing is getting the team ready for the California Collegiate Athletic Association campaign which starts in January.

"We're not going to be overly excited about the early season results," Hogan said. "What we want to do is learn enough so we can be very good at our own level."

Good size for once

For the time in memory, Poly will have size thanks to the additions of junior college transfers Carl Jones (7-0) and Don Johnson (6-11) from Chicago area JCs.

Having the luxury of having players of that altitude is quite a challenge for the coaches but they are enjoying it.

"I'm encouraged because it is a healthy situation," Hogan said. "Both of them have the talent. Johnson right now is the best center because of his mobility and speed. Jones has been injured so his progress has been delayed.

Hogan also added that Mark Bernhard (6-7), last year's starter, is fighting for his position.

"Mark has improved tremendously," Hogan said. "He is more mature and the competition for the job has helped him."

Hogan says Poly will be using the running game but he also wants to have the ability to work for the high percentage shot if the strategy calls for it.

"The object is to play intelligent ball consistently," he said. "We can't afford to beat ourselves."

Ticket prices for Poly home games this season are very reasonable. Family season tickets cost $20 and two adult season tickets are $10. Individual game tickets cost $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children.

* * *

In other college basketball news, former Mt. San Antonio College star George Schader is getting ready for his senior season at Stanford. He averaged 13.7 points and seven rebounds per game for the Cardinals last winter.

Long Beach State is very optimistic. In the first press release about the 49ers' basketball team, the publicist asks, "Will Long Beach take over the domination of West Coast college basketball?" That's a mighty big question which UCLA fans should find very interesting. UCLA is best in the West until somebody can beat the Bruins on the court.

- UC Riverside will be playing four home games this season at the city's new downtown arena, Raincross Square. The opener against cross-town rival Cal Baptist, a power in the NAIA last season, should draw a full house. Unfortunately, UCR will still be using its old campus gym for league games.

Freshman Mark McQuaid from Chaffey High has been impressive thus far at Idaho State. He is one of three California freshmen at Pocatello. The others are Paul Wilson from Fontana and Ernie Wheeler, the son of the Cal Poly San Luis Obispo coach.

FEMALE TRAINER

Ram QBs still not real happy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Harris is happy, Ron Jaworski is unhappy and Pat Haden sits in the wings always ready as the Los Angeles quarterback situation revolves.

Harris started as No. 1 and still holds that position despite being hurt on Aug. 28 and again on Oct. 11. Twice he's made successful comebacks.

He passed for two touchdowns in the first half as the Rams built a 31-3 halftime lead. Before he went out in the fourth quarter, the Grambling product had hit 14 of 25 passes for 208 yards.

"I'd like to have known sooner that I was starting because I can get prepared better for a game," commented Harris, who didn't learn until Saturday that he would start. "All this writing about the quarterback situation is tearing us apart."

Harris said he had no doubt that he was No. 1 and Coach Chuck Knox agreed that if the black quarterback was 100 per cent physically, he is the Rams' starter.

Jaworski, the third-year pro from Youngtown State who is playing out his option, declared unhappily, "What really bothers me is in one week I go from the penthouse to the basement. I'm going to talk to the coach this week. If they feel I'm not up to it and I'm not going to play, then there's no reason to stick around."

Jaworski, who suffered a broken shoulder against Atlanta on Sept. 12, started against New Orleans a week ago but gave way to the rookie Haden who tossed the winning pass in a 16-10 victory.

Jaworski added, "We are certainly fortunate to have three good quarterbacks with everyone rallying around them."

Rhodes Scholar Haden, from Southern California, got the call to replace Harris when the Seattle game was out of the Seahawks reach. He threw for one touchdown.

When both Harris and Jaworski were hurt, Haden played the whole game against Minnesota in the 10-10 overtime tie on Sept. 19. He started the next week against the New York Giants but suffered a concussion at the end of the first quarter and Jaworski took over.

The Rams won that one 24-10, and now lead the National Football Conference West with a 6-1-1 record.

Jack Youngblood, a defensive leader for the Los Angeles club, commented on the return of Harris:

"It is sort of settling. The offense needs one real leader. It's just like when Washington was alternating Sonny Jurgensen and Bill Kolmer. It just doesn't add any stability or balance."

Knox admitted that when the injuries caused the switching of the quarterbacks, "we didn't have the continuity that we should."

Harris concluded, "I felt like I was supposed to play all along. I never was thinking any other way about it. But it's going to take all of us on the team to get to the Super Bowl. So now, I just hope we can concentrate on a team effort and get away from all this controversy."

Owens big plus for UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When James Owens was recruited from Norte Del Rio High School in Sacramento, football Coach Dick Vermeil and track Coach Jim Bush both were happy.

Vermeil was happy because Owens looked like a good defensive back prospect. Bush was happy because Owens looked like a sensational high hurdler.

But Owens kept telling both of them he was a running back, and finally last Sautrday the 5-foot-11, 175-pound speedster got his chance against Washington and gained 123 yards.

"Last year I was never in a position to make a decision on where he would play," said first-year coach Terry Donahue on Monday. Donahue coached the offensive line last year, and Owens played defense—sparingly.

"Once I became a head coach, I decided I still wanted him to play defense. But I knew he didn't have a real liking for defense, so before the season we switched him to wide receiver.

"But he kept telling us he was really a running back, and I knew from seeing him in high school that he had the potential to be a great wishbone halfback. Based on my high school evaluation, I was very excited about his potential.

"So we switched him to halfback in practices early in the season. After a couple of weeks, I looked at him and thought maybe I had made the wrong decision.

"But Billie Matthews, our running back coach, said, 'Let's stay with it for a while.' Well, we did and you saw what he did Saturday.

"He ran inside and outside and he did a fine job, but he's still got a long way to go. He's still not where he has to be and his blocking can get a lot better. And his ball-carrying instincts are still not that good. A couple of times Saturday he cut the wrong way.

"But his future as a running back at UCLA is still ahead of him."

Owens got his break to play when No. 1 running back Wendell Tyler suffered a wrist injury and someone had to play alongside Theotis Brown. With Owens taking the pressure off, Brown gained 220 yards to set a school record as the third-ranked Bruins won 30-21. Brown bettered the school single-game record of 183 set by Kermit Johnson against Arizona in 1972.

Donahue reminded writers Tyler remains the Bruins' No. 1 tailback.

"Wendell is the best running back in the history of UCLA," said Donahue. Tyler holds the UCLA career rushing record of 2,959 yards. "It would be ridiculous for me to consider moving him from his No. 1 tailback spot."

Owens, Donahue said, remains the No. 2 running back.

Bush has said Owens is one of the fastest starters out of the blocks of any hurdler he's seen, but Donahue said, "I know he's supposed to be fast on the track, but he doesn't appear that fast on the football field. Maybe it's his inexperience. Maybe he's still feeling his way coming out of his stance.

"But I don't think you can get any faster out of a stance than Tyler."

National TV sparks Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Motivation takes many forms. For Joe Ehrmann, it was the presence of national television. For John Dutton, it was the memory of a rookie season best forgotten. And for Lydell Mitchell, it was the fact that it was "a big game."

Whatever turned them on, Ehrmann, Dutton, Mitchell and the rest of the Baltimore Colts were ready for Monday night's nationally televised game against Houston, and the Oilers could do nothing to dampen the spirit.

The Colts, playing in their first Monday night National Football League game in four years, turned Houston turnovers into early touchdowns and held the Oilers' explosive offense in check for a 38-14 victory.

The triumph was the Colts' fifth in a row and gave them a 7-1 record and a two-game lead over New England in the American Conference East. Houston now is 4-4 after losing its third consecutive game.

"We were high," said Ehrmann, who had four tackles and a quarterback sack from his right defensive tackle position. "A lot of it was team pride; not a feeling that we had been slighted by TV, but we just had the chance to say, 'Hey, here we are.'"

The Colts gave up 190 net yards to Houston, but most of them came in two late touchdown drives. At the half, the Oilers had minus-seven yards passing and just 54 yards yards total offense.

Dutton, the third-year defensive end who also had one of the Colts' six sacks, agreed that TV helped get the team up for Houston. But for himself, Dutton added, it was the lingering image of a 2-12 record his rookie year with Baltimore that provided the boost.

"I've been there (with a loser) and I don't ever want to go back," he said. "It's a force that keeps us all working very, very hard. It was a learning experience, I guess, but I don't want to relive it."

Mitchell, whose 136 yards pushed his AFC-leading total to 796, said he wasn't thinking that much about national exposure or atoning for past shortcomings when he took the field Monday night.

"It was a big game, that's all," he said. "In a game like that, all you have to do is wire me up, let me out there and I'm ready to play.

"It used to be I wasn't sure of myself in comparison to other backs. Now, I seriously consider myself the No. 1 back in football."

The Colts' defense forced two key turnovers early, first recovering a Ronnie Coleman fumble at the Houston 13, then intercepting a halfback option pass by Coleman at the Oilers' 22.

Both times Baltimore followed with touchdowns, the first by Roosevelt Leaks on a fouryard run and the second by Don McCauley on a one-yard plunge. Leaks and McCauley each finished with two TDs.

The lead swelled to 21-0 by halftime and grew to 31-0 by early in the fourth quarter when Baltimore Coach Ted Marchibroda pulled his regulars.

Angels hire Del Crandall

ANAHEIM (AP) — Del Crandall, a native of Southern California, says he's happy to join the California Angels as the American League team's first base coach.

"It was great to join the Angels on a minor league level during the past season," Crandall said Monday after the club announced he'd been hired.

"But now, having been born and raised in this area, it's quite exciting to be able to join the club on a major league level. It's truly a thrill."

Crandall, 46, was born in nearby Ontario and grew up in Fullerton, where he now resides. He had joined the Angels organization earlier this year as the manager of Salinas of the California League.

A four-time Golden Glove award winner, Crandall had a 16-year major league batting average of .254, playing for Milwaukee, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

He became manager of the Milwaukee Brewers in 1972, and remained with the Brewer organization until joining the Angels this year.

Pros not for Schembechler

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's Bo Schembechler has often indicated he wouldn't take a pro football coaching job.

Monday the highly successful coach of the nation's top-ranked college team reinterated his reason.

"I'd always fear coaching someone who's more important than I am," he said with a grin.

But Schembechler hastened to add that his star fullback-tailback Rob Lytle and wingback Jim Smith "are more important and I am—but they don't know that. And they don't make more money than I do."

In his eight years at Michigan, Schembechler's teams have won 73 games, lost nine and tied three. Of those losses, four have been to archrival Ohio State and two have come in bowl games. One of the ties was with Ohio State.

'Bird' named Tiger of Year

DETROIT (AP) — Tiger rookie pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych was voted Tiger of the Year Saturday by the Detroit Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The colorful righthander, who finished the season with a 19-9 record, picked up 31 votes. Outfielder Ron LeFlore received the other four votes.

Fidrych pitched in 31 games, all but two as a starter. He had a 2.34 earned run average, struck out 97 and walked 53.

USC tops Pac 8 in five departments

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — The Southern California Trojans are putting their usual indelible mark on the Pacific-8 Conference football statistics.

The Trojans top in the league in five of eight team departments, including team offense, defense, scoring offense, scoring defense and rushing defense.

After losing their opening game to Missouri, Southern Cal has won six straight, averaging five touchdowns a game. The Trojan defense has refused to yield a touchdown in four of its last six games and has intercepted 10 per cent of its opponents' passes.

Troy is averaging 475 yards of offense per game compared to undefeated UCLA's 438 yards. The Uclans, however, have the best running game in the conference, averaging 352½ yards per game to Southern Cal's 317.

Trojan running back Ricky Bell leads the conference in scoring with 74 points and in total rushing with 1,154 yards. UCLA backs Theotis Brown and Wendel Tyler are ranked No. 2 and 3 with 793 and 781 yards, respectively.

Stanford quarterback Guy Benjamin and Jack Thompson of Washington State are the top passers in the league. Benjamin is averaging 258 yards per game and has passed for a total of 1,548 yards and nine TDs in six games. Thompson, who has played two more games than Benjamin, has passed for 1,720 yards and 10 touchdowns. He is averaging 215 yards per game.

Oregon State, 1-7, has the best pass defense. The Beavers' secondary has held their opponents to an average of just 111½ yards per game through the air.

Erratic officiating bothering local coaches

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Erratic officiating continued to bother local college grid coaches last week.

Both Roland Ortmayer of La Verne and Mike Merandi of Chaffey voiced complaints over some questionable calls in their contests last week at the Progress Bulletin's football luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona Monday.

Although neither blamed officiating for their team's losses, they obviously weren't pleased with the work of the men in the striped shirts.

The Player of the Week awards on the four-year level went to Azusa Pacific running back Darryl Richard and La Verne linebacker Ole Ellingson. Winning the JC honors were Citrus offensive guard Dick Smallwood and Chaffey defensive tackle Vince Sgantas.

Others nominated at the four-year level were APC defensive guard Michael Price and Pomona-Pitzer defensive end Randy Roddy.

Quoting the coaches:

ORTMAYER, La Verne: "We felt the Redlands game would be a critical one in our conference, and it turned out to be more critical for us than them, since we lost it. They beat us in just about every department, it was not one of our better games.

"I have no complaints about the loss, but it was a frustrating day for us with the officials at the game. I become irritated when an official says something is strictly a judgment call when in reality it is an interpretation of a rule.

"If it is a judgment call, then I as a coach should have no say in the matter. But I think they should listen if it's a case of rules interpretation. But in Saturday's game the officials wouldn't listen to me, they said I could not have anything to do with a judgment call. In that case there is one judgment I can make after the game, and that's that in my judgment the officials were not very good.

"Two plays were definitely questionable to me, especially after watching the films. One involved a Whittier fair catch of a punt, the other when we blocked one of their punts. Both calls went against us, which did not help our cause any.

"This week we play Pomona-Pitzer, they should be real proud of the way they played against Whittier last week. If they play that way against us it will be a real good game."

MIKE MERANDI, Chaffey: "Two real good football teams met last week at Citrus, one team turned the ball over five times and was penalized over 100 yards, the other team did not turn the ball over and was penalized 60 yards. That was the difference in the game.

"We played well, those turnovers just killed us. Our defense was on the field too long vs. a club like Citrus which has so much fire-power.

"No, I wasn't happy with the officiating. Again, it was a case of a guy saying a couple calls were strictly his judgment. He refused to discuss them with me, which really makes me mad when I can't even get an explanation of what the penalty was all about. I'll tell you this, two of last Saturday's officials will never work another Chaffey game if I have any say in the matter.

"This week we go against San Bernardino Valley, they have super talent and will be a real tough opponent. It will be tough for our guys to get up for them, after the loss to

ATHLETE'S FRIEND — Trainer Karen R. Miller gives Cal Poly pitcher Randy Schauer some assistance with his ailing arm. Karen and Sandy Steward are Poly trainers.

Last male domain ends

By BILL LANGLEY
Sports Editor

Cal Poly is the latest university to see women invading the last male domain.

Two women trainers are busy at work handling the needs of both the male and female athletes and apparently the need for women trainers everywhere far exceeds the supply.

It's all a basic result of the Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments Act which rules for equality for the females.

Karen R. Miller, who is often confused with women's tennis coach Karen L. Miller, serves as a fulltime trainer for Poly's many sports in the expanded women's athletic program.

Sandy Steward, a graduate student from Azusa, helps head male trainer Chris Mumaw with the men's teams. She travels with the football team and is right there on the sidelines to offer her medical help.

It's obvious both of them love their work.

Sandy is actually the pioneer at Poly as far as female trainers are concerned since she did some work last year while Karen was the pioneer at Cal State Fullerton.

The usual questions are about the language and possible nakedness.

But it's really no problem at Poly since the training room is very visable anyway from a public hall.

As far as the language is concerned, the two females don't create much of a stir.

"I've noticed the men usually watch their language for awhile but not so much as they get to know you," Karen explained.

In fact, it can be said the two girls are just about treated like the guys.

"If you act professional, they will treat you just like a guy," Karen added. "If you're genuine in your interest in their injuries, they will treat you well."

Working and traveling with the football team is nothing really new for Sandy, who was a cheerleader last year.

"I've known most of the players anyway so there has been no problems," she said.

Sandy was taping injured gridders Rich Kluck and Max Weischedel, two of the defensive stars on the Broncos.

"I love it," Weischedel said. "It's nice to have so much attention. Most of us knew Sandy when she was a cheerleader."

"It's fine with me as long as they can tape ankles and Sandy can certainly tape ankles," Kluck added.

There's a big shortage of women trainers because of the sudden increase of women's sports and that's why Karen was hired.

"I help out some at home football games but handling all the women's sports keeps me busy enough," she said. "Right now, we are in the midst of the volleyball and field hockey seasons and basketball is just beginning. There is really a need for the women athletes to have their own trainer. They have a lot of injuries just like the men and needed treatment. The trainers here did as much as they could but they just didn't have the necessary time."

Why would young ladies get into such a field?

"I love this type of work," Sandy said. "I've always been interested in sports and medicine so this job fits."

"I've always been involved in athletics since I can remember," Karen added. "I've just been hooked. It's a lot of hours and work but it's worth it."

Citrus' sixth win insures good year

Citrus but we will have to be ready for San Bernardino or they can kill us with the talent they have."

JOHN STRYCULA, Citrus: "It was great to win last week since we beat a very good team in Chaffey. The win was our sixth of the year which insures us of a winning year no matter what.

"Chaffey did a hell of a job getting ready for us, I thought we would never shake them. They were well-prepared for the game and hit as hard as anyone we have played this year. Their turnovers really hurt them.

"I thought we played well, we blew a couple plays but basically did a solid job. I'm happy with our game.

"This week we go down south to play Southwestern. They are a good strong team and looked tough in their two non-league games vs. S.D. Mesa and Grossmont. We always have a rough time down there, at least we are healthy for the game."

JERRY SCONCE, Azusa Pacific: "We had a very interesting game with St. Mary's. We had the thing under control at 30-14 late in the game until our kids became very kind and they narrowed the gap. We had 320 yards rushing in the game, our offensive line finally came alive. We held them to 126 yards in total offense, the final score should not have been that close.

"Surprisingly, I thought the officiating at the game was just excellent. We had a super crew, I'd sure like to have them in every game. That's one of the problems with this officiating thing, they are constantly rotating these crews and you can get a couple donkeys thrown in with two good officials.

"We play Cal State L.A. this week. It will be a very difficult game for us, we will need our best game of the year to beat them."

WALT AMBORD, Pomona-Pitzer: "We played a very good game for us against Whittier, in fact it was probably the best we have played overall in the past two years. Whittier showed us a lot of class, they were well-disiplined.

"We finally put together a sustained drive, and we eliminated a lot of the mistakes we have been making. I was real proud of our kids.

"This week we have La Verne, they are a fine football team, there's no way on paper we can stay with them. We will just have to give 100 percent effort and hope we have a better game than the first time we played them."

ANDY VINCI, Cal Poly: "Thank God for the bye we had, we are still racked up injury-wise. We had only two practices last week, so I don't know where we are going into this week's game at Northridge. We will probably take only six offensive and five defensive linemen with us to Northridge, we need to get healthy.

"CSN is a vastly improved team. We will need to stop their kicking game and control the football to beat them. The game will probably come down to who wants it the most."

Sports briefs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A decision is expected in about two weeks on whether a federal appeals court will rehear its own ruling on the so-called "Rozelle Rule" in professional football.

Attorneys for the National Football League asked the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday for the rehearing, but did not say why the National Football League wanted it.

The court ruled last month in favor of a lower court decision which termed the rule a violation of federal antitrust laws.

The rule, named after NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, says that a player may become a free agent after he has played out his contract, but that the commissioner can determine what compensation must be given to the team losing the player.

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — Stanford defensive end Duncan McColl and UCLA running back Theotis Brown were named Pacific-8 Conference football players of the week today.

McColl made 15 tackles, including two quarterback sacks, in the Cardinals' 24-3 victory over Oregon State last weekend. He also blocked a pass and recovered two fumbles.

"McColl has played some great games this year, but this one was his best ever," declared Stanford Coach Jack Christiansen. "He pressurd and sacked the quarterback, he stopped the run and he recovered two important fumbles. He did everything you can ask of a football player."

Brown ran for a school record 220 yards as the Uclans whipped Washington 31-20 last Saturday. He scored three touchdowns on runs of 29, 15 and 51 yards.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Columbia Broadcasting System is giving the boot to pro soccer.

After studying unusually low Neilsen ratings for last year's televised games, CBS has decided not to pick up its option on the remainder of a three-year contract with the North American Soccer League.

"We still think professional soccer will do well as a television attraction, but it hasn't arrived yet," said Herbert Gross, director of sports for CBS. "After the championship game (last year) did not do well, it made us sit back and think of what to do."

This year, CBS had televised two games, but both had very low audience participation, according to Gross. Under its option-laden contract with the NASL, CBS was to televise a minimum of six games in 1977 and a minimum of nine in 1978.

VANCOUVER, Canada (AP) — John Best, coach of the Seattle Sounders for three years, Monday was named general manager of the Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League.

The Whitecaps said Best signed a three-year contract, replacing Denny Veitch, whose contract expired last month. Veitch had held the position since the Whitecaps entered the NASL in 1974.

Best resigned in Seattle two months ago after leading the Sounders into the playoffs for a second straight year. He said then that he wanted to get into front-office management.

COLOGNE, West Germany — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors whipped fellow American Zan Guerry 6-2, 6-2 in opening-round action of the $50,000 Cologne Grand Prix tennis tournament.

LONDON — John Fever of England defeated Cliff Richey of Dallas 6-3, 7-6 in first-round action of the $100,000 Dewar Cup tennis tournament.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Italian Adriano Panatta defeated Argentina's Guillermo Vilas 7-6, 3-6, 6-2 and won the $10,000 first prize in an international tennis tournament.

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Mark Hayes made the $125,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament his second victory of the season, shooting a final round five-under-par 66 and beating Lee Elder by two strokes.

MINO, Japan — Beth Stone of Miami fired a three-under-par 71 for a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Mizuno Classic golf tournament.

CLEVELAND — Mark Roth of New York averaged 227 over 42 games and held off Paul Colwell of Tucson, Ariz., for the title in the $60,000 Northern Ohio Open bowling tournament.

Meeting scheduled for adult leagues

The Pomona Park and Recreation departments have announced plans for their Winter Adult Basketball leagues. An organization meeting is scheduled for Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Emerson Jr. High cafeteria to discuss these plans.

Five divisions, offering a variety of basketball activity, are planned. Programs are open to both men and women. The minimum age for participation is 16 years.

Entry fee will be $160 per team in the open division, while the team entry fee in the classified division will be $120 per squad. Six leagues are planned in the classified division, with each team playing 12 games. The open division teams will play 17 games.

A "slo-break" league is also planned, for men 25 years and older and women 18 years and older. "Slo-break" games will be played Tuesday nights at Simons Jr. High. Entry fee is $80 per team.

The women's league will use CIF rules, which include a 30-second shot clock. Games will be played Tuesday evenings at Emerson Jr. High. The team entry fee is $120, with each squad slated to play 12 games.

A half-court league is also planned. Teams play one evening per week, entry fee being $16 for 24 games, which are self-officiated.

Complete information on all the leagues will be available at Thursday's organization meeting at Emerson.

Coach storms as Nets lose

By The Associated Press

Kevin Loughery is playing before smaller crowds, but he hasn't changed his act. He's still one of the most explosive courtside performers in basketball.

The volatile New York Nets' coach continues to storm and rave while his team continues to lose. Loughery blew up and the Nets went down again Monday night—this time by an 82-75 margin to the Cleveland Cavaliers.

"The big thing is that the guys on the front line aren't hitting for us," said a disappointed Loughery, considerably calmed down in the dressing room after watching his three starters up front shoot 7of-27 from the field. "They were open shots, too."

Loughery didn't do his team any good by allowing his formidable temper to get the better of him. He was called for two technical fouls and ultimately kicked out of the game.

Actually, one can't blame the Nets' coach for a lack of patience. He is minus superstar Julius Erving and has attempted to rebuild his game plan around a new offensive setup. Also, Erving's loss has triggered a dismaying backlash from protesting Nets' fans, who are staying away from home games in droves. The house count was 4,681 Monday night.

"We're still in the process of putting in some new offense," admitted Loughery, whose team now is 2-5 for the season.

Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, who has seen bad times himself, could sympathize with Loughery.

"The Nets are not wearing black bands on their sleeves, they're wearing their hearts on their sleeves," he said in regard to the devastating loss of Erving to the Philadelphia 76ers. "They lost a superstar. Yoy might say they lost the battle—but in the long run, they'll win the war."

In the only other NBA game, the Kansas City Kings beat the New York Knicks 105-101.

Dick Snyder scored 15 points, including a big basket and two free throws in the last two minutes of the game, to give Cleveland its victory over the Nets. Three free throws by Tiny Archibald had given the Nets a 75-74 lead with 2:27 left when Snyder came through with a three-point play for the Cavs.

Snyder later gave Cleveland a 78-75 lead with a free throw at the 1:31 mark after a technical against Loughery. The Cavaliers then held on to win their sixth game, highest in the NBA.

Kings 105, Knicks 101

Guards Ron Boone and Brian Taylor combined for 40 points as Kansas City upended the Knicks. Boone, who was acquired in the American Basketball Association dispersal draft, scored 22 points while adding eight rebounds and two blocked shots. Taylor, a newcomer acquired in an off-season trade with the Nets, popped in 18 points and picked up six steals.

New teams seek youth

NEW YORK (AP) — The two men who will be at the controls for baseball expansionists Seattle and Toronto will be pressing the same buttons.

Peter Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Toronto Blue Jays, and Lou Gorman, director of player operations for the Seattle Mariners, both say they will be fishing for youth Friday at the American League's expansion draft.

"Fundamentally, we hope to draft young players," said Bavasi. "But some of our draft choices will be veterans who can provide stability for an otherwise young lineup."

"We're going to go after the best young talent available," said Gorman. "We'll also sprinkle in some veterans for stability. But you have to build with young talent."

This is the fifth time a league is allowing newcomers into baseball's select circle. The two expansion clubs each will draft 30 players at a cost of $175,000 a head.

The 12 established teams each will lose a total of five players. Each team can protect 15 players and all minor leaguers signed after 1975. As soon as one player is drafted from its roster, an established team can protect three others.

Washington and Los Angeles joined the American League in 1961, and the National League grew to 10 teams the following year with the New York Mets and Houston.

In 1969, Kansas City and Seattle—which moved to Milwaukee one year later—joined the AL and San Diego and Montreal entered the NL. During that expansion, Bavasi was part of the San Diego organization and Gorman was with Kansas City.

"It's been proven that the best way to build is with young players," said Gorman, who was Kansas City's director of player procurement in 1969. "The Royals are one of the most successful expansion teams ever, and they went with young players."

The Royals won the AL West Division flag this season, eight years after they came into the league. That tied them with the Mets for the fastest rise into the playoffs for any expansion club. The Mets won the NL East, the NL pennant and the World Series in 1969.

The Mets stocked their original roster with a preponderance of veterans. In that first year, the Mets lost more games than any team in history.

"You have to realize that when the Mets became winners," Gorman said, "it was with the players from their farm system—Tom Seaver, Jerry Koosman, Gary Gentry and Bud Harrelson.

"It was the same way with the Royals. The club that won this year was mostly from the farm system."

Bavasi says that in the 1969 draft, Montreal drafted older players, while San Diego picked mostly for the future. The Padres have shown steady improvement each year. This season, the Expos finished with the second worst record in their eight-year history.

"It won't be an exact balance of age and youth," said Bavasi. "It will be a blend of age and youth with a view more clearly toward young players."

NFL is back to bargaining

WASHINGTON AP) — The National Football League is back at the negotiating table in an effort to resolve differences between the owners and players over a new labor contract.

Nevertheless, it is doubtful that any collective bargaining agreement could be reached by the Super Bowl in January, if then.

Representatives of the NFL management and the players union met for three hours in the nation's capital Monday and agreed to establish four subcommittees to consider major issues which have been roadblocks to an agreement for the past 33 months.

The NFL Players Association presented to management a seven-point "plan for responsible action." The owners agreed to six of the points but rejected a request to reinstitute a check-off of union dues for 1976 in return for a non-strike pledge.

The two groups agreed to establish a task force "to consider a workable and legal draft and modified reserve system. The task force shall be authorized to hire outside advisors to meet with representatives of other sports and take other reasonable steps to seek a solution to this complex problem area."

The subcommittees were directed to report back to the full committee on or about Dec. 1.

Dapkewicz paces Monte Vista Club

The Monte Vista Swim Club, a novice and AAU swim program located in Montclair, has recently been competing in AAU swim meets in Grand Terrace and Barstow.

At the Grand Terrace meet held, Jack Dapkewicz led the 15-18 boys division with six first place awards. His firsts were for the 100 freestyle, 50 butterfly, 100 backstroke, 100 breaststroke, 100 individual medley, and 50 backstroke.

Wyatt Loggins also competing in the 15-18 division brought home two firsts for the 50 freestyle and 50 breaststroke. He also had three seconds for the 100 freestyle, 100 breaststroke, and 50 backstroke.

In the 11-12 boys division, the club was led by Matt Loggins who came back with a second in the 50 breaststroke, a third in the 100 individual medley and a sixth in the 50 freestyle.

At the Barstow ABC meet, the club had three award winners in the 15-18 boys division. Tom Maples had a 3rd in the A-100 butterfly with a time of 1:00.3; 3rd in the B-200 individual medley, 2:23.0 and a 4th in the B-200 freestyle, 2:04.0 Jeff Palmer had a 1st in the C-100 freestyle, 58.2; 5th in the B-50 freestyle, 27.0; 6th in the B-100 backstroke, 1:08.5; and 6th in the B-100 butterfly, 1:07.0. Jack Dapkewicz had a 1st in the C-50 breaststroke, 34.2; 2nd in the C-100 backstroke, 1:15.2; and 4th in the 50 freestyle, 27.7.

In the 13-14 boys division, Jim Schiller came back with a 1st in the C-100 freestyle, 1:01.5; 1st in the C-100 individual medley, 1:11.5; and a 2nd in the B-50 freestyle, 27.4. Eric Bakman came back with a 4th in three events, B-100 backstroke, 1:12.2, B-100 freestyle, 1:01.1; and A-50 freestyle, 26.5.

The Monte Vista Swim Club which works out daily at Montclair High School welcomes children who are interested in competitive stroke instruction and encourage parents with children five and older to contact coach Mike Dickson at 624-0791 or Barb Loggins at 983-3333.

Cal loses Walker for rest of season

BERKELEY (AP) — California's record-setting wide receiver, Wesley Walker, faces knee surgery Wednesday and will be lost for the rest of the college football season.

Walker, a senior, is Cal's alltime pass receiver and second in the Pacific-8 Conference with 2,209 career yards. His 22 career touchdowns tied him for the conference record with Hugh Campbell of Washington State.

The star receiver will undergo surgery at Alta Bates Hospital to repair ligaments torn in his right knee during last Saturday's game against Southern Cal.

"It is a mild injury with respect to usual knee injuries, but it is to his best interest to have it repaired immediately rather than to wait until some time later," team physician Dr. Jerry Patmont said Monday.

"This is obviously a blow to us," said Coach Mike White, "but we'll just have to adust as best we can."

White said freshman Holden Smith, who caught two passes against Southern Cal, will replace Walker.

Walker, a sprinter who has run the 100 meters in 10.1 seconds, also missed most of the Oregon State game and the entire UCLA game with an unrelated foot injury before returning to action against SC. Cal lost all three games.

Walker last year averaged more than 23 yards per catch to lead the NCAA in that department. This year he had 23 receptions for 624 yards and six touchdowns.

Angels drop Sunset tilt

The Riverside A's bested the Futuris Angels 8-4 Sunday afternoon at the Angels' home park Upland Memorial in a Sunset League winter baseball contest.

Tommy Rojo and Bill Teague, with three hits apiece, led the Angels' attack.

The Angels are now 1-5 on the year. Next game will be Sunday at Fontana High vs. the Fontana Stars.

Bold Forbes out for rest of year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bold Forbes, the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes winner, will not race the remainder of this year because of an injured foot, Trainer Laz Barrera said today.

Don Lugo sets games

Don Lugo High athletic director and head football coach John Monger has announced that he has scheduled three games for the 1977 grid season, when the school will be a freelance entry in the CIF 1A Division.

Don Lugo, which will have both freshmen and sophomores next fall, has scheduled Webb, La Verne Lutheran and Orange Lutheran. Monger indicated he is still looking for several other varsity games to fill out the "Q's" schedule, hopefully with other 1A schools in the valley.

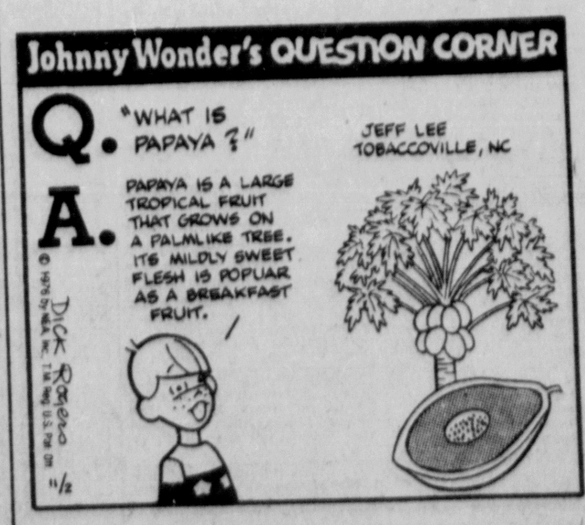
JOHNNY WONDER



If you visit the Pacific islands you might see papayas growing on trees.

The papaya (pronounced puh PIE uh) is a large, melonlike fruit found in almost all tropical countries.

The papaya grows on a tall plant which looks much like a palm tree. Large green leaves, often two feet across, spread from the top of the branchless trunk. The papaya fruit hang near the top of the tree in coconut-like clusters.

The juicy flesh is mildly sweet, with a musky tang. Inside the fruit is a hollow cavity filled with many black seeds.

Ripe papayas are often eaten raw as a breakfast fruit. They may also be used in salads, pies, sherberts and juices.

The papaya plant contains a milky juice which can be used as a meat tenderizer.

In the tropics, it is a common practice to rub tough meat with the juice of a raw papaya, or even leave the meat wrapped in papaya leaves overnight, to make it more tender before cooking.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
